Convicts Defy Governor; Kill Guard

6 STAB HOSTAGE AS DEMAND FOR FREEDOM FAILS

Routed from Barred Room by Tear Gas.

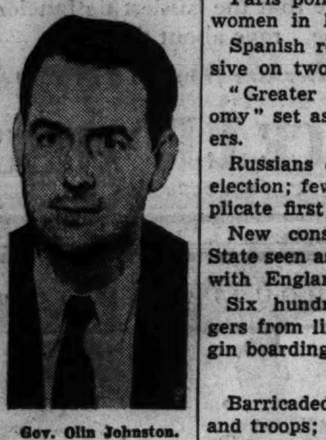
Columbia, S. C., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Six incorrigible convicts today killed the captain of the state penitentiary guards whom they were holding as a hostage and lost a desperate effort to escape. Barricaded in the office of the captain, the convicts for three hours defied the efforts of the governor of the state to persuade them to surrender. They stabbed their hostage to death just before they were compelled to surrender when National Guardsmen summoned by Gov. Olin Johnston hurled tear gas into the room.



Gov. Olin Johnston.

Capt. Olin Sanders, who was seized and bound in his office, died of five stab wounds, one of which penetrated his heart. Sanders was unarmed when the six entered his office and the leader menaced him with what appeared to be an automatic pistol, later found to have been fashioned from wood and metal, but made so accurately that close examination was necessary to determine it was harmless.

Death Virtual Certainty.

From the time Sanders was seized his death was a virtual certainty. He had given orders to officers and guards that in the event of such an attempt to escape no thought was to be given for the life of the hostage. Escapes were to be prevented at any cost, he told his aids.

The barricaded killers demanded that an automobile be brought alongside the building in which they were holding forth, the prison gates opened, and the yard cleared of guards. Throughout the three hour plea for the release of Sanders the convic's were reminded that they could not escape for long even if their demands were met.

Shortly after breakfast and roll call at 8:30 a. m. the six killers singly obtained permission from guards on duty in the yard to see Capt. Sanders whose office is in the building used to house prison offices, women prisoners, and incorrigibles in solitary confinement. The request was in accordance with routine and was granted.

Suddenly Leap Into Room.

Arriving in the building at the same time, the convicts suddenly leaped into Sanders' room, locked the doors with his keys and made their demands for freedom. Sanders told them that he would not permit their escape even at the cost of his life.

The first intimation to others that trouble had been started came when Sanders shouted from his office window to Corporal Charles L. Christmus, who was in charge of the yard.

"Charlie, these boys have me tied up in here," he said.

"What boys?" Christmus said he asked.

"This crowd in here. They have a gun in my ribs and want a car to escape."

Telephone to Governor.

Christmus telephoned to J. S. Wilson, superintendent of the prison, and asked what he should do. Wilson telephoned to Gov. Johnston at his home and both sped to the prison.

Arriving outside the office in which Sanders was held, the governor and Wilson were joined by the Rev. Dr. S. P. Phillips, prison chaplain, and Coroner John A. Sergeant.

Through the window the governor could see the convicts and all could see him. When he first spoke he had his hands in his overcoat pockets. "Take your hands out of your pocket," some one shouted from within. The governor complied and assured the felons he was not armed.

Gov. Johnston pleaded repeatedly with the convicts to release Sanders. He explained patiently that they had been sentenced to prison by the

ANOTHER BOOST ON HIS WAY

FATHER'S PROUDEST BOAST: GIVES INFANT SON BATH EVERY DAY

Albia, Ia., Dec. 12.—(AP)—The hand that rocks the cradle tills the land on the Willard Findley farm. Findley was married eighteen years before his wife bore a son and eleven days later she died. The child, Lowell, lived.

"I decided then to raise him myself," Findley said today. "I wanted him to have the kind of care he deserved."

Lowell now is 22 months old and thriving. His father learned to handle safety pins as easily as a plow and to wash as many as 18 diapers a day. He learned about babies from government pamphlets, books and telephone conversations with the doctor.

Findley's proudest boast: "I give Lowell a bath every day—he's missed only eight days in his life."

2 VICTIMS NEED BURGLAR ALARM WITH TEETH IN IT

It was a matter of record at the Irving Park police station yesterday that Gust Barthel and Stanley Kondracki were dismayed when they entered their homes at 3524 and 3522 North Nottingham avenue Saturday night.

Their homes had been burglarized. Hardly a room was recognizable. Pictures were down from the walls, chairs and tables overturned, carpets torn up, and bureau drawers yanked out. The burglars took $100 from each home.

Barthel and Kondracki surveyed the ruins. "It's a mystery to me," moaned Barthel. Kondracki nodded.

Barthel's watchdog, Rags, shivering and wringing wet, was hugging the furnace, a sheepish look on his face. Kondracki's dog, Bucky, also sheepish, shivering, and wet, was lying on a blanket.

Detectives Richard Baginski and Henry Haerle decided the burglars had taken the fight out of the watchdogs by dousing them with ice cold water from the tops of the stairs. The detectives even found the empty pans.

Swallows Her False Teeth; Lizzie Root in Hospital

Mrs. Gillooly Defends Honor of Her Saloon

Long, long ago Jimmy Gillooly and his wife, Delia, agreed that they were going to keep their tavern at 4641 South Halsted street orderly and peaceful even if they had to fight to do it.

All the customers present early yesterday respected the rules. They stood at the bar or sat at the tables and discussed the beer and the whisky and conditions in Auld Erin and not a fist was raised.

"It was so quiet," said Gillooly, "that you could have heard a shillalah drop, if there had been one, which there wasn't."

And then in walked Robert O'Shaughnessy of 4457 Lowe avenue. He tossed a dime on the bar and demanded a drink of whisky.

Mr. Gillooly Is Severe.

"We have none for the likes of you," said Gillooly severely. "You are drunk and you are noisy and you are interrupting the singing of come-all-ye's by the regular customers."

Mr. O'Shaughnessy protested. His money was so good, he said, that even the postoffice would take it for stamps. If it was good enough for Farley it should be good enough for Gillooly, he argued. Still Gillooly refused, keeping a wary eye on his bung starter the while.

And then Mr. O'Shaughnessy disobeyed an additional rule; he drew a rusty old pistol from a pocket and repeated his demand.

Mrs. Gillooly Is Aroused.

This aroused Mrs. Delia Gillooly, who had been sitting in the rear of the saloon pondering on how nice it was to have a peaceful tavern. She walked over to Mr. O'Shaughnessy.

"We'll have none of that here," she declared.

With that she let go a left swing that caught the gun waver on the jaw. There was 217 pounds back of the blow and O'Shaughnessy crumpled. As he fell his pistol and a pie that he carried concealed under his coat fell to the floor. He let the pie go, but strove to reach the pistol. Mrs. Gillooly, seated comfortably on his chest, reached first, seized the weapon, and cracked the owner on the head with it.

SANTA CLAUSES SEEK TO UPLIFT PROFESSION; CALL A CONVENTION

New York, Dec. 12.—[Special.]—The first annual convention of Santa Clauses will be held on Dec. 19 in the Hotel St. George, Brooklyn, to let loose a blast against those jaz age Kris Kringles who are dragging down the high profession's reputation. There will be Santas from fourteen New York City department stores present endeavoring to set a code of conduct and appearance for the profession. Their slogan will be "Santa Clause is a living cause."

N. U. GETS STABLE OF RACE HORSES UNDER REA WILL

Lawyers, rereading the will of Mrs. Manlove Rea, wealthy art patron, which was published a few days ago, discovered yesterday that Northwestern university, a center of learning since 1851, has inherited a racing stable.

Along with the stable, Mrs. Rea has left the university $100,000. She died last Monday at the age of 89 years. She was the widow of Dr. Robert L. Rea. In her will she also leaves her home at 17 West Huron street to the Art institute, plus an endowment of $25,000 for needy art students. Her estate is valued at $200,000.

The stable, which she owned and delighted in, includes four harness race horses and one brood mare. They are now quartered near Crown Point, Ind., in charge of Leslie Miller, trainer. Mrs. Rea entered her horses only at state and county fairs.

The gift to Northwestern is contingent upon the university's agreement to employ Mrs. Rea's chauffeur, Axel Boettiger, for ten years at a minimum salary of $150 a month. University officials had no comment to make last night on the inheritance of the stable.

Inventor Is Trying Out His Vibro-Helmintholator

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—A worm lurer which he calls a vibro-helmintholator is a gadget invented by Dr. Carl Omeron, Los Angeles dentist, who is trying it out in the rain softened earth near his home. "I stick the thing in the ground and it is vibrated by electricity, causing angleworms to come up to the surface to see what it is all about," explained Dr. Omeron today.

1 DEAD, 18 MISSING, 54 SAVED AS BOMBS WRECK SHIP AIDING NANKING YANKS

Nippon Shells Hit British Warship; Sailor Slain.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 13 [Monday].—(AP)—A British seaman was dead and a British naval officer and another seaman were wounded in one of several incidents arising from heavy Japanese aerial and artillery bombardments yesterday and today along 100 miles of the Yangtze river both upstream and downstream from Nanking.

The British victims were aboard the British gunboat Ladybird off Wuhu, 60 miles upstream [southwest] from Nanking. British officials made strong protests to the Japanese.

The Ladybird was unexplainably the target of Japanese gunfire yesterday which was also directed at other vessels in the river. The Ladybird was damaged by four direct hits from Japanese shore batteries.

Commander Is Wounded.

Besides the sailor killed, Commander G. E. M. O'Donnell, flag captain of the river patrol, was injured. Just a week ago the Ladybird's commander, Lieutenant Commander Harry Douglas Barlow was wounded by bomb splinters during a Japanese air attack on Wuhu.

The British river steamer Suiwo of 2,672 tons was hit by a shell, but not badly damaged. The British gunboat Bee, lying near the Ladybird, was under fire but not hit.

The British tugboat Tsingtah, carrying H. I. Prideaux-Brune, British consul at Nanking, and Lieut. Col. W. E. Lovat-Fraser, British military attaché, also was under fire at Wuhu but was not hit.

Others Periled Near Nanking.

Above Nanking Japanese planes three times dropped bombs near a concentration of British craft without a hit. The gunboats Cricket and Scarab were with several merchant vessels which had moved up from Nanking. The planes flew off after the gunboats fired on them with small guns and machine guns.

The Ladybird shelling drew quick protests on the spot and at Shanghai. British officers went ashore at Wuhu and protested to Col. Hashimoto, senior Japanese officer. He was said to have replied that he had orders to "fire on every ship on the river," but added that the firing on British ships "was a mistake."

[In London officials said that in order to prevent a repetition of the Yangtze incidents, steps had been taken to point out to the Japanese that British ships were and would continue to be in that vicinity.]

Gain New Grip on Nanking.

The Japanese attack on Nanking raged heavily all day yesterday and military spokesmen declared the heavy fighting ended after dawn today with the Japanese capture of the main east gate of Nanking, giving them control of Nanking's south and east walls.

In addition, the Japanese said their column advancing down the Yangtze's north bank captured Kiangpoo, a few miles from Pukow, the railhead on the opposite bank from Nanking.

The battle for Nanking, the capital from which the Chinese government fled three weeks ago, was said to have claimed thousands of lives. Chinese asserted the Japanese lost at least 6,000 dead and wounded in the narrow area around Kuang-hua-men, Nanking's southeastern gate, through which the Japs forced an entry Friday only to be halted by desperate Chinese resistance.

Fight Rages Through Night.

Both sides suffered heavily in fighting throughout Saturday and Sunday. Night brought no pause.

The Japanese announced the capture of Wuhu Saturday, but heavy artillery and machine gun fire continued in that region.

Dr. Robert Fitch, veteran American missionary, returned to Shanghai from a two weeks' trip through the interior and reported 30,000 wounded Chinese soldiers were in hospitals in Kiangsi province and 20,000 more in Chekiang province.

HULL ASKS USE OF GOLDEN RULE TO INSURE PEACE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Secretary of State Cordell Hull in a radio address on the occasion of Universal Bible Sunday, a few hours before the Japanese sank the United States gunboat Panay, today called for a rebirth of the golden rule in international relationships as the surest means of attaining a durable world peace. He said civilization is threatened by "moral and spiritual decadence." Recommending closer adherence to the teachings of the Bible he decried the drift in many parts of the world "toward a reversion of a system to a tyrrany of man over man."

15 Survivors Hurt; Attack Arouses Washington.

There were fifty-four known survivors, fifteen of them wounded. Eighteen were reported missing and it is feared some were killed. One sailor was known to have been killed and two officers wounded. The sailor's name was not immediately announced.

Two Officers Wounded.

The Panay's captain, James J. Hughes, who holds the rank of lieutenant commander, suffered a broken leg. Lieut. A. F. Anders, the executive officer, also was wounded.

The gunboat's normal complement was fifty-five officers and men. In addition the "mercy ship" carried at least seventeen American refugees, including four embassy officials. The officials were among the survivors.

Japs Accept Blame.

The Japanese also accepted responsibility for the sinking of two Standard Oil company boats. No word was received of the fate of refugees aboard the company boats.

The communique pledged immediate steps to place direct responsibility for the incident.

It declared the bombing was regretted most deeply. A Japanese army communique said Chinese troops were retreating up the river and that the American vessels were mistaken for Chinese.

Fear Other Deaths.

Officials of the United States flagship Augusta stationed here said the persons on the Panay not accounted for apparently were killed by the Japanese bombs or were drowned when the vessel sank. However, some might have reached land without communication facilities.

Officials of the Augusta said they believed the Panay sank at 1:30 p. m. Sunday (11:30 p. m. Chicago time). Radio communications with the Panay ceased at that time.

Most survivors were put ashore by rescue vessels at Hohsien, Anhwei province. The Japanese dispatched a plane there with orders to halt military action in the presence of American and other survivors.

Diplomats Make Calls.

Rear Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, chief of the United States Asiatic fleet, canceled his scheduled departure for Manila tomorrow in face of the serious incident.

States Consul General Clarence E. Gauss.

List Refugees Aboard.

The United States consulate general in Shanghai recently listed Nanking refugees aboard the Panay as:

George Atcheson Jr. and J. Hall Paxton, second secretaries of the United States embassy at Nanking; Capt. Frank Roberts, assistant military attaché, and Emile Gassie, embassy clerk.

Weldon James, United Press correspondent.

Roy Squires, American born in China.

T. J. Broderick, Standard Oil company representative.

A. L. Patterson, China Air Motors employé.

A London Times correspondent named MacDonald.

Besides Hughes and Anders, two other officers aboard the Panay were Lieut. C. G. Grazier of the medical corps and Ensign Denis H. Biwerse.

Foreign Minister Makes Apology.

The foreign minister called on United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew to convey the Japanese government's regrets.

Grew said he had visited the foreign office this morning before he had received news of the sinking of the Panay and told Hirota that shells were falling near American ships.

The ambassador had expressly asked that Japanese vessels and aircraft use caution.

Fear International Crisis.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13 [Monday].—Grave fears of an international crisis arising over the bombing and sinking of the United States gunboat Panay in China arose here today as frantic officials strove to learn the fate of the Americans who had been on board the craft.

The latest reports received both at the state department and naval communications were that 54 persons survived the Panay disaster with fifteen wounded. But no information was available on the loss of life or injuries resulting from the sinking of two of three Standard Oil steamers, which were bombed. They were the Meiping, Meian, and Meisian which were anchored nearby under the protection of the ill-fated gunboat.

To Make Statement Today.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull said he hoped to assemble all the data in time to issue a formal statement on the situation early this morning. The secretary remained at his hotel apartment until a late hour, reading dispatches.

State department officials and navy officers were recalling this morning the sinking of the Lusitania and our entry into the world war. A more obvious parallel, however, was the sinking of the United States battleship Maine in the harbor at Havana, Cuba, on the night of Feb. 15, 1898, and the war with Spain which followed.

Messages received here announced that George Atcheson Jr., second secretary left in charge of the embassy at Nanking when Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson left there for the interior recently, was safe.

The latest list of Americans at Nanking, some of whom might have sought refuge on the Panay before the bombing, contained fourteen names. It was sent to the state department by Atcheson last Tuesday. The list was as follows:

Charles Yates McDaniel, Box 1595, Richmond, Va.

Wilson Plumer Mills, 156 Fifth avenue, New York, N. Y.

Charles Henry Riggs, 204 First street, Scotia, N. Y.

Hubert LaFayette Sone, Chillicothe, Tex.

C. S. Trimmer, Long Valley, N. J.

Miss Minnie Vautrin, Shepherd, Mich.

Robert Orry Wilson, Santee, Cal.

Envoy Reports Rescues.

At 1 a. m. this morning the state department issued a statement, making public what details it had learned. One of the first reports was received from Ambassador Johnson who telegraphed from Hankow where he set up his headquarters when the Chinese government moved out of Nanking.

"Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson telegraphed the state department from Hankow that Dr. H. B. Taylor at Anking had just telephoned him that Secretary Atcheson then at Hohsien, reported the Panay had been bombed and sunk as were also two Standard Oil boats which were with the Panay," the statement read.

"The British ship, Bee, is being sent to bring survivors to Wuhu. The United States ship, Oahau, a sister ship of the Panay, now at Kiukiang, is being ordered to proceed to Wuhu to bring the survivors up the river [toward Hankow]."

Built for China's Rivers.

The Panay was built in Shanghai and sent down the ways on Nov. 11, 1927. It was designed especially for service with the American fleet on China's rivers and to protect American shipping from the pirates. It displaced 450 tons and was 191 feet over all. Its arms included a main battery of two 3-inch guns, a battery of .50 calibre anti-aircraft machine guns, and ten standard .30 calibre machine guns for defense against attacks at close quarters.

The sturdy little vessel, which has the appearance of an oversize tug, has seen much action in Chinese waters and was almost sunk in 1930 when it was in collision with the steamer Poyang in the Yangtze river.

Where U. S. Ship Was Attacked

Boxes and arrows indicate the chief developments in Japanese attacks on American and British ships in Chinese waters. A major battle raged around both Nanking and Wuhu, and the Japanese claimed control of Nanking's south and east walls.

NEW JAPANESE ATTACK AROUSES BRITISH LEADERS

Killing of Sailor Stirs Much Indignation.

BY SAM BREWER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 12.—Three attacks on British gunboats in the Yangtze river today by Japanese artillery and bombing planes set British officialdom buzzing with activity tonight. Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden conferred immediately, after which Eden ordered British authorities on the spot to rush a full report to London.

A cabinet meeting likely will be held as soon as detailed information is received to decide what action Great Britain should take. A statement is expected to be made before a committee of the house of commons tomorrow afternoon by the foreign secretary or Chamberlain.

Stiff Protest Likely.

A stiff protest supplementing that already made to the Japanese by the British consular and naval authorities at Shanghai probably will be made, and it is understood the protest will demand stringent steps to prevent further incidents, full compensation, a formal apology, and punishment of those responsible. The Japanese government will be asked to act at once.

At the same time it is emphasized in well informed quarters here that nothing in the way of an ultimatum will be presented the Japanese government. The tendency in official circles is to withhold comment pending arrival of the detailed report from China.

Mistake Stirs Indignation.

Despite the explanation of Japanese authorities that today's shelling of the British warships, resulting in the death of one sailor and the wounding of several others, was a mistake, the new incidents aroused much indignation here. The attacks come when Viscount Ishii of Japan is in London as a special envoy to assure the British of Japan's intention to "respect the rights and interests of foreign powers."

The situation is further complicated by another incident earlier in the week-end, when a Japanese warship was reported to have bombed and seized a Chinese customs cruiser in British waters near Hongkong. One suggestion advanced here is that local Japanese commanders are running amuck in a frantic desire for the speedy conquest of China.

JAP WARSHIP ATTACKS AND SEIZES CUSTOMS SHIP IN BRITISH ZONE

HONGKONG, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Officers of the Hongkong police and Chinese customs service today said that a Japanese destroyer Saturday attacked and captured a cruiser of the Chinese customs in British territorial waters near Hongkong.

The destroyer, belonging to the Japanese navy's 23d flotilla, it was reported, gave chase to the customs cruiser Chahsing, commanded by Capt. George Cook, a British subject in Chinese service. A shell which ricocheted struck the cruiser, which ran into Hongkong waters, was beached and abandoned by her crew.

The Japanese sent two motorboats and towed the cruiser away shortly before Hongkong police arrived. Later the Chahsing was seen proceeding under her own power to an unrevealed destination.

CHICAGO MAN'S BROTHER ABOARD SUNKEN GUNBOAT

Among those aboard the U. S. gunboat Panay, sunk by the Japanese near Nanking yesterday, was Carl H. Birk, chief electrician, according to his brother, Z. S. Birk, of the Gracell hotel, 6410 Kenwood avenue. Mr. Birk heard from his brother only last week.

In his letter, Chief Electrician Birk told of several major air bombings by the Japanese, and seeing as many as 500 and 600 dead Chinese, victims of the attacks. Sentiment among American sailors was resentful, the latter said. In some instances, Birk wrote, Jap aviators have been flying high in apparent fear of Chinese antiaircraft guns.

Birk enlisted in the navy ten years ago, and has spent most of his service in the Pacific. He was born in Milaca, Minn., but lived for a time in Chicago. He was last here in 1931.

SEEKS MEETING WITH MAYOR ON BENEFIT SHOW

Alan Corelli, executive secretary of the Theater Authority, Inc., said last night that he will seek another conference with Mayor Kelly today or tomorrow to straighten out the "misunderstanding" over his organization's demand for a 15 per cent cut of the gross receipts of the Night of Stars Christmas benefit show in the Chicago Stadium Wednesday night. A conference several days ago ended with the mayor's flat refusal to comply with the demand.

Corelli's announcement was made following a two-hour meeting with Guy Magley of the American Federation of Actors and Frank R. Dare, local representative of the Actors' Equity association. Both groups, comprising most of the country's legitimate actors and vaudeville and night club performers, have warned their members of possible suspension and fines if they appear on the show.

TOKIO DECIDES TO LAUNCH WAR IN SOUTH CHINA

Begins Shifting Troops from Shanghai Zone.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Dec. 12.—The Japanese decided today to carry the war to South China, using 100,000 troops, approximately 50,000 of which will be withdrawn from the Shanghai-Nanking front. The remainder will come from the Japanese training bases on the island of Formosa.

Military observers here believed that heavy withdrawals of troops from the Soochow and Wusin fronts, which reached 6,000 today, was preliminary to the immediate dispatch of large forces to the south. The movement congested Soochow creek, which already was filled with junks and canal boats. The troops were aboard the numerous transports the Japanese had brought up to the jetties in the Hongkow and Yangtzepoo districts of Shanghai.

Hope to Occupy Railway.

The Japanese army's first objective will be to occupy the British owned railway connecting the colony of Hongkong, with Kowloon and Canton. The Japanese declare their aim is to cut off large stocks of munitions and other supplies destined for the Chinese troops. Much of these supplies the Japanese declare, the Chinese purchased in the United States.

The Hongkong correspondent of the North China Daily News, leading British newspaper here, stated that the Japanese naval and military forces have been scouting along the South China coastline to prepare for extensive landing operations. The newspaper said:

"South China provides the only channel by which external supplies can reach central China, hence the Japanese threat is alarming, owing to Japan's recent accusations that Hongkong is a supply base for arms and munitions for the Chinese troops."

May Make Drive Inland.

It was claimed there is no basis for the report that the Japanese navy might attempt to blockade Hongkong, but now it is certain that an attempt will be made shortly to isolate Hongkong from China proper, possibly through a drive inland to permit the occupation of the town of Paoan, thus ending railway shipments through the last open door to China.

Air bombings of the Canton-Kowloon [Hongkong] railway resulted in temporary suspension of trafic yesterday. Extensive air raids also were made along the Canton-Hankow railway from Canton to Sinchow in northern Kwangtung province, where seventeen planes dropped thirty bombs.

New York, Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Sing Sing, so crowded that prisoners are sleeping in the halls, now faces a food shortage. In addition to the present 212 above capacity, attachés expect a Christmas rush of prisoners from local jails whose sherifs don't want to feed them Christmas dinners. Warden Lewis E. Lawes has sought in vain for more funds.

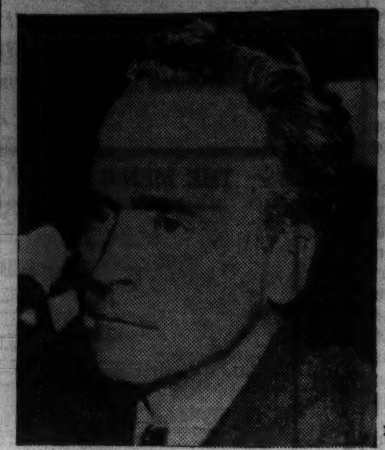
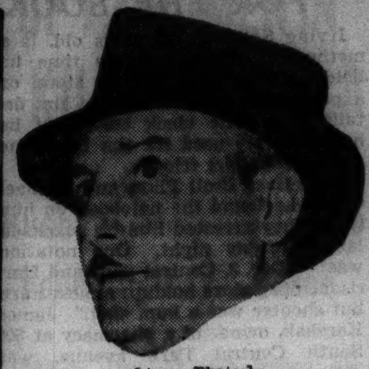
Reported on U. S. Ship Sunk by Japs



[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Lieutenant Commander J. J. Hughes, commander of the American gunboat Panay, was wounded when the ship was bombed.



[Acme Photo.]

Norman Alley, former Chicago newsreel photographer, also was reported aboard the boat when it was bombed.

J. Hall Paxton, a second secretary of the United States embassy at Nanking, was on recent list of refugees reported aboard Panay.

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

REPORT FORMER CHICAGO CAMERA MAN ON GUNBOAT

Norman Alley, a former Chicago newsreel photographer, is among those reported to have been on the United States gunboat Panay when it was bombed and sunk near Nanking yesterday. He was born 40 years ago near Jackson boulevard and Hoyne avenue. He worked for THE TRIBUNE when he was 16 years old and in 1914 went to another Chicago paper as a cub photographer. During the war he served as a second lieutenant.

After the war he returned to newspaper work until about two years ago. He also maintained for a brief time a commercial motion picture outfit and is credited with originating midget automobile racing in Chicago.

About a year and a half ago he joined Universal newsreel and a year ago was made head of their Los Angeles bureau. When the trouble in China began he was sent there to take war movies. He has a wife, Willa, a son, Dexter, and two daughters, all now in Los Angeles. A brother, Whit Alley, lives in Oak Park.

FASCIST LEAGUE OF WORLD SEEN AS DUCE'S GOAL

May Take Hostile Stand Toward Democracies.

ROME, Dec. 12.—(AP)—The belief that Premier Mussolini of Italy was working toward a Fascist world system to supplant the league of nations was expressed here tonight.

Diplomats said the secession from the league dramatically announced by Il Duce last night probably signified a change from a policy of seeking agreement with Britain and France to one of aggressive opposition to the Democratic powers.

The opinion was voiced in diplomatic quarters that Mussolini had exhausted his patience waiting for these two powers to recognize his conquest of Ethiopia and claims to dominance in the Mediterranean.

Il Duce's declaration that the Italian resignation was an event of great historical importance "the consequences of which cannot yet fully be foreseen," was interpreted to mean further action.

His statement that he had waited for the league to come to him to end the breach over application of sanctions [penalties] in the Ethiopian war and his stressing that it had not come was cited as indicating his intentions.

Mussolini's speech, in which he attacked the league as preparing for war, and today's comments by his most faithful collaborators strongly indicated, it was believed, his plan for a Fascist lineup to supplant the league.

The premier's spokesmen made clear they expected more resignations from the league.

ALL ABOARD! HERE WE GO FOR AN AIR TOUR OF HAWAII

Beauties of Islands Told by Flying Reporter.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONOLULU, T. H., Dec. 12.—In justice to oneself and to the islands, a visit to Hawaii should not be confined to Honolulu and the Island of Oahu. The other islands have much to offer.

If one's time is limited, the inter-island air service is excellent. Leaving Honolulu at 8 a. m. for the southern trip one rides in a big Sikorsky amphibian S43 seating sixteen persons. It is the acme of comfort.

In thirty minutes of flying the Island of Molokai appears to the left. There is an airport, but the plane does not land. There may be a reason. The famous leper colony appears far in the distance.

Attracted by Coral Reefs.

Southwest of Molokai the Island of Maui looms. Immediately the eye catches sight of the green verdure covering the rising plains in contrast with the deadish brown of Molokai. Maui becomes more rugged farther southward. Gliding around McGregor's point to land, the plane encounters rough air for the first time. The water looks so smooth, and the airfield so small, doubt arises as to which to take—the pilots themselves admit merit to the question.

The most attractive things on Maui are the coral reefs along the shore near the airport. They are so varied in color, as seen from the air, and so brilliant it hardly seems possible they are natural.

The southwest coast, down which the pilot flies, is indented with many small coves, with beaches on the inside flanked by jagged points of rock. The shore is beautiful with different shades of green, denoting much vegetation. The elevations are not as bleak and rugged as those of Oahu. Many prosperous looking homesteads dot the landscape in every direction.

Land for Ten Minutes.

At last a shoreline appears that has no sand. We come down on the water for ten minutes.

Two passengers of the capacity load desire to stay over for twenty-four hours. The co-pilot calls the base airport at Honolulu. He gets an instant answer, distinctly heard by all:

Soon after leaving Maui, the Island of Hawaii appears in the distance. Mauna Kea rises majestically 13,825 feet. As we approach the island the lowlands present a panorama of prosperous farms. Here and there splashes of smoke from last night's cane fires dot the landscape.

Farther down the coast cultivation gives way to mountains. No beach is visible in any direction. We fly down the shore, some three miles off and at 5,000 feet altitude.

Largest Ranch in World.

Off to the right is the famous Parker ranch, which is said to be—since heirs to the vast King ranch sold some of their Texas land—the largest in the world—more than 1,000,000 acres. The ranch is located on the map halfway between Mauna Kea and the north point of the island.

Most of Hawaii's northeast coast is a sheer bluff 30 feet high and with foliage on its face down to the water's edge. Occasionally streams from the inland mountains come over the top in narrow, but very pretty, falls. Fourteen of them are counted from a single observation point.

Many little towns or plantation centers appear along the plateau above the bluff. All of them are near the edge.

We come into Hilo for another bad landing on a rough airport. A taxicab, with a Portuguese driver named Henry, is called to take us for a run to crater land, and the island's other greatest points of interest.

During the 35 mile drive to the craters many attractive trees and much shrubbery is in evidence. Flowers of many kinds are in bloom. Large poinsettias are everywhere. The ferns are unique. Standing about 8 feet high, with lovely large fans, they line the roads.

The species of male and female ferns can be distinguished at a distance. The trunk of the female is filled with fine, brilliant auburn hair 4 to 6 inches long. It is used extensively for pillow making.

There are in all fourteen craters of different size and vintage. They are named after their characteristics or events in connection with them—Echo, Jewel, Stone, Ghost, Suicide, and other such names.

Description of a Crater.

The largest crater has a perfectly flat floor of 88 acres with a criss-cross of cracks ranging up to 6 feet in width. Surrounding the base, in a slightly flat sided circle, is a vertical wall 860 feet high. The elevation of the rim is 4,000 feet.

A comfortable little inn is located near the crater. A small museum is kept open the year round. Many spots of effervescing steam are seen. Some are used by picnickers for cooking, others have shacks built around them for steam baths.

Another beautiful spot on the island of Hawaii of interest to sightseers is Rainbow falls, two miles west of Hilo. A stream of substantial sizes comes over a rock cliff for a perpendicular drop of 120 feet. The water falls into a perfect circular basin, some 200 yards in diameter, with vertical rock sides extending upward 150 feet. The falls get their name from the fact that every clear morning at 9 o'clock a brilliant rainbow extends across the crater.

Black Sand Bathing Beach.

A novelty appears on the way back to the airport. The town's bathing beach is of black sand, the reason for it being that there is so much volcanic lava on the island.

There is more rain on Hawaii than on the other islands. There is much less irrigation, and much of what there is is used for moving cane by flume from the uplands down to the mills on the ocean.

Hilo harbor is filled with little fishing skiffs—some are tied up and others are out in the ocean. We take off at 3:15 p. m. and are back at Honolulu at 5 p. m., exactly on schedule.

DIANA GIBSON.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Diana Gibson, film actress, a graduate of Lindblom High school and a former employé of a Chicago shoe store, was free today, having won a divorce from Louis J. Meyers, film sound engineer. The decree was granted Friday after she charged he often left home without any explanation. They were married June 20, 1936. She testified he left her alone for days at a time.

PUSH PLANS FOR MERGING AIR FIELD AT NEWARK

New York, Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Airline officials reported today that negotiations for consolidated operations from Newark airport are progressing. Heretofore the four major airlines have maintained separate terminals at the New Jersey field, duplicating each other's activity in the work of clearing passengers, baggage, mail, and express.

The airlines are seeking to lease the new municipal hangar at Newark, the Administration building, the fuel and restaurant concession. The major lines propose to consolidate in their terminal facilities to reduce overhead costs. Similar procedure has already been placed in effect at other fields of the country where more than one airline stops.

SAFE CRACKERS ESCAPE WITH $175.

Burglars broke into the office of the George E. Corbett Boiler and Tank company, 1332 Cortland street, some time yesterday and fled with $175 after knocking the combination off a safe. The burglary was discovered last night by Philip Corbett, vice president of the concern.

EVERY SOLOMON ROBBERY IS ONE FOR THE BOOK

Irving Solomon, 19 years old, is a methodical robber. Every time he held up a grocery, a drug store, or a pedestrian he wrote down the details in a little black book that he had formerly used for the telephone numbers of girl friends.

Detectives Emil Piksa and Michael O'Rourke found the notebook on him when they arrested him on suspicion late Saturday night. One notation was: "Dec. 3, Central park and Harrison; drug store holdup; almost hurt, but shooter was a bum shot." James Karshak, owner of a pharmacy at 500 South Central Park avenue, was called to the Fillmore street station and identified Solomon as a holdup man.

Three companions of the diarist, who has admitted more than a dozen robberies, are being held. They are Isaac Osea, 19 years old, a resident of the Sears-Roebuck Y. M. C. A., as is Solomon; David Ritter, 19 years old, 4247 Grenshaw street, and Leo Weintraub, 16 years old, 1502 South Lawndale avenue.

SPANISH REBELS OPEN BIG THRUST ON THREE FRONTS

Madrid and Valencia Goals of Major Offensive.

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish frontier, Dec. 12.—(AP)—The Spanish rebel armies today launched their long awaited general offensive, rebel authorities announced at Irun. They struck simultaneously on the Toledo, Brunete, and Teruel fronts.

"The enemy was unable to resist the attacks," the rebels declared.

Air Armadas Clash.

Rebel dispatches reported that massed air fleets totaling 270 warplanes had clashed over the Saragossa civil war front in one of the greatest air battles in history.

In full accounts of Friday's spectacular engagement the rebels said 25 government planes were shot down and only one rebel plane was lost.

The aerial action and the rebel action of closing the French frontier Dec. 10 were interpreted by military observers as paving the way for Generalissimo Francisco Franco's great offensive.

Loyalists Lured Into Trap.

The great air battle coincided with the holiday of Notre Dame de Lorette, patron saint of aviation. Twenty rebel planes from Saragossa flew over government lines to lure enemy pilots.

When 100 government planes encircled the supposed raiders, 150 rebel warplanes appeared, putting the government fleet to flight with a quarter of its strength lost in a few minutes.

Rebel planes made a number of fresh incursions in government zones Saturday, meeting renewed resistance. One rebel squadron invaded the Aragon front, east of Saragossa, bombing the outskirts of Castejon del Puente. A government communique said the raid was checked with a minimum of damage.

New Offensive Launched in Spain

(Story in adjoining column.)

Spanish rebels yesterday launched a new offensive, hitting three points of the loyalist lines. The rebels' eastern thrust was designed to drive a wedge between Barcelona and Valencia. There were air battles in the Aragon region.

UNDERGROUND LANES IN WINDSOR CASTLE TO BE AIR RAID SHELTERS

[Copyright: 1937: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Dec. 12.—Scores of underground passages in Windsor castle, where the royal family spends more time than anywhere else, except in Buckingham palace, are to be converted into bombproof and gasproof shelters. The decision symbolizes the wide scope of precautions the government is taking for the British people after years of inaction resulting from the dispute with local authorities over the division of cost. It also shows how much more the dangers of possible bombing attacks are appreciated than was the case during the world war. The Buckingham palace roof then was protected only with netting and sandbags. Experts say they would be virtually useless against any present day aerial bomb.

New Gridiron Club President Begins Work

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—After the interesting pasting the Washington correspondents of the Gridiron club gave the Roosevelt administration during the after dinner festivities last night, which were attended by President Roosevelt, Vice President John N. Garner, Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes and other United States notables, Bryon Price, the new president of the club, tonight began making plans for next year's dinner. Some new stunts were promised by him.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Police disclosed today they had discovered the clothes of twelve different women in the St. Cloud death villa where Eugene Weidmann killed at least two of his five victims.

One of the supposed victims was identified today as Janine Keller, 30 years old. She was feared to have been the sixth prey of Weidmann, the admitted executioner of a "murder for profit" syndicate which may have slain ten or more persons.

Weidmann, however, refused to answer detectives' insistent questions. "I will tell more when the time comes," he explained calmly.

Will Spade Up Grounds.

A photograph found in the isolated villa was identified by Eugene Keller, of Strasbourg, as one of his estranged wife, who went to Paris Oct. 2 and has not been heard of since.

Authorities announced the wooded grounds about the villa would be spaded up on the possibility Mrs. Keller's body had been buried there.

The strangled body of Jean de Koven, 22 year old dancer of Brooklyn, N. Y., was found under the villa porch and that of Fritz Frommer, once a member of the syndicate, in the basement.

Roger Million, described by police as head of the murder ring, was said to have gone completely to pieces in his cell. Guards said he frequently broke down in fits of hysterical weeping, moaning:

"I've done nothing . . . nothing."

Mistress of Two Is Held.

Held with Weidmann and Million were Jean Leblanc and plump Colette Tricot, 25 years old, the brunet mistress of both Million and Leblanc.

Million told police he never had been in the United States and that the William Million sought by New York City police "must be somebody else."

New York police sent a request for fingerprints and detailed information concerning Million. It was indicated they believed he might be Wilhelm Million, who escaped from Walkhill prison in March, 1936, after being questioned in connection with the Lindbergh kidnap-murder case.

Wilhelm Million, who is 35 years old, was said to have looted numerous homes in New York suburbs before he was captured in 1931. He was a native of Saxony, the native German state of Bruno Richard Hauptmann who was executed for the Lindbergh kidnaping.

"Vain Like All Mass Killers."

Police described Weidmann as "vain like all mass killers." The German fugitive from military service started to write the story of his life in his Versailles prison cell—the cell once occupied by Bluebeard Henri Landru, who was guillotined in 1922 for a similar series of slayings.

Mrs. Albert Wickers, a friend of Mrs. Keller, told police the missing woman had gone to Paris in answer to letters written in German offering her a position as a governess with a "rich American family."

Mrs. Keller, her friend said, had answered an advertisment in a Paris magazine. Police recalled Weidmann admitted meeting one of his victims, Roger Leblond, through a magazine advertisment.

Taxi Driver Tells of Call.

Investigators studied clews furnished by many persons eager to testify to some new crime of Weidmann's. A St. Cloud taxi driver, Jacques Lemoine, told police Weidmann called him to the villa last Monday to repair an automobile. He added:

RAISE MORE, SAVE MORE SET AS GOAL OF NAZI FARMERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GOSLAR, Germany, Dec. 12.—"Still greater production — still greater economy" is the slogan for German farmers for the coming year. Dr. Walther Darre, minister of food and agriculture and national farmers' leader, broadcast the message today.

He spoke in the hall of Goslar, "farming capital of Germany." The speech was broadcast because the hoof and mouth epidemic in Germany necessitated the abandonment of the annual national farmers' rally.

Sets Six Aims for Farmers.

Darre expressed satisfaction with the results achieved by the German farmers in the past year, despite the shortage of labor. He stated six aims to be obtained in the coming year:

FIRST—To keep the ground healthy by the use of more natural fertilizer;

SECOND—To increase production of the root crops, especially sugar beets, because their fodder value per acre is much higher than that of wheat;

THIRD—Grow interim crops to keep down foreign fodder imports;

FOURTH—To cultivate pastures as carefully as tilled land—more must be won from the pastures since the tilled area has to be increased;

FIFTH—To keep productive cattle and keep them in healthy stables.

SIXTH—Increase the number of pigs, now that potatoes are available for fodder.

Must Attract Youth to Land.

"Since we make more use of machinery, more farmers must combine for its purchase and use," Darre said.

The minister for agriculture declared that youth must be attracted to work on the land, and added:

"It is untrue when it is asserted that the town worker has better prospects than the agricultural laborer. A false picture is created when the wages of the industrial worker are compared with those of the agricultural worker. The decisive point of one's total life is success."

NAZI LAWS PUT ONE-FOURTH OF JEWS ON RELIEF

[Copyright, 1937: By The New York Times.]

PARIS, Dec. 12.—Out of every four Jews in Germany one is now dependent on relief, according to a report issued by the European executive officers of the American joint distribution committee. This state of affairs results from the closing down of opportunities for work under the German anti-Jewish laws.

Among the many cases cited is that out of 200 Jewish booksellers only sixty have been permitted to continue to do business, and then under severe restrictions. They can sell books only to Jews, and all books are strictly censored.

During the first half of this year 3,641 Jews emigrated from Germany through the aid of the organization, 1,363 going to Palestine and 1,870 to other countries. Nearly 5,000 left Germany unassisted.

Arab Slain, Jew Wounded in Palestine Outbreaks

JERUSALEM, Dec. 12.—(AP)—A Sabbath outbreak of violence in Palestine today left an Arab slain and a Jew seriously wounded. A terrorist gang was reported to have dragged the Arab from a village on the Maritime plain. He was shot on the village outskirts. Ambushers in a Jerusalem suburb shot the Jew. They escaped after exchanging fire with police.

HARRISON SEES TAX BILL REVISED BY FEBRUARY 1

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Chairman Pat Harrison [D., Miss.], of the senate finance committee predicted today that congress would enact legislation overhauling the tax structure by Feb. 1.

He said the house ways and means committee probably would lay a tax modification program before the house during the first week of the regular session, which convenes Jan. 3.

After the house acts, he continued, the senate undoubtedly will work speedily, "and we will have a bill on the President's desk by the first of February."

FOR EACH DOLLAR DUE ON DEBT, U.S. GETS 1.4 MILLS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12—[Special.]—Uncle Sam will net 1.4 mills on the dollar next Wednesday trying to collect war debts from thirteen debtor nations. Representatives of the debtor governments already have made the semi-annual defaulters' parade to the state department. The representatives carried notes expressing regret that their countries will be unable to pay anything on the current debt instalments due Dec. 15, or on past instalments now in default.

Only one debtor nation will be absent from the defaulters' parade. Minister Eero Jarnefelt of Finland has announced that his country will pay in full. On Wednesday morning his government will deposit $232,143 in the federal reserve bank at New York. The payment will be made in dollars, which the administration has made 39 cents cheaper than they were when the loans were made.

Finland to Pay $232,143.

Finland's $232,143 will be all this country will realize on $160,173,726.87 due. The payment represents a return of .0014 cents, or 1.4 mills, on the dollar of the total amount due Wednesday.

The following table shows the total indebtedness of the debtor nations now and the total payments made to date:

Nation—	Total indebtedness.	Payments received.
Belgium	$ 436,316,778	$ 52,191,273
Czechoslovakia	165,620,270	20,134,092
Estonia	19,856,007	1,248,432
Finland	8,434,521	4,868,891
France	4,101,220,183	486,075,891
Great Britain.	5,185,730,763	2,024,848,817
Hungary	33,865,722	3,778,384
Italy	2,018,473,707	100,829,880
Latvia	8,178,084	761,549
Lithuania	7,318,861	1,237,956
Poland	248,481,344	22,646,297
Rumania	63,961,670	4,791,007
Jugo-Slavia ..	61,625,000	2,588,771

Notes Evoke Cold Receptions.

At the state department the notes of regret were accepted with chill formality. Each representative reported he had a note from his government. With a curt bow, the notes were accepted and the representatives hastily withdrew. Most ambassadors and ministers passed on the task of delivery to subordinates.

The American government had notified debtor nations that it is disposed to discuss any proposal they might wish to set forth in regard to payment, but no proposals were made. For a time in the past, several nations made token payments. They presented a small sum in acknowledgment of the debt. Even these stopped in 1934.

LIFE IN TRAILER? READ AND LEARN WHAT IT IS LIKE

Try a Tour of Southland with Tribune Car.

This is the first of a series of articles by Hal Foust, automobile editor of The Tribune, in which he will tell of the experiences of a trailerite on a tour of the southland. He will describe highway conditions, life in the winter resort areas, and points of historical interest.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cairo, Ill., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—THE TRIBUNE automobile is pulling a trailer south to report highway developments and winter travel attractions, and to study life in a house on wheels.

More specifically THE TRIBUNE car and its trailer are parked at the moment with an electric wire stretched to a gasoline station beside Ceylon's southern barbecue stand on the outskirts of this most southern Illinois city. Breakfast dishes are washed, the bedding is stowed under Pullman seats, and a wife and child are whispering at one end of the 19 foot cabin that they wish daddy would hurry with his typing.

Curiosity Pronounced.

The first thirty hours with the trailer has furnished evidence of a strong public curiosity in this form of travel. While stowing luggage in a Chicago suburb seventeen neighbors, not counting children, called to inspect the living quarters, 19 by 7 feet, with most of the essential accommodations of a six room house. The answers to their multitude of questions would furnish copy for a month.

The survey of winter touring likewise has possibilities for reader interest. Motoring is America's most popular recreation and it is also one of the nation's largest industries. An estimated 42,000,000 persons in vacation drives in 12,000,000 automobiles in the last year spent 4 billion 250 million dollars.

Appetites Are Keen.

The first day's drive on this tour was a flight from a forecast of possible snow. At 3:45 a. m., with a thermometer at 5 above zero, THE TRIBUNE automobile left Chicago with its unfamiliar tow. At sunrise the speedometer read 121 miles from home. Appetites were keen for an 8 o'clock breakfast in Urbana, 157 miles from Chicago.

At 4:30 p. m. the gas station attendant here, 402 miles from Chicago, was asked where a trailer might be parked for the night.

"You can stay in back of the station, if you like," he replied. "A man working on the new bridge lived in a trailer there for a month and just left a few days ago."

The next story will report the first meal and the first night's sleep in the trailer.

SLUGGED BY BANDIT; ROBBED OF $168.

INQUEST TODAY IN FATAL PLUNGE OF R. J. DENEEN

An inquest over Robert James Deneen, who plunged to his death early yesterday from his sixth floor room in the Augustana hospital, will be held at 9:30 a. m. today in undertaking rooms at 200 East Erie street.

Deneen, who was 57 years old and lived at 2608 Lake View avenue, entered the hospital last Thursday for treatment of a nervous disorder and stomach ailment. Since 1908 he had been associated with the Ohio Brass company, manufacturer of electrical supplies and railroad equipment, and since 1928 had been a vice president of the company. He was a member of the Union league and Lake Shore Athletic clubs and of various electrical engineers associations.

TWINS WEIGHING 1½ POUNDS EACH FAIL TO SURVIVE

Despite efforts in their behalf by a fire department inhalator squad, twins weighing only a pound and a half each died Saturday night in Michael Reese hospital a few hours after they were born prematurely to Mrs. Yolanda Zemaitis 24 years old, in her home at 6704 South Artesian avenue.

They failed to rally although they were placed in an incubator in the hospital after the firemen administered oxygen for three hours in the Zemaitis home.

Dr. Felix Winskunas, attending physician, sought the aid of the squad when he found that the infants, a boy and a girl, were unable to breathe properly.

Community Fund Group Will Try to Reach Goal

Gen. Robert E. Wood, chairman of the seventh annual Community Fund drive, announced yesterday that workers of more than thirty industrial groups have volunteered to continue their efforts through December. The goal of the campaign is $3,550,000 and $119,000 is still needed. The closing meeting of the campaign was held Dec. 9 but it was decided to carry on informally until the objective is reached.

4 INFANTS WELL ENOUGH TO LEAVE HOSPITAL; 4 STAY

Epidemic Victim Improves After Transfusion.

Four babies were sent home yesterday from St. Elizabeth's hospital, where twenty infants have been stricken with epidemic diarrhea and eleven have died in the last three weeks. Four other babies remained in the hospital.

Bundesen's Blood Treated.

Sulfanilamide, spectacular killer of streptococcic germs, had been injected in Dr. Bundesen before the transfusion so that the baby's diarrhea weakened body could receive the possible benefit of antibodies activated in his blood by the drug.

Dr. George W. Moxon, the baby's physician, said that she was much stronger now and could take nourishment. Her 106 degree fever subsided to about normal, he said.

Whether it is the streptococcic germ which causes this mysterious type of diarrhea is still guesswork, said Dr. Bundesen, who had almost recovered yesterday from a headache and dizziness caused by the injection.

Condition of One Critical.

One of the four babies still in the hospital was reported in critical condition and physicians last night gave it the same indirect sulfanilamide treatment received by the Kozlowski baby. The father was the blood donor. His name was not disclosed. The other two babies were said to be much better.

The four babies discharged were William Lafferty, 5346 Deming place; Edward Wozniak, 2043 North Leavitt street; Doris Miska, 940 North Damen avenue, and Rose Marie Sernel, 541 North Wood street. The first three were in a critical condition a week ago. The last was taken to the hospital Friday, but showed no symptoms of the disease.

BURNED IN FLAT BLAZE.

Theodore Alexander, 20 years old, was burned on his hands and face yesterday in a fire which caused $700 damage to a brick two flat building at 10114 Indiana avenue. His mother, Mrs. Leopoldine Alexander, partly overcome by smoke, was led to safety by firemen.

Psychoanalysts to Equip New Medical Laboratory

The Chicago Institute for Psychoanalysis, 43 East Ohio street, will equip a new medical laboratory to advance its research work on the relation between phychical and physical disorders in collaboration with the city's leading medical institutions. Dr. Franz Alexander, director of the institute, which will hold its fifth anniversary meeting on Wednesday at the Tavern club, said yesterday a summary of the institute's findings since 1932 will be given then.

Find Baby 2 Months Old Suffocated in His Crib

Peter Carey, 2 months old, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Carey, 7249 Dobson avenue, was suffocated yesterday in his crib. He was found face down in the blankets. The parents summoned an inhalator squad, who worked over him in vain for half an hour.

GUNMEN RANSACK C. W. FRY HOME; MENACE WIDOW

Mrs. Margaret Fry, widow of Charles W. Fry, labor leader and vice president of the Chicago board of education, who was buried Saturday, was menaced by two armed men while a third ransacked her home at 5959 South Francisco avenue last night, taking four unindorsed checks for $1,820.

When Mrs. Fry answered her doorbell three men forced her to lead two of them into the house while the third remained on the porch. In the front room of her home Mrs. Fry and her guests of the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Greener, 6158 South Albany avenue, were menaced by one of the gunmen while the other ransacked the house. The checks were found in a bedroom drawer.

The bandit even searched the basement, taking a fishing tackle box in the belief that valuables were hidden in it. The men then escaped in a car.

PASSENGER STABS CONDUCTOR.

Frederick Walpole, 36 years old, 6153 Rockwell street, a conductor on a Cottage Grove avenue car, was stabbed in the side Saturday night by a colored man he ordered off the car at 39th street. The man had presented an old transfer. Walpole was given first aid at the Chicago Memorial hospital.

SECURITY FUND OF WORKERS IS SPENT LAVISHLY

So-Called Reserve Shown to Be Fiction.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—How the Roosevelt administration is diverting social security reserves and other trust funds to the payment of current expenses of the government with inflationary results was disclosed in two quarters today.

John Taber.

The National Economy league issued an analysis of treasury statements disclosing the expenditure of nearly a billion dollars of old age pension and unemployment insurance tax revenue to date for which treasury I. O. U.'s were deposited in a fictitious reserve fund.

Tax More than Needed.

The league showed how working men and employers are being taxed more than is necessary for social security purposes in order to enable the Roosevelt administration to finance the deficit without borrowing more money or raising taxes.

Representative John Taber [R., N. Y.], ranking minority member of the house appropriations committee, tabulated 2½ billions of trust funds which the treasury has invested in its bonds.

"That simply means," said the congressman, "that when the time comes for withdrawal of these funds for uses as directed, the treasury department will have to start printing paper money."

So-Called Investment Shown.

The trust fund investments in treasury IOU's revealed by Taber follow:

Postal savings trust [purchased in open market by the trustees]—1 billion 100 millions.

Three per cent old age reserve account, series 1941-'42—456 millions.

Four per cent foreign service retirement funds, series 1938-'42—$3,441,000.

Two per cent Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, series maturing Dec. 1, 1939—95 millions.

Money Source Foreseen.

For the Roosevelt administration, in the extremity of its deficit financing, the social security taxes, amounting to a billion dollars this year, 2 billions next year, and 47 billions by 1980, have proved a veritable windfall. That this contingency was foreseen when the social security bill was passed now is recalled.

The house was passing a bill providing for a pay as you go system, but at the request of Treasury Secretary Morgenthau the reserve plan was approved.

The administration now is opposing a movement, initiated by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] to return to the original pay as you go plan that would deprive the treasury of the windfall.

Conclusions of the economy league's study are:

1. The problem of old age dependency is serious now, but it will become even more serious in future years, because of the increasing proportion of aged persons in the total population. It is proper that government should make provision for old age security, but if the costs are not met by sound financial measures the fundamental objective will not be attained.

2. The present old age reserve fund is a delusion and a snare. As now operated, it enables the federal government to lay hold of vast sums collected in pay roll taxes, far in excess of current benefits, and to use this money to pay current expenses. Thus it is an incentive for continued extravagant expenditure. When, and if, the budget is truly balanced, surplus receipts would be used merely to transfer the outstanding public debt to a treasury trust fund. Thus with balanced budgets and annual surpluses, employés and employers would have to bear the burden of reducing the public debt.

3. The full reserve plan is really a device for spending pay roll taxes and issuing treasury I O U's to a fictitious reserve fund, thus paying a disguised subsidy in the form of interest on a fictitious reserve.

4. The present fictitious reserve fund system should be replaced immediately with a simple pay as you go plan, supplemented by a small contingency reserve of not more than a billion dollars on hand at any time in cash to tide over years when taxes fall off.

The so-called reserve fund, says the league, is only a subsidy in disguise. This subsidy takes the form of interest payments on the government's bonds, which alone constitute the reserve fund. Such interest payments, obviously, only can come out of general tax receipts. For example, in 1980 it is estimated that benefit payments will total 3 billions 511 million dollars. This will be paid [a] by the estimated 2 billions 100 million dollars to be received in that year from pay roll taxes, and [b] by 1 billion 406 million dollars in interest on the so-called reserve fund. The latter sum can, of course, come from no other source than general tax receipts in that year.

What are the REAL FACTS about Coast to Coast flying?

A STATEMENT IN BEHALF OF AIR TRANSPORTATION BY W. A. PATTERSON, PRESIDENT, UNITED AIR LINES

THREE major airlines operate coast-to-coast routes and naturally are in competition with one another. Each line seeks, quite properly, to excel the others in the service it renders the public. This results in a high standard of efficiency.

Naturally the advertising of major airlines is competitive. However, in advertising, if any company deems it important to discuss terrain and weather, it should use U. S. Government facts and figures.

HERE ARE FACTS

No airline flies between the Atlantic and Pacific without crossing mountainous terrain. All three lines cross ranges of nearly equal height.

All three coast-to-coast airlines occasionally contend with unfavorable weather just as surface transportation systems do. None of these three airlines has a monopoly on clear weather. Hence, no cross-country airline can, in fairness to the public and the aviation industry, honestly advertise it possesses any substantial "edge" in flying weather or terrain.

UNITED flies fewer miles of mountainous terrain than the currently advertised "Low Level Route." Based on a normal airway width, the highest point on UNITED is lower than that on the other advertised route. BUT WHAT OF IT? UNITED'S route has as much sunshine and less annual precipitation (U. S. Weather Bureau), but again... what of it? These differences, although they might favor UNITED, are not truly significant. Therefore UNITED does not care to use them as advertising claims.

FUNDAMENTAL FACTORS

UNITED believes the public is more interested in the fundamental factors, airline equipment—on the ground and in the air—personnel, experience, and above all, operating policy and practices. These are the things which really matter.

Airlines, like all forms of transportation, have had accidents. UNITED recently experienced a most regrettable one. UNITED, in common with the whole aviation industry, strives unceasingly and spares no expense to increase the dependability of air transportation.

For example, the existence of high terrain on any airway is no longer significant in itself because of today's operating practices and the higher altitude efficiency of modern twin-engined airplanes.

More important than UNITED'S fewer miles of mountains and less precipitation on its course are UNITED'S new minimum flight altitudes. They are high enough to clear the highest terrain not only on the airway itself but for a total airway width of 50 miles or more.

It is important that UNITED now has on every airplane an automatic recording barograph to provide a positive check on maintenance of these minimum flight altitudes.

UNITED thinks even more important than its high percentage of sunshine is UNITED'S policy of canceling schedules under unfavorable conditions.

PILOT'S SALARIES

To illustrate UNITED'S conservatism, UNITED recently guaranteed its pilots a minimum monthly salary ($650.00) equivalent to their previous average monthly compensation, regardless of the number of trips flown or completed. Thus UNITED compensates pilots for their judgment in not attempting flights in doubtful weather as well as for completing flights in favorable weather.

These are examples of things which contribute to efficiency and dependability in air transportation. These operating policies plus the experience which has been gained by UNITED in 20,000 coast-to-coast flights are the things which in the long run command public interest and strengthen public confidence.

UNITED believes that air transportation today fully merits the patronage of the public, and it suggests that the public make fullest use of the splendid service provided by all airlines. Make your plans now to fly home at Christmas!

POLITICAL RULE OF WAGES, HOURS GETS TEST TODAY

House Ready to Consider Senate Bill.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—With the nation's business already hanging on the ropes congress tomorrow will start consideration of a scheme for political regulation of wages and hours, which leading economists have warned would deliver the knockout punch to the stricken fighter.

Pushed by President Roosevelt and the more radical of his advisers as a "must" measure to be enacted by this special session of congress, the legislation will come up for debate and a vote in the house. The measure to be considered is senate bill No. 2475 [Black-Connery], which was passed by the senate last summer.

House Group O. K.'s Amendment.

"S 2475" would set up a five man presidential board with dictatorial powers over wages and hours in industry. The house labor committee already has voted to amend "S 2475" on the floor to substitute a single political administrator for the quintet.

Lines were forming tonight for the most bitter struggle of the extraordinary session. Southern Democrats, who fear "S 2475" will sound the death knell for budding industries in their states, are leading the opposition.

Representative Martin Dies [D., Tex.], one of these leaders, revealed that a poll of the house had netted 202 congressmen who have promised to recommit the bill to the labor committee. This would bury "S 2475" for the special session at least.

Expect Recommittal Victory.

The poll showed that all except a handful of the southern members would vote for recommittal, Dies said. They would be joined by two-thirds of the Republican minority and sufficient votes from the middle west and rural sections of the east to defeat the scheme, the Texan predicted.

Dies declared that "S 2475" would revive the headaches and nightmares of the old invalidated NRA.

"We would have an increase in the cost of living all along the line," said Dies, "and industries would lower their wages and increase their hours to the levels decreed under this plan. Chiselers would take every advantage of the working man."

Sees Danger to Business.

Similar views were expressed by Representative E. E. Cox [D., Ga.].

"Passage of this bill would be the worst thing that could happen to business at this time," said Cox. "It would throw a million people out of employment."

Representative Sam D. McReynolds [D., Tenn.] characterized the administrator plan as czaristic. According to the poll taken by the opposition, thirty-five of the members who signed the petition to bring "S 2475" to the floor would vote against it when the roll was called.

Majority Leader Sam Rayburn [D., Tex.] professed confidence that the administration sponsored measure would be adopted by the house either Tuesday or Wednesday.

What Bill Provides.

The majority leadership will not step into the scrap over whether a presidential board or a single administrator should be vested with the new powers, it was learned. Instead, it will concentrate its fire on the American Federation of Labor bill which was introduced several days ago by Representative John F. Dockweiler [D., Cal.].

The Dockweiler bill would have congress set a flat minimum wage of 40 cents an hour, a maximum work week of forty hours, and the prohibition of child labor.

Hold 18 Hr. Service; Read New Testament in Entirety

Scranton, Kas., Dec. 12.—(AP)—The Scranton Methodist church held an 18-hour service today. Starting at 3 a. m., 72 members of the congregation took turns reading aloud from the New Testament until they had read it in its entirety.

Mitchell, Ind., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—A 7 month old white Wyandotte pullet on the farm of Edgar J. Eckensberger Jr. and his father, L. Milton Chess, southeast of here, is making a habit of laying giant eggs. A thin shelled white egg, weighing six ounces, three times the weight of an average egg, was found in the pullet's nest recently, and twice since it has laid eggs of the same size, but they were broken when found. The pullet is about half again as large as the average.

COLORADO BARS USE OF WORKERS' PENSION FUNDS

Denver, Colo., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Colorado is paying nearly $1,500,000 monthly under its $45 a month old age pension plan, the highest in the nation, while nearly 40 state departments or 10 educational institutions may be closed because of lack of funds.

State officials, in need of 4 million dollars to operate regular state departments, are prevented by law from using nearly a million dollars of unused pension funds. This jackpot is to be distributed among the pensioners in January as a bonus, provided by the constitutional amendment that established the pension plan.

While seeking to unravel the financial tangle officials are eyeing more than 41 millions of earmarked funds that are bulging the state treasury, but these cannot be used to pay general fund warrants.

Wabash Railroad Abandons 3 Morgan County Stations

Jacksonville, Ill., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Three stations in Morgan county, Markham, Arnold and Orleans have been abandoned by the Wabash railroad. The passenger depots will be removed. The station at Orleans will be maintained only as a shipping point. These stations were productive centers of railway business in a former generation before the advent of automobiles did away with the need of many farm marketing centers.

DYNAMITE TRIAL OF 36 MINERS IS NEAR CLOSE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—With the defense nearing the close of its case, the bomb conspiracy trial growing out of the Illinois mine war that lasted from 1932 to 1935 goes into its fifth week tomorrow in the federal court here. Seventeen of the thirty-six defendants already have testified and several more are expected to take the stand before the defense rests Tuesday.

Government prosecutors have informed Federal Judge Charles G. Briggle that they will require one day for rebuttal. Final arguments and the judge's instructions to the jury probably will take another day and the likelihood now is that the case will go to the jury Thursday night.

The jurors have been locked up since the beginning of the trial on Nov. 15, but one of them, J. T. Stribling of Ashland, was allowed to go home this week-end because of the death of his mother-in-law.

U. OF I. STUDENT BODY HAILS FROM ALL OVER WORLD

Urbana, Ill., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Cook county provides more than 27 per cent of the 12,491 students on the main campus of the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign and more than 67 per cent of the 1,151 students in the colleges of medicine, pharmacy and dentistry located in Chicago, a tabulation made public today reveals.

Every county of Illinois, each of the forty-eight states except Nevada, three United States possessions, and 16 foreign countries are represented among the 13,642 resident students on the two campuses. According to the tabulations, 88 per cent of the students come from Illinois, 11½ per cent from other states and less than ½ per cent from other parts of the world.

Eighteen of the 102 Illinois counties have 100 or more students in the state university, and together provide more than 70 per cent of the Illinois enrollment.

Moving Forward

Marshall Field & Company presents here each day observations and opinions intended to be of interest and value to those it seeks to serve.

GOOD BUTCHER

By CALEB

THE chairman of the board of a great eastern railroad sat in his impressive office some years ago, a few minutes before going to the directors' room for an important meeting.

While he sat there, there was brought into his office by another director a man recently elected, who had come to his first board meeting. The chairman—a generally pompous person—sat serenely in what seemed to be a deeply upholstered chair. But actually he was resting in his weighty way on several generations of aristocratic and wealthy ancestors, depending upon them generally to create and bolster his prestige.

The gentleman who was ushering in the new director spoke to the chairman. "This is Mr. W——, our new director, Mr. Chairman."

The man with the illustrious ancestors looked up without rising from his chair. "Mr. W——, eh? How do you do? I remember when I was a child in this city, my mother used to stop her carriage and buy meat of a Mr. W——. Was he any relation of yours?"

"I am that Mr. W——," he answered, and confidently and proudly he added, "Moreover, I was a good butcher, Mr. Chairman."

●

THIS oft-repeated story has impressed many people that Mr. W—— was a man of quick response. It impresses me that Mr. W—— was a fortunate man. The essence of the situation is in the towering stature of the pride within an individual who does his job really well—a pride which refuses to be looked down upon by any man in any position.

The man or woman who is a good butcher or baker or candlestick maker is never at a disadvantage among his fellows.

We operate here on the theory that goodness should be unqualified in all possible directions. Here there is no place for the cheap and the shoddy.

It is common for any Field employe to have people say, upon learning of his or her connection, "Oh, I bought so-and-so from Field's the other day."

Whether the so-and-so is a fur coat or a paring knife, we believe it should be possible for the employe addressed to say, "I'm glad you did. If you bought it at Field's, it's a good one."

RUSSIANS CAST BALLOTS EARLY IN GAY ELECTION

Soviets Have Fun but Few Choices in First Vote.

MOSCOW, Dec. 12.—(AP)—With hands playing and Red banners flying, the soviet masses literally paraded to the polls today and elected a supreme soviet with Joseph Stalin, their undisputed leader, the unanimous choice for one of their seats.

The first secret, direct election in the history of Russia brought out most of the 90,000,000 qualified electors. The voting for 1,143 members of the two chamber parliament virtually was a ratification of nominations made a month ago. Few candidates were opposed.

A radio announcement after the polls closed said the electorate in some districts of Moscow and the soviet far east voted 100 per cent except for those too ill to go to the polls.

In the Moscow district where Stalin was a candidate everybody who was able had cast a ballot by 10 p. m., so the polls were closed two hours early. The total number of votes was not announced, however.

Three Officials in Trouble.

The election gave impetus to rumors three prominent soviet officials were in political difficulties, if not more serious trouble. In addition to the unexplained replacement of Vice Premier Valery Mezhlauk as a candidate by Ernest Krenkel, radio operator of the soviet polar camp, two other changes were disclosed today.

Gen. J. I. Alksnis-Astrov, chief of the air corps, and Gen. Gustav Bokis, chief of the tank corps, were replaced on the ballot just before the election. Alksnis-Astrov, who was a member of the court martial that condemned to death Marshal Michail Tukhachevsky for treason, gave way to Ivan Maslennikoff, a frontier guards officer. Bokis was supplanted by Lieut. Daniel Novitsky, who was born in 1913, the year Bokis joined the Communist party.

Radio Programs at Polls.

Because of the sharp cold—15 degrees below zero Fahrenheit—doors of the polling places were opened when the first voters appeared hours before 6 a. m.

Voters were invited inside, where they listened to special radio programs until the election was declared open. Some of the first had to wait about an hour for their turn at the booths, but after that the streams of voters dropped ballots in the boxes without delay.

In each district the elector had to vote for but two candidates—one for the soviet of the union, the other for the soviet of nationalities, corresponding roughly to the United States house of representatives and senate, respectively.

REPORT GIRL BETTER AFTER PLUNGE FROM MOVING AUTOMOBILE

Miss Bernice Vaitiekas, 21 years old, 4049 South Maplewood avenue, who was said to have leaped from a moving automobile at Western avenue and 39th street late Saturday night because she didn't want to go home so early, regained consciousness and was recovering yesterday at the Southtown hospital, 5701 South Wood street. She did not explain her act. Her escort, Alfred Butkus, 25 years old, 3500 South Union avenue, and two companions, who were driving her home, were held for questioning at the Brighton Park police station.

TROTZKY FOUND NOT GUILTY; RED RUSSIA ASSAILED

World Board of Inquiry Verdict Is Unanimous.

New York, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Leon Trotzky, the bolshevist without a country, was declared innocent tonight by an international commission of inquiry of Russian charges of terrorism, sabotage and Fascist conspiracy.

This finding was read by the commission's chairman, Dr. John Dewey, 78 years old, noted philosopher and liberal author who, in the past, has defended communism.

As he delivered the report, the white haired professor told his audience that the communist party is repudiating the principles of truth and justice upon which the foundations of civilization are laid.

Calls Trial a Frameup.

Its action, he said, signifies a danger against which our own people must guard themselves without illusion and without compromise.

The commission decided the sensational trial of a year ago, in which a Russian court found Trotzky guilty, was a frame-up. Trotzky, absent from Russia at the time, subsequently made his home in Mexico where he still lives.

The report was eight months in preparation. The commission collected documents and depositions from ten different nations concerning the activities of Trotzky and found him innocent of the Russian charges.

Findings Are Unanimous.

The ten members of the commission were unanimous in their findings. A summary follows:

"Independent of extrinsic evidence, the commission finds that the conduct of the Moscow trials was such as to convince any unprejudiced person that no effort was made to ascertain the truth.

"We find that Trotzky never instructed any of the accused or witnesses in the Moscow trials to enter into agreements with foreign powers against the soviet union.

"On the basis of all the evidence we find that Trotzky never recommended, plotted, or attempted the restoration of capitalism in the U. S. S. R.

"We find that the prosecutor fantastically falsified Trotzky's rôle before, during, and after the October [1917] revolution.

"We, therefore, find the Moscow trials to be a frame-up.

SOVIET GIVES NO CLEW TO FATE OF AMERICAN COUPLE

MOSCOW, Dec. 12.—(AP)—American representations to the soviet foreign office failed to produce any clew today to the mysterious disappearance of Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Robinson of New York. Robinson vanished from his hotel Dec. 2 and his wife dropped from sight a week later after telling friends that hotel officials had said Robinson was taken to a hospital, the name of which was not given.

American circles assumed the Robinsons were not under arrest, since soviet failure to notify the embassy within 72 hours would have violated the agreement under which the United States recognized Russia.

Is there a Low-Level Airway through Southern Sunshine TO CALIFORNIA?

EVERY California-bound traveler should ask that question. It's important. Fortunately, the answer is—YES!

There is ONE low-level airway to California. Nature designed it. And only American Airlines uses it.

American's route turns immediately south out of Chicago . . . Touches St. Louis . . . Arrives quickly in Oklahoma's friendly temperature . . . Continues south to sunny Texas . . . and then follows the plains and deserts of the Southwest to California.

Call it the low-level route—call it the sunshine route . . . or the better weather route . . . or the greater comfort route—the fact is that this one nature-favored airway is the best route from Chicago to the Pacific Coast any week of the year.

The Southern Route to the Sun Country

It is the route of the largest and most powerful airplanes ever to cross America. Day in and day out, the whole year 'round, these mighty luxurious Flagships of American Airlines are flying their swift, smooth way from Chicago to California—Overnight!

This better route and these proud Flagships typify American's way of fulfilling its obligation to the public. They explain why it is that the traveling public has made American the largest airline in the U. S. A. It carries and has carried more passengers than any other airline in the world. During the first 10 months of 1937 alone, more than a quarter million discerning travelers chose American—virtually one-third of the total air-passenger traffic in this country

These figures are important. They call for attention. They say—plainly—"Next time . . . GO AMERICAN!"

IRELAND AGAIN LOOMS AS THORN TO BRITISH RULE

Separation Quarrel Still Is Unsettled.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Dec. 12.—Ireland, or Eire [pronounced Airy] as it will be known beginning Dec. 29, has again become the Achilles heel of the British empire.

Map shows division of island between Eire and Northern Ireland.

Political observers here expect that renewed attempts will be made shortly to settle the long standing conflict between London and Dublin. Settlement of the Anglo-Irish controversy, they say, is called for for two reasons:

FIRST—With war threatening, England needs a friendly Ireland to furnish food and supplies;

SECOND—British efforts to draw closer to the United States cannot have a successful issue, they believe, until differences with Ireland are settled because of many millions of people in the United States of Irish parentage.

Settlement Deemed Necessary.

Parliamentary attention has, in fact, been called to recent statements that the British cannot attain good relations with America until they have settled their disputes with Eire.

The fact that Ireland still holds a key position in the empire scheme of things possibly explains the further fact that the British have left the Irish to follow their own path as long as they don't attack Ulster [Northern Ireland] or allow themselves to be used as a base for foreign powers.

The British haven't contested the new Irish constitution which flouts King George VI. of England and sets up a metaphysical semi-republic of twenty-six out of thirty-two Irish counties. Eamon de Valera, president of the Irish Free State [now Ireland or Eire under its new constitution] recently has given assurances that there is no danger of either.

Union a Hot Subject.

The proposed union of the six northern counties with twenty-six southern ones is a hot subject here just now. It is also across the border. It's accomplishment may or may not be near. Some persons say there has been a shift of opinion in Ulster in the direction of "reintegration." Unemployment is bad there, too. Some say it is useless to talk of union for at least another twenty years.

What some here think might be a permanent basis for settlement between the Irish and the English—a basis which would satisfy even extremists perhaps—would provide for the regulation of Anglo-Irish affairs on the basis of an international treaty between them along the lines of the treaty between Grea. Britain and Egypt, or Great Britain and Iraq. This would mean Irish independence.

Three Main Issues.

Issues between England and the Irish Free State in the present conflict are roughly three.

FIRST—The British support the partition of Ireland into Ulster and the Free State, which southern Irishmen consider a direct challenge to their nationalism.

SECOND—The economic war between the Irish Free State and England over the de Valera government's refusal to pay about $25,000,000 annually as annuities on British investments made to develop Irish farmlands. This led to a tarif war, which was compromised to some extent by barter agreements to exchange coal against cattle.

THIRD—British admiralty control of several Irish ports in the name of defense.

Under the 1922 treaty, the British admiralty has rights of occupation and control over harbors and dockyards of Bantry Bay, also of Cobh, Belfast, Lough, and Lough Seilly. Irish national feeling is that this country is not free and independent so long as it is bound unwillingly to certain defense restrictions. De Valera now says that Ireland is ready and willing to undertake its coastal defense so that no foreign country could use it as a base of attack against Britain.

REPORTS 73 PCT. OF 1936 REALTY LEVY COLLECTED

Tax Payments in County Best Since 1928.

Tabulation of the final mail payments received before the Dec. 1 penalty date on 1936 real estate taxes showed that real estate owners had paid a higher percentage of their taxes than on any levy since that of 1928, County Treasurer Horace G. Lindheimer announced yesterday.

Collections up to the penalty date totaled $112,043,134, which was 73.4 per cent of the total taxes extended against real estate, $152,653,163. The 1928 levy was 75.69 per cent collected at the penalty date which, after postponements due to delays in getting tax bills out, finally fell on Sept. 1, 1930. Not since that time has so large a proportion of property owners paid taxes on time. At the depth of the depression the payments before penalties began to accrue fell below 50 per cent on two levies, those of 1930 and 1932.

More Play by Mail.

The delay in finding the total of payments was due to the large volume of last minute payments received by mail. Small taxpayers are adopting this method more and more to avoid the inconveniences of the last minute jam in the treasurer's office. This year the office handled 207,000 mail payments, and set a record in clearing them up within seven working days.

Release of the official collection figure put a feather in the cap of George E. Hagenauer, veteran auditor of the treasurer's office. On Dec. 1, before the mail payments were counted, Mr. Hagenauer estimated payments at 73 per cent of the levy, less than half of 1 per cent off the actual total.

The total taxes extended against real estate in Cook county since 1928, and the amounts paid before the dates on which penalties of 1 per cent a month began to accure for nonpayment, were as follows:

Levy—	Extensions.	Collections.
1928	$168,549,042	$127,585,572
1929	202,421,527	118,656,604
1930	221,452,089	106,783,572
1931	179,915,404	105,836,068
1932	140,578,201	68,369,904
1933	115,408,420	66,648,495
1934	125,541,800	83,065,344
1935	138,986,060	90,972,447

Reflects Earning Power.

The penalty date collection record reflects in fairly accurate fashion the earning power of real estate in Cook county during the depression. The 1928 taxes were collected when the depression was nearly a year old, but rents had only started their downward slide.

Penalty date collections slid down to the all time low of 48.22 per cent on the 1930 levy. This was the period when the tax strike conducted by the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers was at its height and before the legal theories on which the association advised its followers to withhold their taxes had been knocked out by the courts.

Collections of the 1931 levy in the fall of 1933 were given a temporary stimulant by the passage of the Skarda act, permitting appointment of receivers to collect delinquent taxes on income property, but there was a slump the next year, and the real climb did not start until the summer of 1935 on the 1933 levy, when rents started to climb and vacancies of rented property to decline.

Figures Are Deceiving.

It is doubtful if the 1936 record just set is actually much better than the 65.45 per cent collected on the 1935 levy last February. Last spring taxpayers who intended to object to part of their tax bills in the courts withheld the portion which they intended to protest, while on the 1936 levy most of them paid the taxes, but under protest, subject to recovery on court orders if their objections are withheld.

A similar situation affects personal property tax collections for 1936, which are now 62 per cent paid. This is the highest total paid to date on any levy since that of 1929, which has been in collection six years. The last session of the legislature passed a law requiring the treasurer to hold all protested personal property collections for a year. This will reduce materially the amount of money the treasurer can distribute to tax spending bodies. The reserves which he must set up for protested real estate taxes are left to his own discretion, however.

Railroads Slow in Paying.

Railroad taxes for 1936 were 75.8 per cent paid, a low figure for this classification. Railroads in the past have usually paid close to 90 per cent of the bills on time, filing rate or valuation objections on the remainder in court.

The higher delinquency rate this year is due principally to the fact that the Chicago Rapid Transit company, operating the "L" lines, has paid nothing on its 1935 or 1936 bills and only a portion of its 1934 taxes pending disposition of objections filed in court. The company's bills for 1935 totaled $978,145, which was 9 per cent of the total levy against railroads, and for 1936 were $971,789, more than 8 per cent of the levy. The North Shore line has also failed to make its Cook county tax payments for two years.

Lima, O., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Although extradition of Virgil F. Effinger, reputed chief of the Black Legion, was approved here Friday by Judge E. E. Everett, he remained here today through a stay of execution. Effinger is charged with criminal syndicalism and possession of a bomb and is wanted for trial in Detroit as an outgrowth of the Black Legion terrorism in Michigan. The stay was granted to permit a possible appeal to the District court.

Stab Prison's Head Guard; Troops Hurl Gas.

courts and that their freedom could not be permitted. Then he told the prisoners that unless they surrendered he would call troops to dislodge them.

Pledges No Punishment.

"If you boys walk out of there and let Capt. Sanders walk out first I will see that nothing goes against your records," he finally cried in desperation.

"Get us a car, leave the motor running, open the gates, and clear the yard of guards or it'll be too bad for Sanders," some one replied.

By this time 18 members of a National Guard machine gun company had arrived inside the prison yard. They were armed and carried tear gas bombs.

Guardsmen Batter Down Door.

Bombs were thrown through the window and a few minutes later guardsmen battered down the office door. Sanders was lying on the floor, bleeding from the wounds that caused his death a few minutes later in the prison hospital.

The convicts were overcome by the gas. As the air cleared several recovered sufficiently to make a show of resistance. They soon were clubbed into submission and all were taken to the hospital, where they are recovering.

There was no other disorder in the prison today. Other prisoners returned to their cells after breakfast and none knew of the effort of the six to escape and the killing until tonight.

Two Desperate Prisoners.

William B. Woods, 24 years old, and serving ten years for highway robbery, was the leader of the escape plot. He is from Biloxi, Miss. He was supported by James V. Blair, 27 years old of Sumter, S. C., who is serving two concurrent terms of two years each and a 15 year term, all for robbery. Both were considered to be desperate prisoners, each having lost his statutory right to time off for good behavior through previous efforts to escape.

Others who took part in the attempted break were Herman Moorman, 41 years old, of Grand Rapids, Mich., a fugitive chicken thief who walked away from the prison farm at Jackson, Mich., when he was a trusty serving from four to fifteen years and was sentenced here for ten years for robbery; Roy Suttles, 28 years old, from Simsonville, S. C., serving 17 years for robbery; Clayton Crans, 28 years old, of Buffalo, N. Y., doing two years for housebreaking, and George Wingard, 22 years old, of Columbia, sentenced to 18 months, also for housebreaking.

Columbia prison houses 1,038 convicts, 122 of them women. The prison population is preponderately colored. Only prisoners physically unable to work or those considered to be incorrigible are sent to this prison. Other prisoners are kept in the counties in which they are convicted to work on the highways.

Many Work on State Farm.

Convicts here who are able to work are occupied in prison factories where furniture, garments and automobile license plates are manufactured. About 300 are required for operation of the prison and a large number work on a state farm seven miles away. These are returned to the prison each night. At another farm 42 miles away 237 convicts are employed. These are short term prisoners and those who have little time left to serve.

All of the convicts involved in the attempted break today are assigned to work within the walls. In the factories they had access to certain tools and for this reason it was possible for them to fashion the sharp piece of steel, resembling an ice pick which is believed to have been used in killing Capt. Sanders. They also obtained the material used in making the fake pistol.

The attempted break recalled a similar situation that arose in the Colorado state penitentiary at Canon City on Oct. 4, 1929. There five desperate convicts headed by Danny Daniels, a murderer in prison for life, led 150 others in a mutiny that lasted from noon until the following dawn.

As in the attempted break here today demands were made for automobiles and a clear way to freedom. Denied their demand, the Colorado convicts seized seven guards and barricaded themselves in a cell house. Two guards were shot to death by Daniels and their bodies were tossed from windows. Then two more were bound, stood against a wall and murdered. In the fighting that followed three more guards were slain. Daniels finally realizing he would not be released, killed two of his followers and committed suicide.

Escaped Elgin Inmate Surrenders to Police

John J. McCarthy, 33 years old, formerly of 1426 West Van Buren street, walked into the Warren avenue police station last night and asked for help. "I escaped from the Elgin Hospital for the Insane last April," he said. "Now I'm cold and I can't get on relief and want to go back." Learning from the hospital staf that McCarthy's story was true, the police sent him to the Psychopathic hospital for the night.

EX-LEGISLATOR IN SHOWUP; SNAPS DENIAL OF FRAUD

William F. Gillmeister, former Democratic state senator, who was arrested Saturday night after he had allegedly accepted $150 in marked money on the promise that he would obtain the reinstatement of Fred Parker, a former city policeman, was nettled yesterday when he was taken to the showup at the detective bureau with other prisoners.

William F. Gillmeister.

Lieut. Archie Kane asked the former senator the reason for his arrest. "I have no idea," he snapped. Asked if he had not accepted $150 to get back a former policeman's job for him, he shouted a denial.

The former legislator was ordered held for further investigation.

EX-ENGINEER DIES.

600 CASTAWAYS BOARD RESCUE LINER IN PACIFIC

Marooned Two Days on Formosan Isle.

MANILA, Dec. 13 [Monday].—(AP)—Some 600 passengers of the grounded liner President Hoover began boarding a rescue vessel early today after being marooned thirty-six hours on Formosan Islands, where the big ship piled up in darkness Saturday morning.

Officials of the Dollar Line, operators of the $8,000,000 luxury liner, said another company vessel, the President McKinley, is taking the passengers aboard and would bring them here. They did not know how long the transfer would require, but expected the President McKinley here late Wednesday afternoon or night.

Vessel Not in Danger.

The United States destroyer Barker, one of two warships which sped 500 miles from here to aid the liner, reported in messages heard at Shanghai that the vessel was not in immediate danger.

Previous reports had pictured the 21,900 ton ship as leaking and pounding heavily on a reef off Hoishoto Island, east of Formosa, where she struck while sailing a new course from Japan to Manila.

Dollar Line officials in San Francisco said 200 of the passengers had been removed from Hoishoto to nearby Hayake Island, where wooden houses were available, and that three tugs and the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Asia were en route to aid.

Committee to Aid Passengers.

Manila Red Cross officials announced they would set up a committee to aid any passengers who might have lost their belongings when the vessel struck.

The President McKinley turned from its course Saturday as soon as it received messages stating the President Hoover had grounded. The rescue ship was expected to bring along 2,000 bags of the wrecked liner's mail, including many Christmas packages, with the Hoover's passengers.

YOUTH LEADERS URGED TO JOIN FIGHT ON SYPHILIS

More than 200 representatives of youth organiations were warned yesterday by Dr. Rachelle Yarros, executive secretary of the Illinois Social Hygiene league, that syphilis is one of the most serious problems confronting their generation. She urged them to lead their respective groups in a campaign against the disease.

The warning was given at a meeting in the Morrison hotel, held to make plans for an All-Chicago Model Youth Congress in March.

Drops Divorce Suit

MRS. THOMAS F. RYAN II.

Sheridan, Wyo., Dec. 11. — Mrs. Mayme Masters Ryan, daughter of a coal mine weighmaster and wife of Thomas Fortune Ryan II, has requested that her suit for divorce, filed recently at Cheyenne be withdrawn. Mrs. May P. Haywood, clerk of the Circuit court here, today revealed she had notarized Mrs. Ryan's request.

Ryan, a son of John R. Ryan, prominent New York financier, married his second wife in June, 1931, nine months after he and Margaret M Rea of Pittsburgh, Pa., had been divorced. The first marriage lasted 22 months.

Two months after the second marriage Ryan announced he had been disinherited by his family and that he would resist steps by his parents to have the marriage annulled. Ryan once filed suit for divorce from his present wife, but withdrew the action within a few days, saying charges he made against her were untrue.

LOST: ONE BIRTHRIGHT.

At 12:01 a. m. on Dec. 16 the price of coal is going up. That is the work of the bituminous coal commission, youngest among the alphabetical agencies of the federal government. At the lowest estimate, 40 million dollars a year will be added to the annual cost of living and doing business in the United States. Other estimates of the added cost run as high as 300 million dollars.

In the same issue of THE TRIBUNE in which the higher prices were announced, Thomas Furlong told of the visit of 600 mining engineers and business men to inspect a new strip mine near Canton, Ill., a mine which is described as the most efficient coal producer in the world. The seam lies from thirty to fifty feet below the surface. The biggest shovel in the world, itself weighing 1,250 tons, removes the covering layer in forty ton bites. When the coal has been laid bare it is easily broken with blasting pellets and then scooped up by a smaller shovel which handles from five to seven tons of coal at a lift. In the ordinary shaft mine the daily production is six to eight tons to the man employed. In this operation the average production per man is eighty tons.

Will Chicago, Illinois, and the central states generally obtain the full benefit from this efficiency? Not if the bituminous coal commission at Washington sets the kind of prices it was created to decree. The theory of the law is that coal must be sold at a price which will be sufficiently high to assure profits to owners of relatively inefficient mines. That is what is called "stabilization." By means of it householders and industries throughout this area may be deprived of an important natural advantage.

That, of course, is no new experience for citizens of this part of the country. It so happens that our central states constitute, by and large, the most richly endowed region in the nation, and probably in the world as well, for both agriculture and industry. Our people often forget that fundamental fact, perhaps because our winter climate is not so appealing as that of Florida or California and our parties are less alluring than those of Long Island. If orange and prune orchards and suburban estates bulked large in the national wealth we would be out of luck, for all we have is an extraordinarily efficient layout for the production of coal, power, steel, machinery, and chemicals, bread, meat, and dairy products, to mention but a few of the specialties which can be produced here cheaply and in great abundance.

In addition, we have a natural advantage in transportation. Because our land is flat and our rivers easily bridged, roads and railways can be constructed here with a minimum of effort, and operating costs are correspondingly low. We have, also, the most efficient inland waterway in the world [which is also the most intensively used] at our door.

The tendency of government regulation of output and prices is always to benefit the inefficient, the backward, the ill-endowed, at the expense of the efficient, the progressive, and the richly endowed. When Mr. Wallace ordered our farmers in Iowa, Illinois and Indiana to reduce their corn acreage he was forcing out of production acres capable of producing fifty to sixty bushels or more for the skilful farmers who tilled them. The same order issued to a backward farmer in a less favored region meant a loss of only fifteen to twenty bushels to the acre, and perhaps even less.

When the interstate commerce commission imposed its scheme of fixing railroad rates on a mileage basis a shipper in Kankakee had to pay as much to haul his goods to market in Chicago as it would have cost to send the same shipment the same distance over the Pennsylvania mountains, where railroad building is vastly more expensive and operating costs are also higher.

The NRA and all the subsequent attempts to control industrial output and prices worked to the same end. The aim of such regulation always is to force the efficient to reduce production or raise prices for the benefit of the inefficient. Because of our richer natural endowment these schemes almost always work to our disadvantage and at the same time breed unemployment.

Agriculture and industry in the half dozen states of which Chicago is the economic capital have been victimized by the measures which were supposed to restore prosperity. The beneficiaries, if any, have been found in other less favored sections. We have paid the bill. The new mine near Canton stands as a symbol of the injustice.

HOSPITAL REFORM THAT REFORMS.

While our community is digesting the report on the County hospital and its recommendations for corrections, improvements, and radical reforms, it will be interested to know what is being accomplished in New York City to improve the care of its indigent sick.

In 1934 Dr. S. S. Goldwater—then director of Mount Sinai hospital [New York] and one of the country's most distinguished hospital experts—became commissioner of hospitals of New York City. Under Dr. Goldwater's jurisdiction there are between thirty and forty thousand hospital beds in twenty-nine different institutions. In addition, the City of New York uses available beds in sixty-six private hospitals to which were admitted during the last year nearly eighty thousand patients.

It would be difficult to overestimate the value of Dr. Goldwater's service to the indigent sick of New York. Duplication of effort has been eliminated and a long distance planning program has been instituted. For the first time there is coordination of effort equal in efficiency to a well organized and conducted business.

A study of chronically ill has resulted in plans for a chronic-convalescent hospital on Wefare Island, which is now under construction. This will relieve hospitals for the acutely ill of those patients who are obliged to remain under care for months.

In the first year of his administration Dr. Goldwater saved a half million dollars in the elimination of useless employés. He established an appointment system based strictly upon efficiency and reorganized the purchasing of all supplies and equipment on a businesslike basis which has resulted in like savings. He organized a medical research council in conjunction with the medical schools of New York City which is making great progress in the conquest of disease and improved methods of treatment.

What has been and is being done by Dr. Goldwater can be done for Cook county. The Cutter committee has shown the way. What is essential is full power in the right hands.

MOVING OUT OF NEW YORK.

The economies of large scale production have made for tremendous increases in the size of producing units in the United States. In scarcely any industry were the potentialities of reducing costs greater than in iron and steel. It was, therefore, natural that the country's largest manufacturing business was in that industry.

Unquestionably the United States Steel corporation has had a lower cost of production than any other steel producer. No competitor could turn out steel as cheaply. This was because of the specialization and integration of its mechanical equipment.

But although there are advantages in large scale production, management may not be equal to the resulting burdens imposed upon it. Thus, of the 106 corporations which ranked at the top in 1930, fourteen had by 1934 either gone into bankruptcy or had been reorganized to avoid that step. The difficulties of managing so large an enterprise as United States Steel were bound to be great. They were increased by the conditions surrounding the creation of the corporation. For to create a company so vast as this one was a great financial operation. As financial men had brought about the merger, financial men determined the policies of the company. Big Steel was run from New York.

This worked well so long as there was an active demand for all the steel that could be produced. But when steel orders fell to a low point, the far-away control of the big steel mills by the big financiers in New York became a serious detriment. The companies whose policies were determined by the operating officers on the job played rings around Big Steel. In three years of deficits the company lost about 130 million dollars. Throughout this same period several smaller companies which were not handicapped by the inflexibilities of absentee direction earned profits continuously.

With steel production at 27 per cent of capacity, the steel corporation is again confronted with profitless operations. To place itself in a position to cope with the quick adjustments that will be made by competitors from time to time, it has just announced that operating men are taking over the functions of direction formerly performed by the board of directors. Big Steel is to be run by men who know about steel, instead of by men who know only about finance. This moves the main direction from New York to Pittsburgh and Chicago. Our biggest industrial corporation may be in for a period of losses, but it isn't going to be held back by a home office in New York, the handicap which it carried through the last depression, and which some other companies still are carrying.

Editorials of the Day

WHY NOT CLARIFY THE WAGNER ACT?

[New York Daily News.]

The state labor relations board, administering New York's "little Wagner act," has this week cleared up a point that is still unclear and a trouble maker in the big Wagner act applying all over the country.

A New York state employer caught between two rival labor factions trying to organize his workers—between the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O., for example—can henceforth ask for an election under state labor board auspices. The employés will then decide by secret ballot which union they want to represent them for collective bargaining. Safeguards are set up to prevent phenagling and double crossing by any of the parties involved.

The nation-wide Wagner act is vague on this point. Result: Some regional labor boards allow the employer to request an election, others don't. Further result: Jurisdictional strikes, with the employer unable to settle them, and the losers generally being everybody except the labor leader whose union finally wins the right to represent the workers.

Congress ought to clarify the Wagner act on this point—by amending it, we believe, to permit either the employer or the employés to request and get an election. The act as now written has operated to settle many labor disputes; but it has also operated to start or prolong futile and wasteful jurisdictional strikes.

LABOR RACKETS.

[Indianapolis News.]

The indictment at Cleveland of a number of so-called labor leaders on charges that they used their union positions to extort money from employers may serve the useful purpose, when the cases come to trial, of further informing members of the labor unions of one of the risks that they run unless they retain control of their unions. In the recent New York racket trials it was shown that racketeers advanced to their crime by joining labor unions, showing great activity, winning offices, and then not only gouging employers by threats to stop their business but also looting the union treasuries.

The complaints leading to the Cleveland indictments were from members of the unions, who accused six of their leaders of agitating strikes for the sole purpose of forcing employers to pay for a settlement that would enable them to continue the job. The union members lost money by this forced idleness.

The principal national labor leaders can do much to protect members from labor racketeers by urging them to take an active part in the affairs of their locals and to insist on complete financial reports in open meetings. The cause of unionism suffers a loss of prestige every time one of these rackets is exposed.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

THE RADIO ROOM from which roving police squads are dispatched is quite as fascinating as radio listeners find its messages. Here are received all telephone calls to Police 1313. The operator who gets the call says never a word when a flash on her board announces it, but switches it to the desk of any of the other ten girls who may be idle. If it's a shooting, the girl who takes the report buzzes the radio operator and pushes over a key so that he may listen through a head phone as she repeats the complaint and address. That way he's broadcasting it by the time she has finished writing her report. In any case she hands her report to one of nine or ten men seated at a big table. By a direct telephone wire he notifies the district station, where the desk sergeant decides whether to send men over from the station or have a squad or two sent by radio. If he wants the radio operator to take care of everything the report is slipped through the window slot of the broadcasting room, where the broadcaster, Policeman Albert Zahlava the night we were there, touches a button opposite the number of the district whence the complaint comes. Lights flash on to show which squads are available there. The broadcaster pushes a lever to open the transmitter of the north, south, or west side radio station, and orders one or more of those squads to the scene. Sometimes a squad has been so close that bandits were caught in the act. A central station for the entire city would require so much volume it would interfere with entertainment broadcasts; so there's one at the Town Hall, Wabash avenue, and Warren avenue stations. In shootings, people who telephone get indignant when asked details, and shout: "Catch 'em first. I'll tell you all about it later." The operators tell them, then, to be patient, for squads are already on the way.

SLOGANEERS TIGHTEN GRIP.

If you telephone the Chamber of Commerce of Montrose, Cal., the switchboard girl will greet you with "Montrose, the Gateway to the Green Verdugo Hills; Montrose, Where the Sun Shines First; Montrose Chamber of Commerce." Leo Mayer of Montrose spent money on a telegram to let the Line know. He blames it all upon a slogan contest. They added the new one to the old.

MOST ROBOTS are expected to do their work perfectly, but the mechanical tennis player at the Naval Reserve armory is purposely tricked into the same errors as the people he's helping with their game. When two buckets of tennis balls are dumped into him some will be old and some new and some in-between. Try as he will to hit them all just alike, the height they bounce will vary tremendously. Moreover, part of his racket is flat and part of it is rounded, and as the ball he drops himself may stop at any place on the runway from which he swats it, he never can be sure which surface of the racket will hit it. It makes things very uncertain for the live tennis player, as it should, and doubtless makes the robot unhappy. He just bats balls out for the live players to hit, and can't return them.

THE INTERFERING PROSTATE.

THE prostate gland meets the problem of aging by enlargement. That perhaps is comparable to the process of ripening. Nature has discovered that the period of normal activity has passed, whereupon—in an attempt to prolong its ability to function—the gland increases in size.

Just why this occurs is not entirely clear. The chances are that a new phase of the relation between the male sex glands and the pituitary is set in operation. Experimental animals can be protected against overgrowth of the structure by the injection of male hormone. Unfortunately, it has not been shown that the same thing can be effected in man. But studies still are being made in an effort to find the correct answer. Some authorities have reported that ligating the epididymis [the mass of collecting tubes of the male gland] has been followed by improvement.

Why is the subject of importance to men past the age of 55? Because the expanded tissue may press on the neck of the bladder, impeding the outflow of urine. Thus there is established a lake of fluid in the bladder, sizable in amount. In other words, the patient is not able to drain the bladder completely. This in turn may set up resistance to the passage of urine from the kidneys to this sacklike reservoir [the bladder] and may thus be responsible for trouble in the kidney.

Until recently there seemed to be no adequate surgical relief other than extirpation of the whole gland which—even in skilled hands—is a difficult and somewhat dangerous operation. Nevertheless, it remains the procedure of choice in many instances. A few years ago, however, due to the discovery of the cutting power of the high frequency electric current, an instrument was devised which could be introduced along the natural canal and by means of which the obstructing segment could be removed. Even more appropriate for a large percentage of cases is the so-called cold punch method which performs the same service with the surgeon able to view all the parts and the precise position of the wedge.

Such plans have been very helpful. After healing, the outflow of urine has been free and easy with no reserve remaining penned up within the urinary pouch. Neither of these operations is foolproof. It is necessary that the operator have considerable skill and facility in the manipulation of the instruments, as well as an exact knowledge of the nature and location of the blocking mass.

It should be understood that the punch or the electric knife does not in any way influence the size of the prostate. It still remains large and the decision which must be made lies between taking it out altogether or one or the other of these methods.

Any one faced with a situation of this sort has at hand home remedies of great value—namely, hot sitz baths and hot rectal irrigations. The patient should stay in the bath—as hot as can be borne—for 30 to 45 minutes at a time and water may be introduced into the lower bowel via a two way flow tube as hot as 110 degrees Fahrenheit. We should recall also that during treatment, highly seasoned food and alcohol should be omitted entirely. Massage is suggested by some authorities. The heating pad supplied with the Elliott apparatus is productive of excellent results in some cases.

If the sufferer can place himself in expert hands his major difficulties are over, even though it finally becomes necessary to get rid of a bit of impeding tissue. He may be certain that his physician-friend will not recommend surgery unless he feels that it is desirable in order to preserve good health.

Some day [and we hope soon] it may be easy enough to compel the prostate to behave through the injection of special hormones. Even at the present time their trial use is increasing.

LEARNS WALKING SLOWLY.

Mrs. M. N. writes: I have a 14 month old daughter who since birth has been suffering with constipation and she has not yet begun to walk. Would constipation retard walking?

REPLY.

Constipation in children, as well as in adults, is cured by diet and correct habits. It has no bearing on a child's learning to walk.

Some children are naturally slow in this matter. If your physician can find no physical or mental cause for the symptom the fault may be social. Much of learning is imitation. Try letting the child play a great deal with other tiny children who do walk. There is also the possibility that, for some reason, she may lack self-confidence. Encourage her in all things and praise her when she does well.

MILK SICKNESS.

E. S. writes: Please describe the milk sickness from which the mother of Abraham Lincoln died. Could it have been cured?

REPLY.

Milk sickness is a disease occurring chiefly in the western and southwestern states. It is believed that Nancy Hanks Lincoln died as a result of drinking milk from cows sick with "trembles." This in turn comes from feeding on white snakeroot—a poisonous plant. The condition now occurs but rarely and there are few if any deaths from this cause.

DIVORCE RECORDS.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My husband and I have not been living together for eleven years, and [1] I would like to know if he got a divorce. I have not seen or heard from him or his friends and so wish to know [2] the quickest and cheapest way to go about finding out if he got a divorce.

3. How many years does a couple have to be separated before one of them can get a divorce without letting the other one know about it? A. G.

1 and 2. Write to the clerks of the courts of divorce jurisdiction where he resided at the time the divorce may have been obtained.

3. No matter how long the separation it would be necessary to give notice if you know the defendant's address. The first step would be for you to employ an attorney.

JUDGE TREANOR'S RECORD.

Chicago, Dec. 12.—The news published in THE TRIBUNE that President Roosevelt has appointed as one of the judges of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for this circuit, as successor to Judge Alschuler, a member of the Indiana Supreme court, Walter E. Treanor, is disturbing, not only to the many fine Illinois candidates for that position, but to all who still believe in constitutional government. Unless the President is seeking for judicial office men who reflect the sentiment, "What is the constitution between friends?", the Treanor appointment is an unfortunate one, even if he should, like Prof. Edgerton, also, with Treanor, a Harvard law school product, recently nominated for federal judge in the District of Columbia, recant his legal heresies.

Judge Treanor, after receiving his law degree in 1922, became a professor in the University of Indiana law school under the dictatorially minded dean, later governor, Paul V. McNutt. In 1930, although, unfortunately for the public, he had never practiced law, Prof. Treanor was elected a judge of the Supreme court of Indiana.

In 1935 he displayed his alien attitude toward constitutional restrictions in a case entitled In re Todd [208 Indiana 168]. Todd, a citizen of Indiana, applied to be admitted to the Indiana bar under the provisions of the Indiana constitution [1851], which read, "every person of good moral character, being a voter, shall be entitled to admission to practice law in all courts of justice."

At four elections efforts had been made to change this meager and inadequate requirement. In each case an amendment to do this did not receive the majority of votes required by the constitution. On three different occasions the Indiana Supreme court held that an amendment to the constitution required a majority vote of all the electors voting in the election [the same as in Illinois]. In one case the court said that "the majority of said electors" meant more than one-half of the qualified electors of the state, and that "the language is too plain to admit of quibbling"; in a later decision in 1913 it said "the provision is too plain to carry more than one meaning." In an earlier case the court had declared, "we recognize as correct the doctrin so repeatedly enunciated by the highest courts and ablest lawyers, that constitutions are to receive a strict construction."

Furthermore, in submitting this "lawyer amendment" to the Indiana voters in 1931 the legislature expressly provided, "If it shall appear that any proposed amendment has received in its favor a number of votes less than a majority of all the electors who voted at the election then each such amendment shall be deemed and taken to have been rejected by the electors of the state and shall be so declared by the governor in his proclamation."

This amendment was voted on in the general election of 1932, when a vote of 1,576,897 was cast. A majority would be 788,449 votes. The vote cast for the amendment was 348,495 less than this number, required both by the constitutional provision and its judicial interpretation and by the legislative enactment.

When, subsequently, Todd applied for admission to the bar under the provision quoted, an objection was made that this clause of the constitution had been amended at the election of 1932, and the question then arose whether the constitution had been amended in accordance with the constitution. The facts in regard to the number of votes cast at the election were admitted.

Judge Treanor, delivering the majority opinion of the court, disregarding all the precedents of his state, held that a majority of the electors meant a majority of the votes cast on the proposed amendment, and that the amendment was carried, although the vote was nearly 350,000 less than half of the number voting at the election, and more than 900,000 had failed to vote on the proposed amendment. As to these, Judge Treanor declared, "Progress in popular government should not be at the mercy of those who have no interest in the problems of government."

Thus a small minority was permitted to amend the constitution of the state of Indiana. Unless the end justifies every and all means, this decision is indefensible. It is flatly inconsistent with President Roosevelt's views of majority rule. It fits in rather with the democracy of the late Huey Long.

PLENTY OF PERSPECTIVE.

Wilmette, Ill., Dec. 1.—My grandparents arrived in Chicago ninety-four years ago, in 1843. The population then was about 12,000. Now it is over 4,000,000.

By abolishing and scrapping our street cars and some of the elevated trains the phenomenal growth of Chicago can easily be retarded.

But if this growth is to continue the time is rapidly approaching when it will be necessary to operate all the railroad and elevated trains, all the street cars and motor buses the various corporations can buy in order to accommodate the traveling public. X-JUDGE.

THE THEATRICAL ALL-AMERICAN.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—No doubt there will be multitudes of protests against Eddie Cantor's All-American team mentioned in Ed Sullivan's column, but I believe I am justified in calling attention to some serious omissions:

What about Joseph Urban and his inestimable contribution to the beauty of the stage? And why delete the scientists who made possible the motion pictures and later the sound? Haven't they contributed more to the show business than many of those mentioned?

A WORRIER.

Front Views and Profiles
By June Provines

DURING nine months of 1935 while wreckers were demolishing A Century of Progress buildings, Silas Fung, 6050 South Sangamon street, young Chinese commercial artist, made 80 trips to the Fair grounds.

A Century of Progress in Miniature.

On one of these trips he was removing the letters "BUS" from one of the Greyhound bus stations when policemen cruising in a squad car noticed him. He showed a pass and requested them to take him to the office of the wrecking company.

"O, don't bother him," said the wrecking company officials, "he's one of our regular customers."

* *

THE young Chinese was probably THE most regular customer of the wreckers. Most of his purchases ranged from five cents to $5. The wreckers couldn't figure him out. He wanted such peculiar things—the eagle's head from one of the big bronze seals on the front of the Federal building; the first five degrees of the neon tubing that formed the indicator on the Havoline thermometer; a section of Sky-Ride cable; a stone turtle from the outer frieze of the Mayan temple; a piece of tree bark from the Lincoln center; one of the tubular lighting bulbs from an Avenue of Flags light standard; letters from a Streets of Paris sign; a piece of railing from a Colonial village balcony; hinges, screws, nails, electric wiring, moldings, glass, sockets, and all kinds of building and insulating material—all in small quantities. Sometimes what he wanted was sold in quantity lots to a buyer and Fung had to trail the material to its new owners to buy the small samples he wanted. Briefly, he wanted everything that represented a characteristic of the great Fair.

* *

IT took Fung six months, with the assistance of a carpenter, to assemble his souvenirs into two displays. One is a large illuminated display case constructed of building materials from forty-two World's Fair structures and the other is a composite World's Fair building—a miniature structure embracing architectural effects of all the principal Fair buildings. His exhibit includes parts of fifty-four structures covering thirty-four buildings, thirteen villages and seven miscellaneous structures. Few of the materials were adapted to miniature work, but he blended the color effects skilfully without changing the color of the original materials; shaped stainless steel and aluminum into tiny replicas of their original design, whittled down plasterboard, plywood, and masonite board moldings and corrugated panels to proper scale size; and lighted it all with original lighting materials, according to the indirect illumination pattern of the Fair.

* *

PRESIDENT RUFUS C. DAWES of the Fair spent two hours in minute inspection of Fung's collection and wrote him a letter:

"I believe you have in your collection a specimen of every kind of material that was used in the construction of the Fair and certainly you have arranged them in a very ingenious way to give a suggestion of the architectural arrangement and of the effects produced by color and light . . ."

Afraid that fifty years from now some one might doubt the authenticity of his painstaking work, Fung had Fair contractors and wreckers visit the exhibit and give written testimonials of its genuineness.

Before showing his exhibit Fung runs off a movie of the Fair to refresh the spectator's memory of the buildings. Since he completed it more than a year and a half ago Fung has kept the exhibit in his home.

YOU NEED BRAINS TO PLAY BRIDGE, TESTS REVEAL

Hymes Tops List; Baron K. Von Zedwitz Seventh.

New York, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Nine wrangling New York bridge experts went to school yesterday to decide whether bridge players need brains—or have them.

Climaxing an air crackling feud at the exclusive Cavendish club—in which a torrent of blistering adjectives reportedly developed over the "lame-brained" slowness of certain players and the "crack-pot idiocy" of certain others—the nine experts solemnly took up pencils and scribbled furiously for 20 minutes on a standard "I. Q." test.

It seems, if the showing of the experts means anything, you need brains to rate high in trump circles.

20 Minute Time Limit.

The experts hit an "I. Q." average of 121.1 against a possible "grand slam" top score of 144—well above the average high school student's mark of 115, the experienced stenographer's average of 106, and the general public's score of 95.

Only one of the nine experts went "through the ceiling"—finished all 75 questions before the 20 minute time limit expired. He is Edward Hymes Jr., 29, who played as a member of the famous "Four Aces" in the recent international matches, a graduate of Columbia university and New York university law school. Hymes said he will be admitted to the New York bar on Monday.

Hymes missfired on only two questions. He answered "C" to the question: "If the words below were arranged to make the best sentence, with what letter would the last word of the sentence end? Sincerity, traits, courtesy, character, of, desirable, and are."

The answer, of course, is "r."

He could not cope, either, with the question: "Revolution is related to evolution as flying is to [1] birds, [2] whirling, [3] walking, [4] wings, [5] standing."

Hymes thought the answer to that brain twister was "whirling." Correct is "walking."

Way down the list of experts, in seventh place, came Baron Waldemar K. von Zedwitz, famous bridge writer who scored an "I. Q." of 121 with only 50 questions answered when "time up" was called. He had all 50 right, though, and he wryly admitted:

"Yes, it's true that I sometimes take twenty minutes to make a single play during a bridge game. Sometimes I even leave the table and wander around, thinking—thinking—thinking——"

When the test ended the baron was left thinking, thinking, thinking, whether it was true, false, or uncertain that "if some of Brown's friends are Baptists and some of Brown's friends are dentists, then some of Brown's friends are Baptist dentists."

That baffled the baron.

Smoke on Sunday

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, said yesterday that an inspection of the chimneys of the Interstate Metal Products company, 4433 Ogden avenue, would be made today in connection with complaints that huge clouds of black smoke were pouring from them. "This is the season," said Dr. Bundesen, "when pneumonia is prevalent and unusual efforts are being made to keep Chicago's air pure. We shall ask the company for coöperation to this end."

Miss La Placa began singing as a child, in church and in school. Her teacher is Nicola Berardinelli. Dino Bigalli, a conductor of the Civic Opera orchestra, has coached her since she was offered a contract for this season eight months ago. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo La Placa.

HUNDREDS STILL SNOWBOUND BY BUFFALO STORM

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Hundreds of snow fighters tonight were attacking the last of the huge snow drifts in secondary streets and roads in North Buffalo suburbs that have isolated the populace for three days. The blizzard, which raged for seventy-two hours, took six lives. Hundreds of persons still were imprisoned in their homes.

Food and medical supplies were being taken into the area by volunteer rescue workers who dashed on skiies and snow shoes to districts that the plows have not yet reached. Dozens of families have been without fuel and supplies since the second day of the storm. Stalled autos and trucks in the roads and streets made snow removal difficult.

Floods Make 2,000 Homeless.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Upward of 2,000 persons were homeless tonight because northern California rivers were unable to carry the run-off of the three days of torrential rains. The floods were threatening further destruction to homes and farms. Three persons are known to have died in the floods. The Sacramento river broke the levee at Butte City at three points today and inundated the river settlement of 1,200 population. Many persons in the stricken areas were rescued by boats.

CARDINAL WARNS THAT CHARITY IS RELIGIOUS WORK

Cardinal Mundelein, speaking yesterday afternoon before 2,000 members at the annual meeting of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul at the Palmer house, distinguished between charity and philanthropy. He stated that the word charity is misunderstood at the present time because so many organizations have been evolved during recent years which call themselves charities but which are devoid of the religious virtue the word is intended to convey.

The cardinal questioned the right of persons to use the word charity in connection with relief doled out by the state through paid relief workers who have had special training in social service but who may be lacking religious motives in their work.

CARSON PIRIE SCOTT & CO

PRESIDENT DRAWS ILLINOIS FIRE FOR U.S. BENCH CHOICE

State Has 1 of 4 Judges on Court in Chicago.

BY PARKE BROWN.

In a subdued manner calculated not to irritate Washington, Illinois leaders yesterday expressed resentment over the treatment given their state in President Roosevelt's appointment of Walter E. Treanor of Indiana to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago.

The vacancy involved was considered politically an Illinois vacancy, as it was created by the retirement of Judge Samuel Alschuler. There was further grieving over the fact that confirmation by the senate of the Treanor selection will mean that Indiana will have two of the four judges on the Chicago Appellate bench, Treanor and Judge Will M. Sparks; Wisconsin will have one, Judge Evan A. Evans, and Illinois will be represented by only one judge, J. Earl Major, who is from the southern part of the state.

Expected a Chicagoan.

Local Democratic chiefs had expected that, particularly since two-thirds or more of the cases heard by this court originate in this city, some one of the many qualified Chicagoans whose names had been proposed at Washington would receive the honor.

No warning was given the state or Cook county Democratic organization that Illinois was to be ignored by the President. Neither P. A. Nash, national committeeman; Gov. Horner, nor Mayor Kelly received word in advance that the place was to go to Indiana.

"I didn't know anything about it until I saw it in the papers," said Mayor Kelly. "I'm glad, however, that a well qualified man was named."

"Since the appointment has already been made," said the governor when asked to comment, "there is little that can be said, yet I am not pleased with the neglect of or indifference to the claims of Illinois or Cook county to the position.

No Judge from Cook County.

"The members of the federal court of appeals of this circuit as now constituted are excellent jurists, yet Cook county, with its tremendous population, has no judge of that court despite the fact that some 60 per cent of the litigation before the court comes from Cook county."

Official estimates by the United States census bureau for 1935—the latest available—place the population of Wisconsin at 2,908,000, that of Indiana at 3,429,000, and that of Illinois at 7,817,000. Unofficial estimates of the population of Cook county in the same year put it at 4,250,000.

Dispatches from Indiana during the day told more of the inside of Hoosier politics and the part it played in the appointment of Treanor, who now is serving his second term as a justice of the Supreme court of that state.

Treanor Proposed by Minton.

The Indianapolis state house group, headed by Gov. M. Clifford Townsend, sought, according to these reports, to rid itself of Senator Sherman Minton by proposing him for the Van Devanter vacancy in the United States Supreme court. Minton countered by proposing Justice Treanor. The department of justice investigated Justice Treanor's qualifications and approved them. But just at that time President Roosevelt surprised everybody by appointing Senator Hugo Black to the Supreme bench.

Listens to Minton.

Attorney General Cummings' favorable report on Justice Treanor, these reports continue, was still in the President's hands when Senator Minton reached his ear at an opportune movement and found him receptive to the proposal that Justice Treanor be put on the Chicago Appellate bench. In Indiana this was regarded as a coup for Minton, who is pictured as the President's right hand man in Indiana affairs.

The snub Illinois received through this court appointment was compared to President Roosevelt's appointment last May of the bituminous coal commission under the Guffey-Vinson act. Seven members from as many states were made members of the commission but, although the state stands fourth in the production of soft coal, no Illinois man was included. The seven appointees came from Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana, Iowa, and Missouri.

SEEK TEST TODAY ON DRINK CADGING AT TAXI DANCES

The Wriggling Itself Also to Be Decided On.

When 24 persons arrested Friday in the Century taxi dance hall at 315 South Wabash avenue are arraigned in the Women's court today the police hope to settle two questions: [1] Is taxi dance wriggling disorderly conduct, and [2] what constitutes the crime of soliciting a drink?

The police have been conducting a campaign against dance halls in the south end of the loop district for weeks. They raided the Century club again on Saturday evening. The 19 women and two men they arrested at 525 South State street on Thursday won a continuance until Dec. 21.

Investigators Pose as Patrons.

Investigators, posing as patrons, obtained the evidence on which the raids were made. They have reported that customers pay an entrance fee and then, if they desire to dance, must purchase tickets at a dime a dance. A dollar's worth of tickets lasts about ten minutes. The girls get half the price of the tickets.

One investigator stated that when his feet had flitted away a dollar his partner said, "Will you buy me a drink?" He said he would and she then asked him to keep her request a secret from the management. She admitted, however, that she was given a commission on all drinks sold through her efforts.

Manager Asks About Begging.

"We each had a glass of beer, total cost 30 cents," the investigator said, "and the manager did ask me before I paid whether I had been solicited. I said no."

James McKenna, operator of the Century dance hall, Samuel Levienthal and Ivler Erickson, in charge of the State street place, have been charged with keeping disorderly houses and also with violating the city ordinance prohibiting the employment of females who solicit drinks in any place where alcoholic beverages are sold. All the women seized have been charged with being inmates of a disorderly house and some of them with soliciting drinks. The owners told the police that all they sold was near beer. Samples of the brew were taken for analysis.

700 NAMES READY FOR G. O. P. ACTION IN ST. LOUIS TODAY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Chairman John D. M. Hamilton of the Republican national committee said he was taking to St. Louis with him tonight the names of 700 or 800 Republicans who had been suggested for membership on the party's proposed committee of 100.

The committee, to be named at a conference starting tomorrow, will draft party policies and define its stand on governmental issues.

"I am confident," Hamilton said, "that the executive committee's choice will represent a fair cross section of economic and political beliefs." He said the names had been suggested by Republicans from all parts of the country.

DOLLS AND TOYS GALORE MADE BY 385 TINY SANTAS

Imagine, if you can, 750 dolls, some big, some little, some dressed in satin, some in gingham, but so many that to get them in an ordinary room, they'd have to be piled four deep.

Then imagine 650 bright new doll beds of every size and color, each outfitted with mattress, pillows, and handmade bed linen and crazy quilt. Place with them 700 bright red and green toy fire trucks, 450 dump trucks, myriads of games, books, mechanical toys, scooters, tricycles. Add, in short, any toy that might be mentioned in a letter to Santa Claus.

385 Pupils Helpt Santa.

The toy workshop has been in operation for two weeks, with each of the 385 pupils in the ultra-progressive private school stooging for Santa. Some of them have made new toys; others have operated upon, repainted, or refurbished old ones.

Yesterday the school gymnasium was filled, but Thursday the toys will be distributed among fourteen schools, five day nurseries, four hospitals, twelve other institutions, and twenty-four families. On Christmas eve, the more than 5,000 toys and 700 pieces of clothing will go to needy children in these schools and homes.

It all started back in 1910 when Leonard W. Wahlstrom, now director of the industrial arts department, suggested that the Parker boys and girls bring their old toys to school and repair them. And why not play Santa with them.

Parents Join In.

Year by year the movement grew, until parents now join in, many with contributions for the toy shop fund, many with a hammer, chisel, paint brush, or needle.

Even the tiniest child in the school has a part in the shop. She may wash old doll clothes, or he may saw legs for the wooden bed. Nothing is forgotten. These young Santas have made 250 oilcloth animals for babies and plaid woolen scarves for boys. There are scores of fat scrapbooks, filled with bright pictures.

"It was just part of the shop work at first," Mr. Wahlstrom said, "but now it's part of the school."

PLANES CRASH IN MIDAIR; ONE DEAD; 4 SAVED

Pilot Lands Passenger Ship Safely.

Bendix, N. J., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—William Picun, 25 years old, a professional stunt flyer, brought his plane safely to earth here today with three passengers after his fuselage had been smashed in a mid-air plane collision from which John J. Diskon, 27 years old, a New York City attorney, crashed to his death in a frozen swamp near by. One of Picun's passengers was a woman. She was carried from the plane in a dead faint.

The planes collided shortly after taking off from the airport. They were up about 500 feet and traveling parallel to each other when the little Aeronca monoplane piloted by Diskon crashed into the larger four-passenger Stinson plane piloted by Picun.

The plane piloted by the young attorney plunged to earth, but Picun's kept on flying. Picun believed that the landing gear might have been smashed and would not touch earth until airport attendants signaled to him that his under carriage was intact. The woman passenger was revived shortly after the plane landed. She and her two companions left the airport without identifying themselves.

Diskon was a son of Mrs. Marien Diskon Paterson. His father, the late John Diskon, was a wealthy Paterson merchant. He had a student's pilot license.

TRACE OUTSIDE MONEY IN ASYLUM LOANS SCANDAL

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Reports that outsiders gave money to inmates of the Jacksonville State Hospital for the Insane, who then loaned the funds at high interest rates to hospital attendants, were being investigated today by the state department of public welfare. Twelve employés of the hospital were discharged after they were accused of borrowing money from the patients and taking them out for meals and drinking parties.

Some of the patients had received interest as high as 20 per cent on their loans. This led to a suspicion that there was nothing amiss with the financial shrewdness of the inmates and that they were the middle men in a loan shark racket.

BRIDE AND GROOM FOUND DEAD IN A TOURIST CABIN

A youthful bride and groom, married Saturday at Crown Point, Ind., were found dead last night in a cabin at a tourist camp at Munster, Ind. Apparently death was caused by a heater in the little building that exhausted all the oxygen and suffocated them.

The husband, James Kaetzer, 21 years old, of Lowell, Ind., had been employed recently in the steel mills at Gary. His wife, formerly Miss Madelyn McMahon of Crown Point, was only 17.

Carl Spitler, owner of the camp, discovered the bodies when he went to the cabin last night to collect his rent. The girl's body was on the bed and Kaetzer's on the floor.

Coroner Andrew Hoffman said he was satisfied they were accidentally asphyxiated. The girl's father told the town marshal of Munster that he knew of the marriage, but had not been informed the Kaetzers were going to the camp.

Trees Prevent Erosion

Dec. 12, 1937.

FARMERS on The Tribune places, in exchanging information with other farmers on the reclamation of land, recently received a report on the successful use of more than 56,000 trees in preventing wind and water erosion on various kinds of soil in Cass county, Ill.

A. C. Hart of Arenzville, about fifteen miles northwest of Jacksonville, said that in the Cass county tree planting work 32,250 pine, cedar, spruce, and fir trees have been planted in blow sand soil, and 24,250 locust, ash, and poplar trees were set in soil ranging from clay to loess.

The blow sand soil there is so low in organic matter that even normal winds continually shift it from place to place. Instead of forming dunes, as in northern Indiana, the tendency is for shallow blow holes to form. On this land 15,000 pitch pines have been planted with excellent results so far. The pitch pine is found to be well adapted to that soil.

Other Trees Planted.

In addition there were planted in the sand with reasonable success 5,000 red pines, 5,000 Scotch pines, 1,000 white pines, 2,000 loblolly pines, and 1,000 shortleaf pines. There were also 1,000 red cedar, 2,000 Norway spruce, and 250 Douglas fir trees planted in the sand, but most of them died.

The pines planted on blow sand soil are set in shelter belts—four or five rows, ten to twelve feet apart and eight feet apart within the rows. The shelter belts or strips of trees are 300 to 400 feet apart. It is expected that when the trees reach a height of twenty feet or more they will slow down the velocity of the wind sufficiently for the space between the tree strips to be farmed without fear of the sand blowing away. Since prevailing winds in that region are from the west, the tree strips run north and south, Hart explained.

The pines are planted in the spring. Shallow furrows are opened, serving as markers. In the bottoms of the furrows holes are opened with a spade forced into the ground and tipped backward. The roots of the trees are placed in by the side of the spade. After the spade is removed the soil is tramped firmly with the heel around the roots. Under this plan two men can set 1,000 trees a day. During the planting process the roots are prevented from becoming dry by keeping them plunged in a bucket partially filled with a thin paste of clay and water.

Seek Land for Farming.

Mr. Hart says that the primary object in strip planting is to reclaim the land for farming rather than for timber production, but he expects, through thinning in later years, to produce valuable fence posts and telephone poles in addition to merchantable lumber when the trees reach maturity.

The trees, planted two or three years ago, already have withstood abuse. A few have been blown out of the ground. Some partially blown out still are thriving.

On other kinds of soil, ranging from clay to loess bluff formation, Mr. Hart said there have been planted 20,000 black locust trees, 250 shipmast locust, a special strain; 1,000 green ash, 2,000 white ash, and 1,000 yellow poplar or tulip trees. The black locusts have made the best showing but are subject to rather severe attacks of the locust borer. Tests to control the borer are now being made.

The hardwood trees are used to stop erosion and to produce locust posts and merchantable lumber.

Mr. Hart has had the coöperation of L. E. Sawyer, a reforestation specialist who suggested the program on the Cass county land. He aided in getting it started.

BISHOP HEARING TO SHOW WHERE $450,000 WENT

Get-Rich-Quick Schemes to Be Scrutinized.

First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley said yesterday that he wants to hear how the aged Howard P. Bishop was passed from one promoter to another until he had put more than $450,000 into get-rich-quick schemes which stripped him of the fortune he was administering for Mrs. Emily Chadbourne.

Howard P. Bishop.

Bishop, 75 years old, who lives at 1624 Touhy avenue, was secretary of the Crane company for 53 years and the trusted fiscal agent for Mrs. Chadbourne, daughter of the late Richard Crane. He admitted he had squandered Mrs. Chadbourne's inheritance without her knowledge or consent. Mrs. Chadbourne, who lives at Stone Ridge, N. Y., has not asked for his arrest.

Representative to Attend Hearing.

Mr. Crowley said he would have a representative present today at the hearing before Referee in Bankruptcy Wallace Streeter with a view to prosecuting any who may have defrauded Bishop.

Yesterday it was learned that W. S. Karnaghan, to whom Bishop is said to have given more than $75,000 in a whisky deal, had checked out of the hotel where he had lived until Saturday night.

J. S. Stinson, to whom Bishop entrusted at least another $75,000 to buy 3,700 acres of bare and sandy land in Mississippi was reported to be in New Orleans.

Thomas A. Sheridan, said to be the head of the American Arts Bureau, into which Bishop poured another $75,000 of Mrs. Chadbourne's money, was reported to be in New York, but could not be found there. Joseph Van Osdahl, who is said to have sold Bishop a one-sixth interest in his contract to get half of every $15 membership sold in the Arts Bureau, is expected to be at the hearing today.

Dealings to Be Aired.

Stinson's, Van Osdahl's, and Karnaghan's dealings with Bishop are to be aired today, and Prosecutor Crowley said he wants a detailed report of them.

Attorney James R. Glass, representing Bishop, said he believed Karnaghan may have been a dupe in the whisky deal. He said the deal involved the purchase of certificates for 2,000,000 gallons of aged whisky to be taken out of warehouses for customers who had already put in orders. What became of the money and the whisky has not yet been explained, Attorney Glass stated.

Buys Cut-Over Timber Land.

Besides buying the Mississippi land at Stinson's solicitation, Bishop gave Stinson notes when he ran out of Mrs. Chadbourne's money, and Stinson sold the notes to an investment concern. Attorney Lewis Murtaugh of the firm representing Mrs. Chadbourne said he went to Mississippi to look at Bishop's purchase.

It was cut-over timber land, the attorney reported, and of no use for agricultural purposes.

The attorneys said the Better Business Bureau has been investigating the other companies into which Bishop put Mrs. Chadbourne's money. Some of the promotions may have been in good faith, the lawyers said, but they do not expect to salvage much of the $450,000.

EVERY AIRWORTHY U.S. PLANE TO SOAR ALOFT IN SALUTE TO WRIGHTS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—(AP)—The army air corps tonight was prepared to spread its mighty wings this week in commemoration of the first flight of an airplane.

Under orders from the general staf, every military flying post in the country will send all available aircraft aloft on Friday, Dec. 17, at the hour that Orville and Wilbur Wright made history thirty-four years ago by getting an airplane to fly.

About 1,000 fighting planes are expected to take the air to salute the two inventors whose achievement began a new era in civilian and military communications.

Wilbur Wright, for whom Wilbur Wright field at Dayton, O., was named by the army, died in 1912. His brother still lives at their old home in Dayton. A $250,000 monument was erected to them by the government on the scene of their achievement near Kitty Hawk, N. C., in 1932.

TWO KILLED, FIVE HURT IN HEAD-ON AUTO COLLISION

Woman Critically Injured in Hinsdale Accident.

Two men were killed and five persons were injured, one seriously, in a head-on collision of two automobiles yesterday in Ogden avenue between Washington and Lincoln streets, in Hinsdale.

Those killed were Leonard Denninger, 22 years old, 321 Elm street, Itasca, who was riding in a car driven east by Arthur Ringel, 37, of Downers Grove, and Truman Creamer, 34, of 5148 Washington street, Downers Grove, who was driving west in the other car.

Mrs. Lucy Williams, 28 years old, 129 Washington street, Westmont, a passenger in Creamer's car, was taken to Hinsdale sanitarium in a critical condition. The others injured were Ringel, Miss Irene Lavoy, 33, of 717 South Villa avenue, Villa Park, who was riding in his car, and Mr. and Mrs. William Poborsky, both 29, of 32 South Grant street, Westmont, who were in the Creamer car.

The cars were demolished. Hinsdale police said none of the survivors could tell how the accident occurred.

Thomas Pavnica, 55 years old, 704 Chase avenue, Joliet, died late Saturday night in the Silver Cross hospital there shortly after he was struck by an automobile while on the way to work.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 1,024 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 777 were killed in Chicago, where 21,619 were injured in the same period.

CONCERT HALTED WHEN ORCHESTRA LEADER LEAVES

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Angered by late comers, Serge Koussevitzky, conductor of the Boston Symphony orchestra, halted a concert before a capacity audience of 3,600 at Syria mosque today. He strode from the music hall and refused to return for five minutes.

As he left the famous maestro blazed out at an attendant: "I will not go back there, never! The fools —better they should stay home in bed. They should have some respect for the art."

TREAT THEM PROVED WAY

More mothers use VapoRub than any other medication of its kind—they have proved it by use in their own homes. It was further proved in the world's largest colds-clinic. No "dosing"—just massage VapoRub on throat, chest, and back at bedtime. Almost at once, its poultice-and-vapor action starts to loosen phlegm, relieve irritation and coughing, help break local congestion. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

THE FAST, COMFORTABLE WAY

Proof that syphilis and gonorrhea are absent is now required to get a marriage license. Be examined by your own doctor or this clinic!

THE new state law which requires a couple to be examined for venereal diseases before marriage is intended to accomplish two highly desirable things.

First, to prevent infection of the bride by the groom, or the possible infection of the groom by the bride. Second, and more important, to reduce the appalling number of dead, deformed, blinded and feeble-minded babies that are born of venereally-diseased parents!

Considering that syphilis can be contracted innocently, and exist for years without the victim's knowledge, it is a mistake for any person to believe that he or she is not infected. Hence any attempt to evade the new marriage law is merely to invite the dreadful consequences which it is wisely designed to prevent.

Therefore, do not run the risk of having your marriage performed in another state that has lax marriage laws. Protect yourself and your children to come by submitting to the examination now required in the State of Illinois. Failure to do so may easily result in a lifetime of unhappiness and ill health!

Avoid these consequences!

Untreated syphilis, for example, may lead to fatal heart disease, blindness, deafness, apoplexy, locomotor ataxia, paralysis or even insanity! And it usually causes mothers to have stillborn or defective babies.

Untreated gonorrhea may result in a sight-destroying eye infection, sterility, stricture, crippling rheumatism, or serious prostate, bladder and other troubles. Among women it can cause infants to be blinded at birth, or necessitate mutilating pelvic operations that make having children impossible!

Thus it is apparent that the new marriage law meets a crying need. By requiring a physical examination which includes blood and other tests, it will help reduce the present high percentage of unhappy, childless marriages and encourage the birth of a much larger number of healthy, normal babies!

The necessary examination can be obtained from your family doctor, or you can get it at the Public Health Institute. The Institute is especially well qualified to make pre-marriage tests, as to date its men and women physicians have given more than 4,500,000 examinations and treatments for venereal diseases. This is a record to inspire the utmost confidence!

Examination costs $3.00

Organized by public-spirited citizens as a corporation "NOT-FOR-PROFIT" under the laws of the State of Illinois, the Public Health Institute offers attention for venereal infections at the lowest possible fees consistent with specialized treatment. An examination for syphilis and gonorrhea, including blood tests, urinalysis and smears, costs only $3.00, while some treatments for syphilis cost as little as $1.00 and some of those for gonorrhea still less!

Despite these low fees the Institute provides a friendly, personal service. Each patient is promptly attended in a private room, and to avoid embarrassment is known by a number rather than by name. The Institute's facilities are available to all, as even those who are temporarily short of funds can arrange to be cared for.

NOTE: The Public Health Institute has no connection with any other Chicago health or medical institute, and should not be confused with those operated for personal gain!

We're supercritical where kits or fitted bags are concerned. Too many of 'em just aren't practical. Every woman likes to tote her cosmetic essentials around with her when she travels or goes away for the week-end or even when she spends a night away from home. But she likes to tote them in the simplest fashion.

We have found one kit—not too expensive—that seems ideal. It's handsome as a good handbag—and not much bigger. This one is of black lizard grained morocco lether, as flexible as a glove.

When you open it you let one side drop down flat. Tucked in the side which lies flat when the case is open are manicure accessories, plus rouge, eyeshadow, mascara, and an eyebrow pencil, each in its own snug compartment. There's also a flat envelope into which you can toss hairpins, tissues, or whatever you like.

Set in the base of the kit are five beauty essentials—two fine creams, two lotions, and a box of face powder. Just in back of these is an envelope compartment where you can tuck any number of little things. You can also find plenty of room for tooth brush, dentifrice, or any other little items you like to carry around with you. The lining is washable.

'Glitter Can Make Glamor,' Says Diva Who Likes Jewels

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

"Glitter can make glamor," says Vina Bovy, beautiful blonde soprano of the Metropolitan opera. "The interesting feature about the new trend toward jewels," adds Mme. Bovy, "is that the glitter doesn't have to be real."

In Mme. Bovy's opinion jewelry plays an increasingly important part in "highlighting" a costume, whether it be the most formal of evening gowns or the severest of tailleurs. "The new era of enlightened women," claims the continental Mme. Bovy, "has not changed basic natures a bit. Women still love furs, fine feathers, and sparkling gems, which, fortunately, have come into their own again this season. Even at that, some women are afraid of the fashion arbiters, hesitate to appear with anything but the most conservative amount of jewelry, and, in order to avoid gaudiness, sometimes look dull."

"But, after all," states the glamorous Belgian diva, "history's most fascinating women didn't seem to think so, for they adorned themselves with great quantities of jewels. The seductive Cleopatra was famed for her rubies and emeralds, and the radiant Empress Eugenie for her pearls and diamonds."

Not all of us, of course, have access to an empress' jewels, as has Mme. Bovy, who inherited the beautiful Eugenie's celebrated pearl necklace. Nevertheless, good imitations no longer are considered gaudy and may be equally effective. As a matter of fact, this season obviously imitation jewelry adds a barbaric and exotic note to the fashion scale.

"Although I prefer tailored clothes for daytime wear, as most women do," asserts Mme. Bovy, "I never allow my tout ensemble to border on the mannish. I firmly believe that it is a woman's duty to emphasize her femininity at all times. Well chosen jewelry will do the trick, and so the more severe my tailleur the more certain I am to wear an unusual clip or brooch, bracelets and rings. With a varied collection of wide bracelets, collars, and belts, stunning and unusual costumes may be created with woolen dresses or even sweaters and skirts as the bases.

"Evening is the one time when a woman can indulge herself in jewelry to her heart's desire," believes Mme. Bovy, "and when she can summon all the imagination at her disposal in the matter of ensembles. This is a particularly welcome season, when every costume can be a creation, every pose a picture, and when everything goes, from the sleek figure-clinging styles inaugurated by no less a fashion authority than Cleopatra, to the bouffant style trends of a later date. The heavy gold collars, so much in favor now, have been directly inspired by the Egyptian queen's taste in jewelry and impart the same glamor which captivated Mark Antony and the fastidious Julius Caesar.

"All that glitters this season," confesses Mme. Bovy, "may not be gold, but it's definitly glamorous."

Let your slogan be: Rise and shine! Remember that the more jewels you wear the more stunning your costume can be.

Capper & Capper

MICHIGAN AVENUE AT MONROE STREET

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1937: By Ely Culbertson.]

If you are so fortunate as to pick up a hand like this:

♠A ♥A ♦A K Q J 10 9 8 7 6 ♣3 2

you do not need a teacher to tell you that you have eleven cold tricks with diamonds as trump. But if, on that basis, you start off with a bid for eleven tricks, "five diamonds," you merely establish yourself as the world's greatest duffer. Even if your partner knows your game and can realize that you are bidding exactly what you can make, he will be somewhat at a loss to proceed if he holds one of the following hands:

1. ♠K Q J ♥K Q J ♦5 ♣Q J 10 8 7 6
2. ♠5 4 3 ♥5 4 3 ♦4 ♣A K 6 5 4 3

With hand No. 1 he might become optimistic and hope that your bid was based on solid diamonds, no losing clubs, and the A x of each major. With hand No. 2 he might fear that you were void of clubs and that his ace-king would be valueless. In short, he would be in a terrible stew.

Hence, to preëmpt on such enormous hands is one of the worst sins at bridge. High preëmptive bids should be reserved for those hands that contain little or no defensive strength, but which will make within two tricks of the bid when vulnerable and three tricks not vulnerable if allowed to stand.

Question 29 of the examination brought me more wrong answers than right answers. This question was:

Neither side vulnerable. You are South, the dealer, and hold:

♠A 5 3 ♥K 10 9 7 5 3 ♦5 4 ♣J 7

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	4 diamonds	Pass

What call do you make now?

The answer was "pass." North's four diamond bid may contain only seven winners and certainly will not go over eight. Aside from the spade ace, South's hand is not sure to develop another trick. The doubleton club is not particularly attractive, since South has only two trumps, and they may be quickly removed by the enemy.

There is one more cogent argument against a four heart or five diamond bid by South. The opponents may be tempted to double even four diamonds, but are not apt to take liberties with less than game contracts. Give them a free shot at a game bid, however, and they will not hesitate. A 300 point penalty easily may result.

I was immensely gratified when a player in the recent Vanderbilt tournament thanked me for "winning a certain match for him," as he put it. He explained that a hand had come up which was almost identical with a safety play described in my Red Book.

♣K Q J 6

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 heart	Pass	2 clubs	4 spades
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

West had opened the club ace, then had shifted to the heart queen. Declarer, with so many club honors in sight, realized the danger that West might ruff a club return if East could be put on lead. He dared not pass the heart since East, if he held the king, would overtake. So he played dummy's ace and instead of trying a spade finesse that was obviously doomed, led the diamond queen. East was caught asleep at the switch, and ducked. Declarer hastily ditched his remaining heart. After that he was safe. East never could take the lead for the fatal club ruff.

Gloomy Mood Covers Exhibit of Art Society

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The annual exhibition by members of the Chicago Society of Artists, 316 North Michigan avenue, is one of the smallest the society has had in some years, and one of the saddest. There is present a preponderance of melancholy color and indefinite drawing which, taken in conjunction with the drabness of the setting of the show, makes for an atmosphere of gloom.

The setting of thes how is scarcely the artists' fault, because it is difficult to find a suitable gallery that is available. The Chicago Society of Artists has gone as far north as Lake Shore drive and has done well in the Diana court building in other years, but never has it found it easy to acquire suitable quarters. However, the paintings themselves might have brightened up the average room, were they that kind of paintings. These are not.

Out of the sixty-two canvases present a possible twelve lift the general feeling of dejection. Magda Heuermann has the best piece of painting in the show in her "Red Lamp." Frances Badger is most amusing with her clever version of "Noah in the Middlewest." Ethel Spears is also amusing in "Beach."

The "Wheat Field," by Ethel Crouch Brown, is full of vitality and "Afternoon Coffee," by Frances Foy, is sensitive and delicate in color. "Tolza," by Harry Mintz, is an entertaining portrait of a little girl and the double portrait of "Dr. and Mrs. S. H. K.," by William Earl Singer is very pleasant.

Ivan Le Lorraine Albright should be soundly taken to task for bringing Ida back again under a most unsuitable name and one which is not to be lightly bandied. "On a Red Table," by Nicola Ziroli, "Summer Mood," by John Stenwall, and "Composition," by Julio de Diego complete the light veined dozen though "Slaughter House Ruin," by Gertrude Abercrombie, might be included, too; it is simple in composition and definitly significant.

New Glamorous Nightwear

WOMAN'S AND MISS' NIGHTWEAR.

Along with all feminine apparel, nightwear this season has taken to glamorous lines. The nightie no longer is allowed to be merely utilitarian. It must also be beautiful. The garment sketched in today's illustration is a case in point. It has the new high waistline, shirred bodice, angel-wing shoulders, and glorified neckline. Its beautifully molded hipline merges with a flared skirt which graces the instep and is slit part way up the front. It may have no belt at all or possess a ribbon around the waist. Lace trims neckline, shoulders, and hemline and, if you wish, bows may perch at the shoulders, to match the ribbon belt.

That isn't the whole story, by any means. The pattern also provides for a brief little jacket, to make one beautiful while partaking of breakfast in bed. It has a tomboy collar, matching lace edging, and long full sleeves.

Style No. 3351 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material, with 4½ yards of lace for the gown. The jacket requires 2 yards of 39 inch fabric, with 4½ yards of lace.

Brilliant House to Open Final Week of Opera

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE last week of the opera will open tonight with as brilliant an audience as though it were the first Monday of the season, for "Tristan and Isolde" is to be sung. There will be chairs in every available place in the great Civic Opera house so that more may hear the performance. Even so, there are hundreds who tried unsuccessfully to buy tickets for tonight, just as there were for last Saturday's matinée when the crowds in the foyer during the intermissions were so great that one was jostled and pushed as though she were Christmas shopping in a State street department store.

The Saturday afternoon opera audience is THE one of each week from a social standpoint and literally every one in social circles was there last Saturday to hear Grace Moore and Masini in "La Bohême."

Some of the many on hand were Mrs. William J. Chalmers, escorted by young Mrs. Roger Follansbee, Mrs. Nicholas Starosselsky, Mrs. Horace W. Armstrong and her daughter, Miss Jean; Mrs. William A. Yager, Mrs. Bruce Borland, Mrs. John A. Carpenter and her guest, Mrs. Zlatko Balokovic; Mrs. George T. Langhorne and her guest, Mrs. Ernest Ives; Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mrs. Joseph O. Watkins, Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, Mrs. Arch Shaw and her son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Shaw; Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson, and Mrs. Edwin W. Ryerson.

Others Who Attended Fashionable Matinee.

Also Miss Marion Claire, who will sing Mimi in another presentation of "La Bohême" Wednesday night; Mrs. James Winston, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. Townsend McKeever, Mrs. Hayden B. Harris, Mrs. Arthur B. Slade, Mrs. Stuart Templeton, Mrs. DeForest Hulburd, Miss Emily Larned, Mrs. Edwin Dewes and her daughters, the Misses Elizabeth and Dorothy; Miss Harriet Stuart, Mrs. Leslie S. Gordon, Mrs. Lucius A. Crowell, Mrs. Frank B. Mulford, Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, Miss Margaret Conover, Mrs. Charles S. Davis, Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams, Mrs. Frederic W. Upham and Mrs. Edgerton Throckmorton.

Not every one will be at the opera tonight, however, for the opening of the Theater Guild's production, "Wine of Choice," with Miriam Hopkins and Leslie Banks, will draw many to the Erlanger theater. The John Paul Wellings, the Bryan S. Reids, the Marvin B. Pools, the Walter S. Carrs, and Frank McNair are some of those who will have parties at the première, for which every seat already is sold.

Jussi Bjoerling Sings at Matinee Today.

Music will be on this morning's schedule for many, for the second of Mrs. Gilbert M. Smith's eleven o'clock matinées is being held in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer house. Jussi Bjoerling, the young Swedish tenor, who will sing Rodolfo Wednesday night at the opera, will give the program. Mrs. Smith is having a luncheon afterward for the singer and his pretty young wife, Swedish Consul Gosta Oldenberg and Mrs. Oldenberg, and Mr. and Mrs. Helmer Enwall of Stockholm.

Also at the luncheon will be Mrs. Smith's son and his bride of last September, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Bristol Smith [Annie Warren Mason], who are arriving from California toda- to spend a month here. The young Smiths were married in California, where he is in the naval aviation service, and this is their first visit home.

Mrs. Walter S. Brewster will speak at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the Quest Art galleries about the exhibition "Children in American Folk Art," which is hanging at the galleries, sponsored by the Chicago Public School Art society.

Margaret Mary Ray Bride of J. F. Stewart.

Of interest this morning is news of the wedding Saturday afternoon of Miss Margaret Mary Ray, daughter of Mrs. Hal S. Ray, to John Frederick Stewart, son of Mrs. William Agar. The ceremony took place at 4 o'clock

Cousins Entertained at Dinner-Dance

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Miss Frances Munson (left) of Providence, R. I., and her cousin, Miss Olivia Russell of Boston, were the especial guests at a dinner-dance at the Casino Saturday night given by Miss Munson's father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis B. Munson. Miss Munson is taking part in Chicago debutante festivities this year, having made her debut at a tea in the Lake Forest home of Mrs. Munson's mother, Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, earlier in the season. Miss Russell was here for the week-end.

Stars of Opera Mass Talents in Gala Benefit

BY CECIL SMITH.

A baker's dozen principal singers of the Chicago City Opera company, four conductors, the orchestra, and the ballet shared in a gala operatic concert in the Civic Opera house last night. The proceeds, which must have been fairly sizable, are to be devoted toward defraying a part of the season's inevitable deficit. All the participants donated their services.

The following singers participated, either in solos or in ensembles: Marion Claire, Vivian della Chiesa, Elen Dosia, Beverley Lane, Edith Mason, Grace Moore, Jarna Paull, Janice Porter, Gertrud Wettergren, Andre Burdino, George Czaplicki, Mark Love, and Carlo Morelli. The conductors were Dino Bigalli, Angelo Canarutto, Leo Kopp, Roberto Moranzoni, and Henry Weber. Ruth Page and Blake Scott danced with the ballet in the farandole from "Carmen."

Much of the singing was quite agreeable, and every one had a good time. Approximately half the evening was given over to applause for the various participants.

An attempt was made to place Grace Moore in a stellar position by printing her autograph across every program, and by allowing her an encore. The management made the distinction a little less invidious by also permitting Miss Mason an encore. The other singers were good sports about it, although the consensus of lobby opinion during intermission found the whole business a breach of taste.

Roland Hayes returned to the Civic Opera house for a recital in the afternoon, after a considerable absence from Chicago. In a program touching upon the music of pre-classical composers, Mozart, Schubert, and Hebrew, Brazilian and American Negro songs, he showed that the passage of time has not touched his lofty artistry nor dimmed the brightness of his sympathy for a wide variety of musical styles and outlooks.

Zlatko Balokovic, Jugo-Slav violinist who recently played with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, gave a solo recital in Orchestra hall in the afternoon. He is both more and less than a fiddler, for while his interpretations often pass beyond the merely violinistic into the purely musical, his actual playing of the violin is not always as impeccable as it might be.

ENGAGEMENTS

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Ruth Helsell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Helsell of Flossmoor, to Everett Mead, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence G. Mead, also of Flossmoor. Miss Helsell attended Rockford college and is a graduate of Iowa State college.

Mr. and Mrs. Jessie G. Haber announce the engagement of their daughter, Elaine Sherrill, to Philip Byron Friedman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris J. Friedman of Tacoma, Wash.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—The British museum has acquired nineteen fine English mezzotints collected by the late Martin Erdmann of New York which recently were sold at Christie's, it was announced today. Especially notable among the lot, according to experts, is an anonymous plate after Sir Joshua Reynolds entitled, "Girl with a Shock Dog." Ten of the prints were bought and presented to the museum by the National Art Collections fund.

Good Morning!

Grace Moore IS a delight, isn't she? I mean—aside from her singing.

She has so much warmth! So keen a sense of humor. And she seems such a gracious person! [I'm not crazy over some of the clothes she wears this trip. But she rises superior to the ones you won't like and has one black outfit that's a honey!]

In Melvyn Douglas Miss Moore has a perfect teammate. He is also one of those disarmingly friendly personalities. And, as you know, he's good looking and can act.

As one James Guthrie, manager of the opera house in Buenos Aires he hotfoots it to New York, idea being to try and persuade lovely Elsa Terry not to break her contract with his opry house. She has, you see, received a more munificent offer to sing in Paris instead. . . . Behind her decision to give French music lovers a treat is the determination that she do so of her indomitable auntie, Madame Della—a great singer of other days. . . .

Mr. Guthrie has the divil's own time even meeting Elsa—but his ingenuousness knows no bounds. . . . He meets, he loves, he conquers—he KIDNAPS—assisted by his faithful but perturbed Man Friday, "Pancho" Brown. . . .

And the lady is perfectly rapt over the whole situation—especially the kidnaping, which, in an eavesdropping moment she has heard discussed, for she believes that it is all in the cause of love. . . . Then, she discovers —or believes she discovers—that the romance has only been a front for cold, hard business. . . . Well—

Of course everything is ironed out prettily for the finale. AFTER Elsa has sung in Buenos Aires for the gentleman, AND—done a bit of kidnaping on her own. . . . [Aren't I cryptic?]

It seems to me I have never heard Miss Moore in better voice—but, of course, that's unofficial. Mr. Barry, who, I hope, will see "I'll Take Romance," can give you the real lowdown along that line.

The ex-Mrs. Johnny Green and young Bill Selwyn are a new twosome. . . . Harry M. Warner's daughter Betty, at school in San Francisco, would rather be here with Milton Sperling. . . . Harry Richman and Hazel Forbes had a quick reunion in Hollywood before he left for Chicago's Chez Paree. . . . Marlene Dietrich and Willis Goldbeck are doing the town. . . . Jean Negulesco has turned down the Mussolini assignment; Jeanne MacPherson will have full charge in Italy. . . . First Christmas card arrived on this desk from the Hal Le Roys; the second from the Clymas Brothers, in Australia. . . . Ross Alexander's widow, Ann Nagle, and Anthony Averill are hand-holding. . . . Sidney Solomon took his high blood pressure into Doctors' hospital for a ten day reduction. . . . That was Lillian Hellman Cotton clubbing with her ex-hubby, Arthur Kober. . . . Busby Berkeley has shifted to Eleanor Bailey.

Massachusetts' censors deleted the sequence which showed John Boles tubbing himself in "Fight for Your Lady." . . . For my money they could have deleted the entire picture. . . . New York censors ordered the kissing scene between Joan Crawford and Bob Young toned down in "Bride Wore Red." . . . Don't expect too much from Simone Simon's singing voice. . . . Bill Robinson's return to the Cotton club spurted business in terrific fashion. . . . Earl of Warwick and Pat Wilder are a duet this week. . . . The Anita Louise-Buddy Adler fluctuations have put gray in his hair. . . . Myrna Loy shelved 15 pounds for "Test Pilot" and looks gorgeous. . . . The Jack Warners will close off the upper floor of their house for Dorothy Di Frasso's party to Walter Ruben and Virginia Bruce, Bert and Olive Taylor and Ann Warner on the 18th. . . . The marquise de Polignac is here as Connie Bennett's house guest.

At least five Christmas birthday parties will be staged in this town. . . . Tony Martin, Gladys Swarthout, Fernand Gravet, Humphrey Bogart, and Barton MacLane all were Dec. 25 babies. . . . Harmonica Wiz Larry Adler is romancing Joan Denton, Lady Mountbatten's cousin, in London.

Laud Juvenile Singers, Back After 7 Years

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The Vienna Choir boys, traveling members of an organization which has existed in the Austrian capital for 500 years, came to the Auditorium theater yesterday afternoon to make their first local appearance in seven years and to furnish additional interest in the second concert of the Woman's Symphony orchestra's current season.

The frail and pure voices of the little choir boys were first utilized in a slight comedy called "Monsieur et Madame Denis," with incidental music by Jacques Offenbach. For this brightly costumed offering the Woman's Symphony, playing in the pit, provided a sturdy musical foundation for the children's attractive fooling. Later the choir boys sang a group with piano accompaniment.

The purely orchestral part of the program listed Mozart's overture to "The Marriage of Figaro" and the Brahms First Symphony. Gladys Welge, associate conductor of the orchestra, achieved a careful and musicianly performance of Brahms' monumental work.

In the Studebaker yesterday Kah-Roun Tootikian and her group presented an aptly costumed, splendidly conceived and skilfully executed program which consisted mostly of the dances of the east and the near east. Intensely interesting was the performance by Mary Louise Eyden, pianist for the group, of Black sea and other exotic music which she herself had arranged for the dances.

The Chicago Business Men's orchestra began yesterday morning the downtown concert activities of its 1937-'38 season by playing in the Goodman theater the traditional early December program designed to honor the memory of its founder, George Lytton. Mr. Lytton died on Dec. 9, 1933, and each year the orchestra gives a memorial concert on the Sunday which falls nearest the date of his death.

RUN!

By Patricia Wentworth

(Copyright: 1937: By Patricia Wentworth Turnbull.)

SYNOPSIS.

Delivering a new car to a customer, James Elliot, lost in the fog, finds himself on some one's estate. Groping his way to the dark house, he finds the front door ajar. Entering, his flashlight reveals a girl, who commands him to run. A shot whistles after them as they flee to hide in the hayloft. The girl tells James she was searching for a necklace her dying Aunt Clementa had told her was hidden in the house. The girl vanishes before James can learn more. At his Cousin Daphne's party James meets the girl. She is Sally West, the sister of his college chum, Jocko West. She hints of danger to him—because of what he saw—her brother, and herself. Jackson, a rival salesman, takes credit for driving the car the night of the fog and is run over on the road and killed. Sally sees James. She is in fear of Ambrose Sylvester, the novelist, who is her guardian and was her aunt's trustee; also his wife, Hildegarde, and the latter's cousin, Henri Niemeyer. Jocko, after receiving a letter from his dying aunt, was pushed off a cliff. After the accident the letter is missing and Jocko cannot remember its contents.

INSTALMENT XIX.

IN LOVE.

Sally slid back the chair and got up. "I'm glad I've told you, because I had gone over it, and over it, and over it in my mind until I'd got it all twisted up, but now I've told you, I can see that there isn't anything in it. Jocko's fall was just an accident—it must have been."

"Yes? What about the letter?" said James.

She flashed into a sudden radiant smile.

"I've been stupid. Don't you see, Jocko must have torn it up himself. Why should he keep it? Of course he tore it up. What a relief!" She snatched up her cloak and pulled it round her. "I must hurry, hurry, hurry! I want to dance now—I didn't before! O, don't you wish you were coming, too? Would you like to?"

Suddenly, violently, James did wish it. His eyes said so. His tongue said something that it had begun to say.

"Somebody shot at us all the same. And some one did Jackson in."

That was what his tongue said, but next moment he could have bitten it savagely, because Sally's smile went out and her eyes stopped shining at him. She said in a woeful voice,

"I'd forgotten. I was only thinking about Jocko. You mustn't come. We mustn't see each other again."

It knocked James off his balance.

"Sally—Sally——"

She was clutching the big black cloak about her. It flowed over her in dark waves and hid all the whiteness of her dress.

"Don't! You mustn't! I must go."

James got hold of himself. He said in quite a steady voice:

"In a moment, Sally, you can give me a moment. We've got to straighten this out. You say we mustn't meet. Why?"

"Dangerous—I told you——" She choked a little.

"They think it was Jackson," said James doggedly.

"Suppose they find out it wasn't and they find out we're friends. How long do you suppose it would be before one of us—had—an accident? And Jocko is coming home; he'll be here any day now and we'd be dragging him into it. Don't you see it won't do? Let me go! I oughtn't to have come—I knew I oughtn't to!"

"Why did you come?"

"Because I wanted to."

"Then must you?"

"It's no use. Why does it hurt like this? We don't really know each other. We've got to forget."

He tipped up her chin and kissed her. Her face was all wet with tears. Her lips were trembling. They trembled against his. He said in an angry voice,

"Are you going to forget?"

Sally said "No" with a sob. And then, "I must. They'd kill you."

"Now we're getting down to it!" said James. "Now look here, Sally, I'm not taking any of this stuff about our not seeing each other again. It's no earthly use your trying to put it across me, because I'm not having any. I suppose I've fallen in love with you, and I suppose you've fallen in love with me. I don't know why it's happened to us, but it has. You're mine and I'm yours, and we're not going to give each other up. We're going to belong."

"We can't," said Sally.

"I do wish you wouldn't keep on saying that sort of thing! Whatever way you look at it, it seems to me you want some one to look after you, and if there's any dirty work going on, well, you want some one all the more—don't you?"

Sally said, "Yes." And then, "Let me go now."

James went on holding her.

"We can meet without any one knowing if you think it's necessary. I shouldn't have said it was myself."

"James, please let me go. I must show up at this dance. Let me go now. I'll write to you—I promise I will."

He took her round to No. 24 and rang the bell, and stood well back in the shadow to see her go into the brightly lighted hall. He did not kiss her again.

James rang up his cousin Winifred and asked her to lunch next day. She was Gertrude's sister, and they were a good bit older than the other cousins, being the daughters by an early and extremely improvident marriage of his mother's eldest sister, Frederica.

Winifred Lushington had pushed her way brightly into journalism at the age of seventeen. She was now the assistant editor of a woman's paper. She was never quite able to forget that she was fifteen years older than James, and had frequently spanked him in the past. She had even, under supervision, given him his bottle. These things had induced a superiority complex which sometimes annoyed James a good deal. He was, however, prepared to put up with it today.

It was as well that he had braced himself, because Winifred's manner was distinctly tinged with the kind of solicitude which you expect from an aunt but resent in a cousin. She ordered lentil cutlets with tomato sauce, and a large cup of cocoa, a combination which made James shudder, and inquired how he was getting on at Atwells, using exactly the tone which all his aunts had used whenever they came down to see him at school. It required an effort of will to prevent himself from frowning as he replied that he was getting on all right, thank you, Winifred.

"You've been with them two years now, haven't you? . . . O, not quite? Well, I thought it was, because it was just after Daphne's wedding, but, of course, you ought to know. Well now, have you decided whether you'll put Aunt Millie's money into them or not?"

James said he hadn't decided yet.

"Well, what will you do if you don't? The job mayn't be perfect—very few jobs are—but what's the alternative?"

"I might set up on my own," said James.

"Somewhere in the Caucasus, I believe. She doesn't write, you know, not unless she wants anything, but she's promised us a series of articles when she gets back. I shall have to write them, of course—Gertrude's bone lazy. And we're paying her quite well, too."

Mixing Colors with a Blouse Is Tops in Style

BY RHEA SEEGER.

So you still crave some new clothes and don't want to spend too much of the hoard saved for Christmas buying? Try the accessory stunt again . . . jacket tops, or blouses, or whatever you dub them can rejuvenate an old dress.

See the short-sleeved beauties with rows of gold or silver dots against all bright colors and blacks. These are festive enough to wear as cocktail costume tops with a nice, slinky velvet skirt or with dress parade velvet suits for afternoon party wear.

Velvet separate skirts are priced for a skimpy budget, too. So are the sheath slips of thin wool or heavy crêpe the popular start for any good jacket trickery.

Velvet blouses with the dress-up short sleeve idea come in some delectable colors, a honey beige being an outstanding find. The vivid Christmas greens and reds are other important colors. Suave satin blouses with the newest chest draping and Grecian twists to the material offer good color contrast for any kind of a skirt. Aquamarine blue is going fast, and so are all the amber tints and the stronger tones of gold.

Equally good finds are the gay little glittery jackets with a strong blouse attraction. They're made out of rows of shiny metal fringe in gold or silver, both tones slightly tarnished. There is nothing too bright about these. The fringed jackets in color, black and white are still top attractions for dull crêpe skirts, thin wool skirts, or very plain dark dresses.

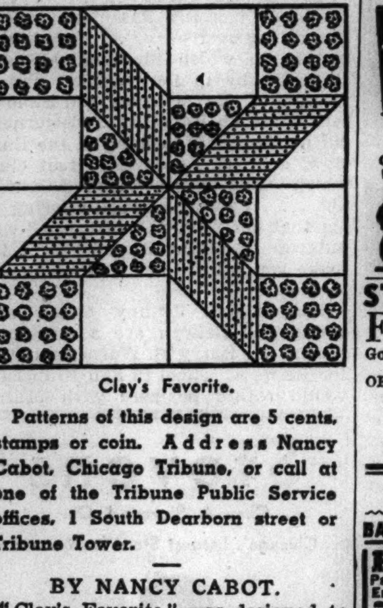
The Housewife

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

Almost any housewife would appreciate finding under the Christmas tree a gift we ran across recently. It is a tray for cocktails or a buffet supper and it hails from California. The tray part is of wood charmingly decorated in painted fruits on a crackled white ground. There are five glass dishes set in the center, one large square one, and on either side of it pairs of smaller ones of the same shape. These containers hold the makings for appetizers, or the jellies, olives, celery, nuts, etc., for a buffet supper. The price is most reasonable.

For information about these trays telephone Edith Weigle, Tribune Public Service office, Superior 0100.

Quilt Designed to Commemorate Political Event



Clay's Favorite.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Clay's Favorite" was designed to commemorate Henry Clay's efforts to maintain the union in 1832, when there was considerable agitation in the south for disunion. Proposals to admit California, a free state, to the union met with violent protest because it meant upsetting equality in the number of slave and free states. Henry Clay offered a compromise bill. The women of the period were keenly alive to the social distress at the time and wove the problem of the day into their quilt patterns. "Clay's Favorite" is variously called "Star of the West," "Henry's Star," and "Clay's Choice." It is pieced in a combination of printed and plain materials, and plain blocks are set together in an alternate arrangement with the pieced blocks.

Central Branch Y. W. C. A. Holds Annual Yule Party

The Central Branch Y. W. C. A. held its annual Christmas celebration, "The Hanging of the Greens," yesterday at 59 East Monroe street. As a new feature, a dramatical presentation of a Chinese legend, "T'Seng Jung and the Eight Immortals," was enacted by girls from all departments of the association.

Dr. Hoffman to Speak.

A characteristic of the gourmet is his willingness, even his eagerness, to try a new flavor. Only the unimaginative, one who eats less for pleasure than for the very necessity, is reluctant to experiment with foods.

That this is becoming a nation of gourmets is partly indicated by the surging popularity of that heretofore epicurean luxury fruit, the avocado. The flavor of the avocado is strange to the unaccustomed palate and, at the first trial, many a person has said: "It tastes flat. There's nothing to it." But in almost every instance where a first trial was followed by a second and third, a change of opinion has resulted.

The price of avocados now is within the reach of most pocketbooks, because the fruit is being grown extensively in the more tropical parts of this country. Florida avocados have been on the market all summer and fall, and now the California fruit is being shipped in for winter use. Large shipments also come from Mexico and Cuba. The color of the avocado ranges from light green through darker greens and to dark brown, depending upon variety. But the flavor of the finest specimens of each variety is much the same. The avocado long has been called by the misnomer, "alligator pear," but is not even distantly related to the pear family. It belongs to the laurel group of plants, along with cinnamon, sassafras, and camphor.

As a health fruit avocados rank high. Most varieties contain vitamins A, B, D, E, and G, and some even contain a little vitamin C.

High quality Florida fruit is stamped "Flavocado," and high quality California fruit "Calavo." Under these trade names the avocado will be largely found in the markets.

Tropical Aspic.
[Serves six.]

2 tablespoons cold water
1 cup hot water
1 cup sieved avocado
4 teaspoons lemon juice
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Few drops tabasco sauce
½ teaspoon celery salt
1 canned pimiento, chopped
Salt to season

Soak gelatin in cold water and dissolve in hot water. Cool and add avocado and remaining ingredients. Chill until firm in individual molds or in one larger mold.

When Christmas rolls around, a full cookie jar is more important than ever to the children in the family. Many cookie recipes have been compiled in the Tribune's booklet, "Filling the Cookie Jar," on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, Tribune Tower and 1 South Dearborn street, for 3 cents in stamps. By mail, 5 cents. Address mail requests to Mary Meade.

Most Valuable Pence Leader Gets Award at Episcopal Meeting

Alfred T. Spence of Waugegan last night was awarded the title of most valuable leader in the Bishop's pence movement of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago at the annual meeting of 200 pencemen of the diocese in the Church of the Atonement, Ardmore and Kenmore avenues. Bishop George Craig Stewart conferred the award.

The Bishop's pence was originated several years ago to stimulate the saying of grace at meals and to collect a penny a meal in special pence receptacles. Nearly $100,000 has been received by the local diocese since the plan was started.

George D. Hood of Beverly Hills was elected president of the Pencemen's association to succeed Wilbur J. Attridge of Lake Forest, who was elected treasurer.

in the Ray home, 5830 South Stony Island avenue. Bishop Herman Page of Detroit and the Rev. F. C. Benson Bellis officiated. Because of the recent death of the bride's father, the wedding was a quiet one, with only members of the two families and a few intimate friends present.

The bride, a member of the Chicago Junior league, attended the Emma Willard school and Connecticut college. Mr. Stewart attended Peekskill Military academy and Northwestern university. He and his bride will live in Chicago.

Jean Hawxhurst to Wed Kenneth Birney in February.

Two engagements also make interesting news. At a tea at home in Evanston Saturday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hawxhurst announced the engagement of their daughter, Jean, to Kenneth Birney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank O. Birney of Chicago. At the same time, at a tea in their Oak Park home, Mr. and Mrs. Judson L. Field announced the engagement of their daughter, Marion Low, to James Loring Peirce, son of Mrs. L. H. Peirce of Chicago.

The party at the Hawxhurst home was given by Miss Hawxhurst ostensibly for Miss Virginia Healy and Richard Page Sunderland, who are to be married Jan. 19, so all the young folks present were surprised to find they had a second engaged pair to congratulate. Miss Hawxhurst is a graduate of Northwestern university. Her fiancé is a graduate of the University of Michigan. Their wedding will be in February.

The wedding of Miss Field to Mr. Peirce also is planned for February. Miss Field is a graduate of Chevy Chase, in Washington, D. C., and has attended Knox college. Her fiancé is a graduate of Northwestern university.

CHARACTER- The Great Builder

(From the book "Standards of Business" by Elwood E. Rice, LL.D.)

In much the same way, the character of splendid men is builded into the businesses which comprise the membership of the Rice Leaders of the World Association. These concerns did not spring up in a day. Like the cathedrals, they represent years of effort, growing from the hearts and lives of men, who put into them a full measure of vision, of toil, and the spirit of service.

Because of such unswerving devotion to Character Standards, these manufacturers are privileged to be known as members of the Rice Leaders of the World Association, under the following

Qualifications for Membership:

QUALITY:	An honest product, of quality truthfully represented.
STRENGTH:	A responsible and substantial financial standing.

Look for the Association's heraldic Emblem, which portrays these high standards, on members' stationery, catalogs and literature. Wherever seen, it is your Warrant of Quality and Fair Dealing. Without reflecting upon manufacturers not enjoying membership, it testifies to CHARACTER, "the silent witness of every act, the great builder of reliable products."

BLACKHAWKS BEAT MONTREAL IN OVERTIME, 3-2

THOMPSON GETS DECIDING GOAL BEFORE 12,000

Romnes and Trudell Also Score.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Blackhawks last night executed a feat they couldn't accomplish all last season. They beat the Montreal Maroons, their first success against those fellows in nine games spreading over three seasons. The score was 3 to 2 and the victory was registered by Paul Thompson in 4:20 of the overtime on assists by Louie Trudell and Earl Seibert.

The victory edge was the third lead with which the Hawks had delighted 12,000 constituents. Doc Romnes scored in the first period on an assist from Thompson but Des Smith tied it up on a lucky shot in 4:30 of the second period. Trudell, on assists by Roger Jenkins and Johnny Gottselig, returned the Hawks to the lead in 11:45 of the third period, but Dave Trottier tied it up two minutes later.

Then came the slick victory effort by Thompson, et al. while Stew Evans was off the ice in the overtime.

Pull Away from Cellar.

The triumph enabled the Hawks to pull a game and a half away from the American division cellar and remain a game and a half out of the division's second place. The Detroit Red Wings, defending world champions, but cellar occupants, will play here Thursday night.

The Hawks played with great verve all night, though they did not draw a penalty in the seventy minutes of endeavor. The Maroons were penalized only once in the regular time, but twice in overtime. One of these penalties gave the Hawks their first penalty shot at home under the new rules. In the last two minutes of play Allan Shields was given a two minute tripping penalty and a ten minute misconduct assessment, which meant nothing in so far as the contest was concerned.

Romnes Scores First.

The Hawks developed many more scoring threats in the first period than did the Maroons, but nothing to put in the books until Romnes broke through in the last minute. The scoring thrust started as Thompson picked up the puck to Beveridge's right and about fifteen feet out. Paul set himself while waiting for Romnes to skate into position five feet in front of Beveridge and a bit to his left. When Doc was ready Paul passed and the former swished home the goal before the perplexed Maroons woke up to the maneuver. The time was 19:05.

The new rule to prevent golfing of the puck led to the Maroon goal that tied the score in 4:30 of the second period. Dahlstrom drove the rubber out of the Hawk defense zone with a forbidden golf stroke, which caused a faceoff to be ordered fifteen feet from the goal line. Blinco batted the disk to Smith, who was stationed on the blue line. Smith cut loose a long shot and, to the amazement of everybody, it slid past Goalie Karakas and into the net.

They Go Ahead Again.

The goal which put the Hawks ahead the second time was scored by Trudell in 11:45 of the third period. Jenkins carried the rubber over to the Maroons blue line. Gottselig picked it up near his left boards and passed laterally to Trudell, who fired from six feet inside the blue line to beat Beveridge and put the Hawks ahead, 2 to 1.

The advantage prevailed a little more than two minutes. Just before the scoring time of 13.50, Trottier, Robinson, and Wentworth stirred up a mêlée around the cage which ended when Trottier backhanded the puck past Karakas for the 2 to 2 tie.

In the overtime period Trudell got the puck and passed out to Seibert at the center of the blue line. Seibert let fly a long one which hit the end boards and bounced back. Thompson picked up the puck and rammed it home in 4:20, with Trudell and Seibert earning assists.

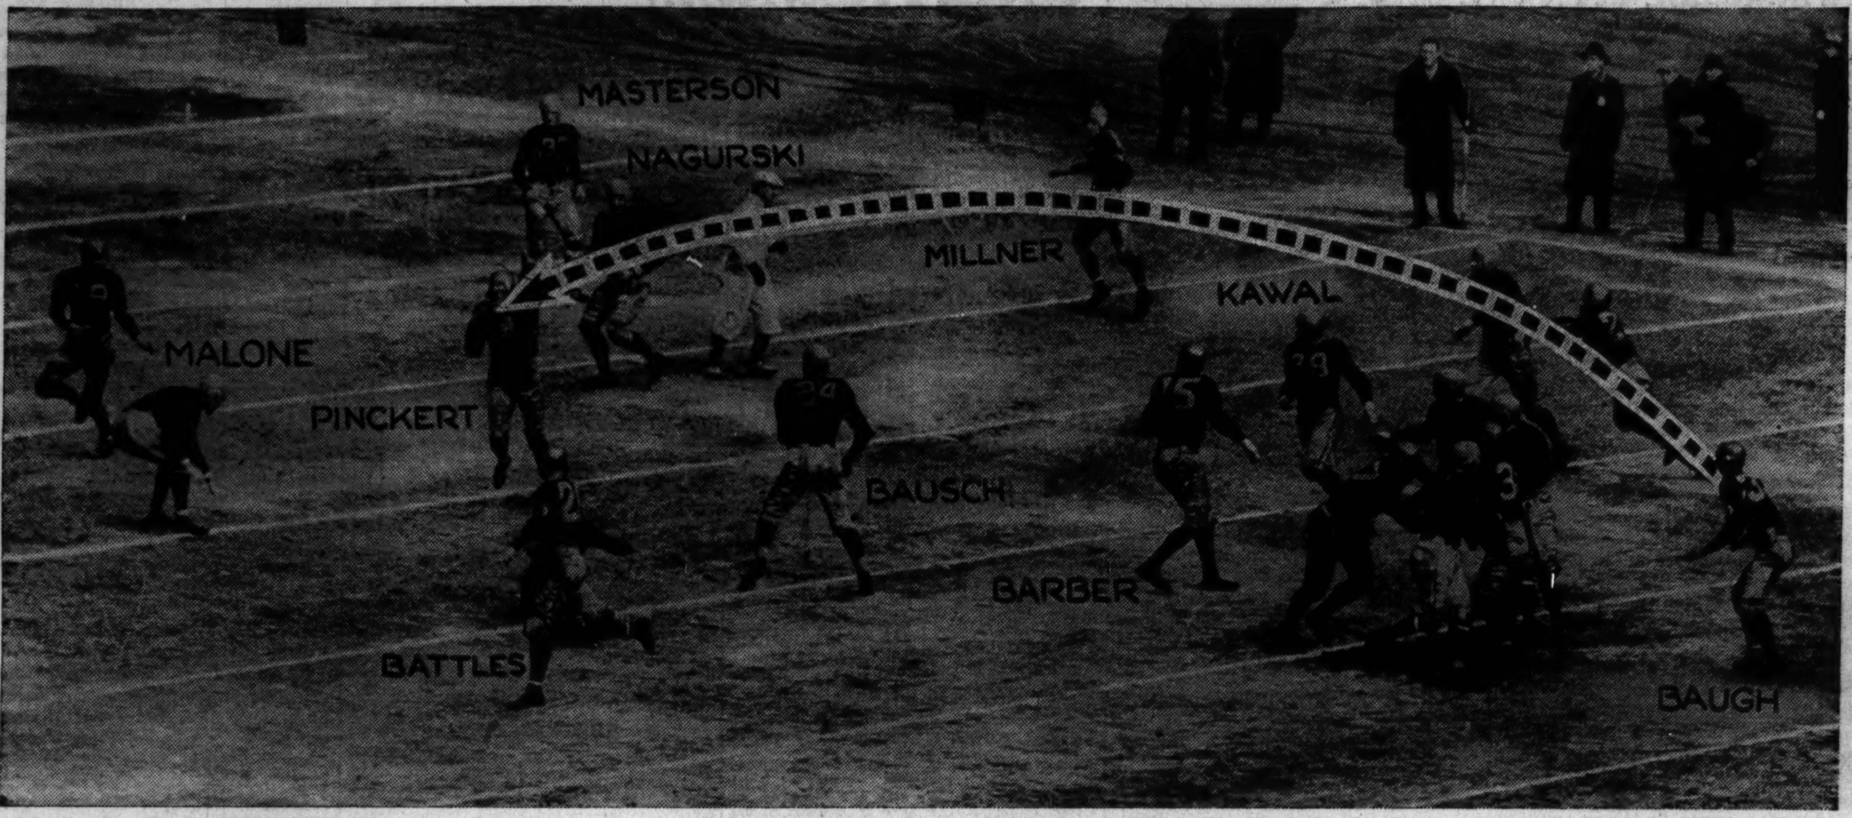
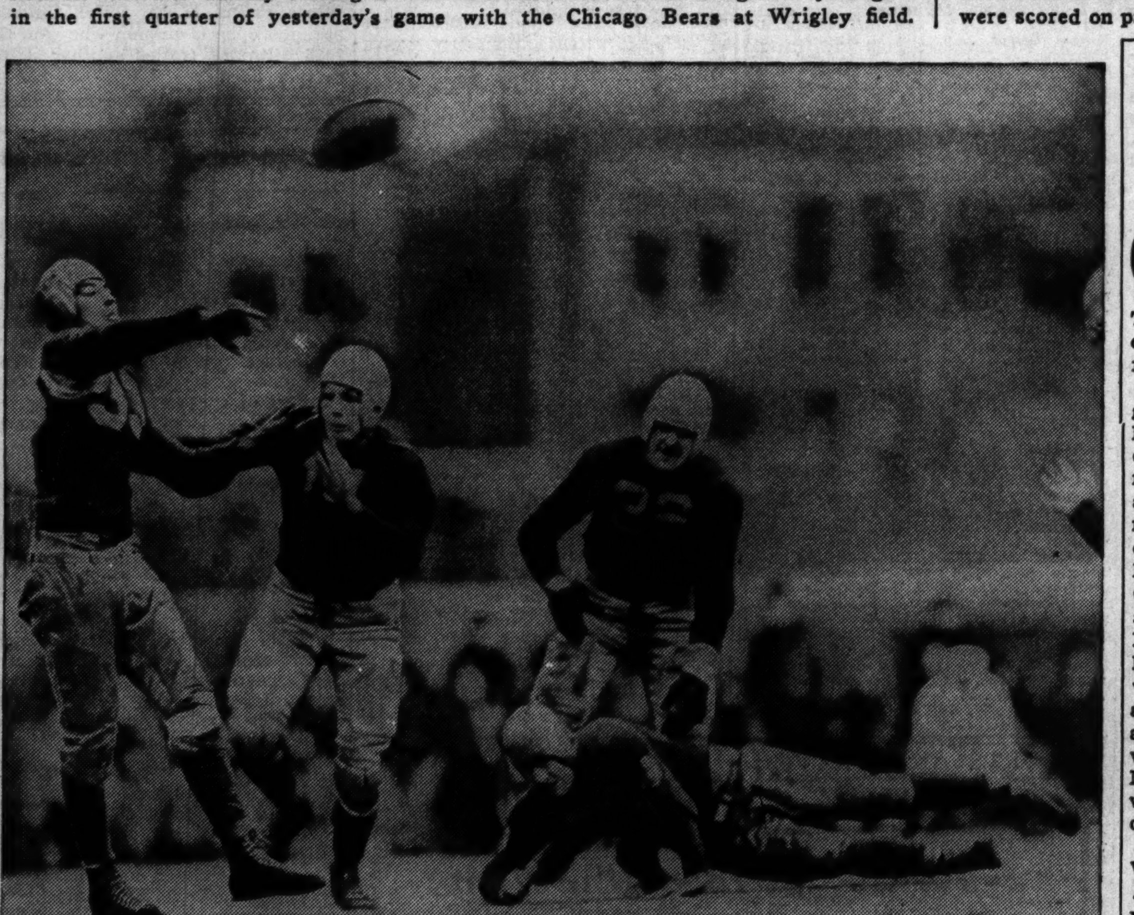
Here's That Redskin Passing Attack That Won Championship



Sammy Baugh, Washington's great forward pass thrower, lives up to advance notices. Here is Sammy making a toss to Ernie Pinckert for a eighteen yard gain in the first quarter of yesterday's game with the Chicago Bears at Wrigley field.

Baugh's passing was the deciding factor in the Redskins' 28 to 21 victory which gave them the National Professional league championship. Three of Washington's four touchdowns were scored on passes thrown by Baugh. He completed 18 out of 33.



Sammy Baugh gets away a pass just before Dick Plasman of the Bears reaches him. Del Bjork, Bear tackle, is No. 82. Don Irwin, Redskin full back, is on the ground. This play gained eight yards during the third quarter of yesterday's championship game.

Rube Benton, Former Pitcher in Majors, Dies After Crash

Dothan, Ala., Dec. 12.—(AP)—J. C. [Rube] Benton, former major league baseball pitcher, died here tonight from injuries he received in an auto accident near Ozark, Ala., last night.

Rube Benton.

Benton was one of eight involved in the accident. Dewey Lee Clark, 33, of Eufaula, Ala., was killed. Clark and the one time Cincinnati hurler were riding in the same car.

A STAR SOUTHPAW

John C. [Rube] Benton was at one time regarded one of the best left-handed pitchers in the National league. Born in Clinton, N. C., in 1890, he starred with the Lakeland, Fla., and Macon, Ga., minor league clubs before being sold by the latter team to Cincinnati in 1910 for $3,500.

He was optioned to Chattanooga in 1911, but came back to Cincinnati in 1912 and pitched for the Reds for almost four seasons, winning a total of fifty-four games while losing sixty-three. Sold to Pittsburgh in August, 1915, he was ordered to the New York Giants on a writ of error.

His three best years with the Giants were 1916, 1917, and 1918, during which he won forty-eight games against twenty-eight defeats.

He was sent to St. Paul in 1921, came back to the big leagues for the last time with Cincinnati in 1923, and was again released to St. Paul in 1925, staying with that club for several years.

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

CONGRATULATIONS to Coach Ray Flaherty, Owner George P. Marshall, and the Washington Redskins for their brilliant victory over the Chicago Bears! . . . We welcome you as the first eastern representatives of the National Professional Football league to qualify for THE TRIBUNE's annual All-Star game. . . . Chicago eagerly awaits the return of Sammy Baugh to Soldiers' field, where he established his reputation as football's greatest passer in this year's All-Star game. . . .

You will get some idea why intercollegiate sports leaders strive to curb gambling on football games when you learn that one of the most widely known players the sport has produced once was offered $10,000 to let an opponent score. . . . The gamblers in that instance contacted the wrong fellow, because he would have no part of their deal, but it is more than a possibility that some time an athlete will yield. . . . Milwaukee will enter more teams in this winter's American Bowling Congress tournament than the entire five man entry in Chicago's 1912 meet. . . . It will have more than 600 lineups. . . . In 1912 the complete registration was 596 teams. . . . Southern California next fall will play seven Pacific Coast conference football games and three breathers, as Assistant Coach Bob McNeish jokingly puts it—Notre Dame, Ohio State, and Alabama. . . . Barnet David Rasofsky changed his name to Barney Ross while competing as an amateur boxer so his mother wouldn't know he was fighting. . . . The national football ratings, compiled annually by Prof. Frank G. Dickinson of the University of Illinois, which appeared yesterday, were later than usual this season because of a three weeks' illness from which Mr. Dickinson is recovering. . . . Thomas Dewey, New York's celebrated district attorney, was rushed by a certain fraternity when he enrolled at the University of Michigan, but the brothers finally decided they didn't want him because he was too much of a sissy. . . .

Cliff Battles, the Washington Redskins' brilliant half back, will return to Washington to accept a position as sales manager for a soft drink company. . . . Jack Eicherly, Iowa's 1938 football captain, scored 271 points in his senior year at Holstein, Ia., High school. . . . Les Olsson, Redskin guard, is a son of Brute Olsson, an outstanding lineman with the Canton, O., Bulldogs years ago. . . . Turk Edwards, Washington tackle, operates a gold mine in California during the off season. . . . Joe Platak, national handball champion, spends three hours a day at practice. . . . Most of this is done alone. . . . John Dungan Rigney, White Sox pitcher, is managing a basketball team. . . . His boys play the Harlem Globe Trotters Tuesday night at Fenwick High school.

BEARS FIND OUT WHY THEY CALL BAUGH THE BEST

Washington Wizard Just Too Clever.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Sammy Baugh is the greatest forward passer football ever has seen. It was Baugh yesterday who whipped Chicago's Bears and took the championship of the National Professional league to Washington, just as it was Baugh who defeated the New York Giants a week ago, and sent the Redskins into the title game.

Benny Friedman and Harry Newman, great forward passers, were expert. Newman was the star of the Giants when the Bears won their last world title in the now famous 23 to 21 game at Wrigley field. But Baugh—and this was the consensus of yesterday's thousands—is superior to either of these men.

Baugh not only threw accurately but he had the ability to hold his fire until the last possible second, regardless of the charging Bear linesmen, who frequently sent him to the frozen ground as viciously as possible.

They Can't Stop Him.

Baugh could not be stopped. It is true that his average number of completions did not equal his record last Sunday, when he threw eleven passes in fifteen attempts to defeat the Giants, but cold weather and the Bears' plan of defense, as compared with New York's five man line, accounted for that. But Baugh was the deciding factor in yesterday's game.

Consider what Baugh did. By virtue of one pass completed, for forty-three yards, he gave early warning to Chicago that he had the range, so when he handed the ball to Cliff Battles for a reverse play on the Chicago 7 yard line the threat of a pass made Battles' dash a bit easier. Battles scored. Cliff, the leading ground gainer of the league, scarcely needed this help, but as long as Baugh took the pass from center, the Bears' secondary defenders always had to think first of a pass and then to consider what Battles might do.

He Really Goes to Work.

Baugh didn't get the credit due him for this initial score of the game, but Sammy only was warming up. The Bears came back, scored in four plays to tie the count and left the rest period leading, 14 to 7, when Bernie Masterson completed a three yard pass to Manske for a second touchdown.

In the third quarter Baugh went to work. In this fifteen minutes Washington was credited with seven completed passes in nine attempts. These passes gained 220 yards, and three of them scored touchdowns. Never in the history of major football competition has any passer done as well.

Baugh threw to Wayne Millner on the fifth play of the third period and Millner completed the gain of fifty-five yards for the touchdown which tied the Bears, 14 to 14.

The Bears received the kickoff and marched seventy-two yards for a touchdown. Then, on the first play after the kickoff, Baugh again passed to Millner, who ran to the goal for a total gain of seventy-seven yards to tie the score at 21 to 21.

Duplicates Earlier Pass.

Then, on the first succeeding occasion Washington had the ball, Baugh completed an eighty yard drive with a thirty-five yard pass to Justice, the full back, for the score of 28 to 21 by which Washington won the world's football title.

This winning touchdown pass was a duplicate of the pass by Baugh which broke the threat of the Giants' rally last week. Baugh went wide, faked a throw—and he handles a football as if he were playing baseball—and then threw long to Justice, who went down the gridiron to the goal.

SAMMY BAUGH THROWS THREE SCORING PASSES

Completes 18 of 33 for 335 Yards.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Washington's Redskins, skimming over the frozen turf of Wrigley field on the wings of Sammy Baugh's unerring passes, won the professional football championship of the world yesterday by defeating the Chicago Bears, 28 to 21, in the fifth annual National league playoff before 15,878.

Three touchdown passes by Baugh in the third period climaxed one of the finest demonstrations of individual play in the history of the game and qualified the Redskins as professional football's representative in THE TRIBUNE's All-Star contest against the college All-Americans next summer.

Baugh Completes 18 Passes.

Baugh, former Texas Christian half back and captain of THE TRIBUNE's 1937 All-Star team, reached new heights yesterday as he led Washington to its first league championship with the coöperation of those expert pass receivers, Wayne Millner, Cliff Battles, Ed Justice and Charles Malone.

Baugh threw thitry-three passes, assuming the brunt of Washington's offensive burden when precarious footing, even in the basketball shoes in which both teams played, curtailed the effectiveness of Battles' running ability. He completed eighteen of these passes for a total gain of 335 yards.

The 15,878 spectators, lured out into the numbing cold by the prospect of seeing Baugh, the game's greatest passer, stood and acclaimed the elongated Texan with thunderous applause as he left the field late in the fourth quarter, cheering the man for his performance and the performance for its matchless brilliance. It was recognition richly deserved and sincerely given.

Score Tied Three Times.

As a contest, the game rivaled the first National league playoff held at Wrigley field in 1933 when the Bears, eleven of whom participated in yesterday's spectacle, defeated the New York Giants, 23 to 21. The score yesterday was tied three times and the lead changed hands three times in a rapid succession of sensational plays.

After passing forty-three yards to Battles on Washington's first play from scrimmage, Baugh completed three consecutive passes to set up the touchdown on which the Redskins took a 7 to 0 lead early in the first period. Battles went over from the 7 yard line for the score and Riley Smith, a former Tribune All-Star from Alabama, added the extra point.

Manders Goes Over.

Late in the period they forged to the front on Bernie Master's thirty-seven yard pass to Manders. The extra point was again added by Manders and the Bears, seeking to regain the title they lost to the Giants in the famed rubber shoe playoff of 1934, led at the half, 14 to 7.

Shivering spectators had hardly returned from under the stands after the intermission when Baugh unleashed a fifty-five yard touchdown pass to Millner, former Notre Dame end and also a Tribune All-Star in 1936. This occurred on the fifth play of the third quarter. Riley Smith kicked the extra point to tie the score. Thirteen plays later, the Bears regained the lead, winding up an unbroken march of seventy-two yards from the kickoff with Masterson's three yard pass to Eggs Manske for a touchdown.

Redskins Tie It Again.

MARQUART AND LELLO DEFEND GOOD RECORDS

Climbing Lightweights Meet at Marigold.

Pete Lello, who won twenty successive bouts before suffering his first setback at the hands of Sammy Angott last June 2, will attempt to start a new march at the expense of Billy Marquart, junior lightweight from out Winnipeg, Man., way, in a ten round contest tonight at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street.

At the same time Marquart, who scored thirteen straight victories before being tripped ingloriously by Varias Milling last May 3, will seek to increase his current string of four triumphs.

The bout is a tossup. Although Lello has more experience, Bill has scored two decisions over Sammy Angott, the first at Marigold, Sept. 20, and the other at Chicago Stadium, Nov. 16.

However, both lads won high honors in amateur competition last year before turning professional. Pete won the Chicago Golden Gloves lightweight championship and Marquart the Canadian Olympic featherweight crown.

Supporting matches:

Everett Simington vs. George Van Der Hayden [5], 137.
Nate Bolden vs. Wilbur Dunn [4], 165.
Willie Joyce vs. Sam Scully [4], 130.
Emil Campagna vs. Jack Pumphrey [4], heavyweights.

Mike Kilonis, Schenectady, N. Y., heavyweight wrestler, and Frankie Talaber, Illinois light heavyweight champion, will meet at White City, 63d street and South Park avenue, tonight. Supplementary events will bring together Stan Buresch and Jack Claybourn, Jack [Bad Boy] Brown and Roy Rickenbacher, Denny Lentz and Danny Winters, and Ken Fenlon and Al Perry.

The sixth annual amateur boxing tournament sponsored by the Illinois Athletic club will be held Jan. 12, 13, and 19, it was announced yesterday by Johnny Behr, the club's sports director. At least three new champions will be crowned inasmuch as Heavyweight Alex Kettles, Middleweight Nate Bolden, and Welterweight William Thomas have since turned professional. The five other 1937 title holders are:

Shibe Smallwood, Mount Vernon, Ill., light heavyweight.
William Goldsmith, Catholic Youth organization lightweight.
Andrew Filmore, Savoy A. C., featherweight.
Frank Kainrath, C. Y. O., bantamweight.
Eugene Tookes, C. Y. O., flyweight.

St. Laurence Lights Win in C. Y. O. Meet

Last minute victories featured yesterday's opening of the 1937-'38 C. Y. O. basketball tournament in which teams competed in twenty-six gymnasiums throughout the city.

Last year's lightweight champion, St. Laurence, opened its schedule with a 24 to 7 victory over St. Bride at Mount Carmel High gym. Close games in the lightweight bracket included the 21 to 17 overtime triumph of Our Lady of Victory over St. Robert Bellarmine and the Holy Mount-St. Anthony contest which the former won, 25 to 22, after two overtime periods.

St. Agatha's heavies won a see-saw battle from Blessed Sacrament, 58 to 54, and St. Andrew's heavies came from behind to defeat St. Edward in the closing minute of play, 30 to 28.

Scores follow:

N. U. ELEVEN MAY PLAY OKLAHOMA AT HOME IN 1939

Oklahoma City, Okla., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Prospects of a football game between the University of Oklahoma and Northwestern university in 1939 appeared likely tonight following a conference between coaches of the two institutions.

"There is a pretty good chance that we will play Oklahoma at Evanston in 1939," said Lynn Waldorf, Northwestern coach, as he departed after a three day visit here. Waldorf and Tom Stidham, University of Oklahoma coach, were speakers at a football banquet here last night.

Finds Serious Lack of Duck Food in Illinois

BY BOB BECKER.

Mr. Duck Hunter, here is an interesting scientific angle on why ducks that came to the Illinois river valley last month couldn't stay in the river bottoms to feed, and the relation between feed in some sloughs and the number of ducks shot there during November. It comes from Frank Bellrose Jr. of the experimental zoölogy laboratory, Champaign, Ill., who has been studying natural duck foods in the Illinois river valley. He writes:

"Your recent articles in THE TRIBUNE on the calamitous waterfowl situation in the Illinois river valley are of great interest to me as they correlate with my investigations on the waterfowl of that region.

Lack of Duck Food.

"I have surveyed natural aquatic and marsh plants of the river and adjoining lakes from Ottawa to Grafton. The survey disclosed a serious lack of aquatic duck food over the entire Illinois valley except at Starved Rock [Ottawa], Swan lake, Big lake, Goose lake, Rice lake, Spring lake and Chautauqua lake [between Havana and Pekin]. These lakes contained an abundance of various water plants due to stabilization of the water levels by dams.

"Diametrically opposed to this was the condition found in such lakes as Senachwine [Henry], Stewart lake, Sangamon bay, Treadway lake, and Muscooten bay [Havana-Beardstown]. Here there was little duck food due mostly to fluctuations of water levels.

"This year the water was high in June and early July preventing many plants that reseed themselves every year from getting a good growth.

An Interesting Contrast.

"Fred Rohn, a Beardstown duck club owner, accompanied me on a trip through Sangamon bay, Treadway lake and Muscooten bay on Oct. 31. On these areas totaling about 2,800 acres we counted only 3,221 ducks. A week before at Duck Island Gun club I estimated 25,000 ducks on 2,700 acres. Now contrast these figures. At Fred Rohn's club [where we counted few birds] only 123 ducks were killed this year in comparison to 1,245 last year. At the Duck Island club about 1,400 were killed this year compared to 1,540 last year.

"These facts show a definite correlation between water levels, natural foods and the number of ducks. Where there was plenty of food plus water there was good shooting. Where there was no natural foods [and water] the kill was very low."

Revolta Shoots a 70 to Lead $10,000 Open

Miami, Fla., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill., cracked out a 70 today—his third subpar round—to lead the field with 209 at the 54 hole mark in the $10,000 Miami Biltmore open.

While Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., was slipping to a 72 to drop two strokes back of Revolta, a new contender—long hitting Jimmy Thomson of Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., flashed into the picture with a phenomenal 65, six below par and a new course record.

Thomson's 65 gave him a 54 hole total of 210 along with Dick Metz, young Chicago pro, who shot a 67.

Thomson, virtually ignored in the field after a first round 72, followed by a 73 yesterday, could make no mistakes. Approaching with newfound confidence after his usual tremendous drives, he missed only four greens and didn't go over par on a single hole.

Makes Six Birdies.

Thomson, Scottish born and still unnaturalized, putted for birdies on ten greens—and made it on six of them.

The former course record, 66, was set in 1935 by Ted Turner, of Pine Valley, N. J., and equaled last year by Lawson Little of San Francisco.

Revolta, in characteristic style, missed ten greens but compensated for it by sticking his chip shots close to the pins and downing the putts most of the way. An eight foot putt dropped for him on the first hole, where he got a birdie, and he rolled in a thirty-five footer on the fifth for another.

Snead's putting touch was not as sure as it was the first two days, when he paced the field. He went one over par on the second by missing an eight footer and on the seventh he chipped twenty feet past the pin and missed coming back for a one over par five.

Ten Players Better Par.

Ten players bettered par in an ideal day for golf. There was virtually no wind.

Metz, staging a comeback after being injured in an automobile accident last spring, shot four birdies, and, like Thomson, never went over par. Eight foot putts gave him birdies on the first and tenth holes, and he got another on the seventeenth with a 20 footer. He reached the eighteenth green with two fine wood shots and got down in two easy putts for his fourth birdie.

Horton Smith of Chicago, who was one stroke back of the leaders yesterday, scored a 73 for a total 213. E. J. Harrison of Little Rock, Ark., with a two under par 69 today, was even with Smith.

Jim Turnesa Takes 77.

Jim Turnesa of Providence, R. I., a stroke off the pace at 36 holes, virtually shot himself out of the running with a 77 for a 217 total. At the same figure was Harry Cooper of Chicopee, Mass., who carded a 71 today.

Most of the other big name golfers were far back tonight. Denny Shute, P. A. G. champion, was at the 220 notch along with Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y. Ralph Guldahl, national open champion who won the 1936 Biltmore, trailed another stroke further back.

SCHMELING, ON TRAIL OF TITLE, FACES THOMAS

New York, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Max Schmeling, the man who showed them Joe Louis could be whipped, returns to the boxing ring tomorrow night in a fifteen round engagement with Harry Thomas, hard hitting Chicago heavyweight, in Madison Square Garden.

For Schmeling this is merely the first of several warm up bouts to gear him for a June title struggle with Louis, whom Max knocked out last year, but it may prove a stiffer test than many [Schmeling included] figure. Thomas is not the best heavyweight in the world, but neither is he anybody's setup.

Wins 51 Out of 56 Fights.

He is a rugged young man who has won fifty-one of his fifty-six professional fights. Most of them were against second and third raters, but Harry won forty-three of them via the knockout route. He never has been knocked down, much less knocked out. He is game and hits hard with either fist.

Although Thomas has been the recipient of the most elaborate build-up given a fighter in recent years, not many give him better than an outside chance to beat Schmeling. Most fight men agree Thomas will have to be lucky to win. There is always a possibility he may find a vulnerable spot with his Sunday punch, but it is hardly more than that.

Schmeling is a notoriously slow starter. Usually he requires five or six rounds to warm up. If he can escape Thomas' right—his favorite weapon—that long, the consensus is that Schmeling can go on to win much as he pleases.

Schmeling Wants Work.

If Schmeling has his way there'll be no speedy knockout. Max needs work. He feels he must have two or three fairly stiff battles under his belt to be at his best for Louis in June and tomorrow's fight is just a part of that program.

Odds on the German soared from 2 to 1 to 3 to 1 today, with the likelihood they may be even higher when the boys climb into the ring at approximately 9 p. m. [C. S. T.]. Little or no betting is reported.

Cheered by yesterday's ticket sale, Promoter Mike Jacobs continued to insist the fight will gross $75,000, with between 15,000 and 17,000 customers in the stands.

Fighters Work Hard.

The fighters are ready. Thomas has put in three weeks of hard work at Pompton Lakes, N. J., while at Summit, N. J., Schmeling has drilled himself into what his handlers say is the best shape of his thirteen year ring career. Schmeling says he worked just as hard for Thomas as he did for his all-important test with Louis eighteen months ago.

Four sixes and one four round bout constitute the supporting cast. All feature heavyweights.

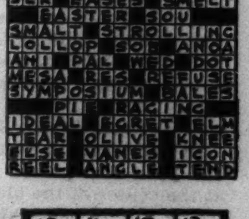
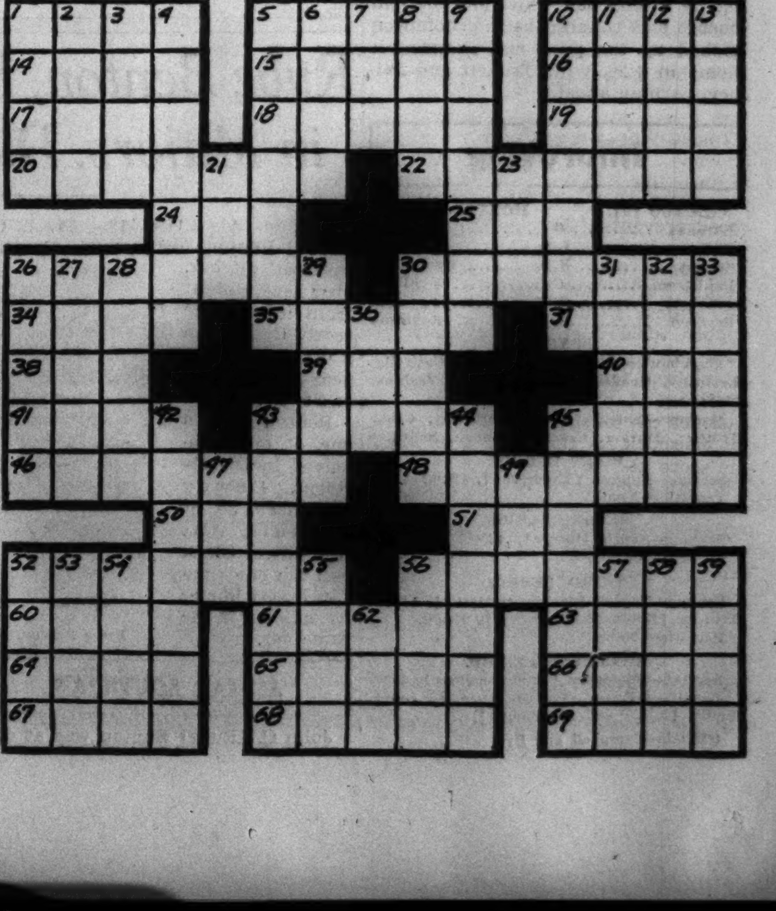
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED





REDSKINS BEAT BEARS, 28-21, IN DUEL FOR TITLE

Baugh's 3d Period Pass Wins for Washington.

reverberating off nearby apartment buildings when Baugh and Millner wiped out the advantage with the most spectacular play of the contest. Baugh passed twenty-nine yards to Millner and the fleet end beat Bronko Nagurski and Manders in a race for the goal. The play covered seventy-seven yards and with R. Smith's tenth consecutive point after touchdown, tied the score for the third time.

Several minutes later Baugh capped his superb performance by producing the touchdown that eventually was to decide the game and the championship. He calmly faked a pass to Malone. Then, fading back eight yards, he fired a long pass to Half Back Justice, who completed a thirty-five yard gain with an eleven yard run to the goal.

Baugh's passing was made all the more effective by the flawless generalship of R. Smith and an offense designed to exploit the Texan's talent. While the Bears strove desperately to score on a series of long high passes by Ray Buivid and Masterson, R. Smith broke receivers into the clear repeatedly by strategically switching from long to short tosses, thus keeping the Bear secondary in a continual state of bewilderment.

Bear Passes Fail.

The turning point in the game came early in the fourth quarter when the Bears, trailing 28 to 21, reached Washington's 24 yard line on a 32 yard pass, Buivid to Pug Rentner, who was a member of the Redskins last year when, representing Boston, they were defeated by the Green Bay Packers in the playoff at New York.

The Bears resorted to four consecutive passes here, ignoring the running attack with which they had blasted their way to their third touchdown. All four were broken up and they surrendered the ball on downs.

Later in the period the Bears experienced their most disheartening break when, after recovering Millner's fumble on their own 14 yard line, they advanced seventy-nine yards in five plays to the Redskins' 7 yard line. Masterson went back to pass on third down and when he was trapped he slipped trying to elude Big Turk Edwards, losing seven yards. A fourth down pass into the end zone fell incomplete.

Fight Breaks Out.

The final, futile challenge began with Keith Molesworth's thirty-five yard pass to Richard Plasman, Rookie end, who came to blows with Baugh and was pummeled by Redskin substitutes when Baugh forced him out of bounds in front of the Washington bench. This set-to, in which both teams participated, was the only outward manifestation of the intense rivalry and fierce play which characterized the game.

The Bears had the better line, except for the ends, where Millner and Malone played superby for sixty minutes. But the Redskins had Baugh.

Baugh began passing as soon as Washington took the ball from the Bears in the first quarter. Nolting's thirty-eight yard punt had gone out of bounds on the Redskins' 8 yard line. Baugh dropped back into punt formation and faded into the end zone as Bear line men charged in. He flipped a short pass to Battles and the big half back went forty-three yards to the Bears' 49 yard line.

Redskins March to Goal.

Baugh's first and second down passes were incomplete, but his third one went to R. Smith for fourteen yards. He followed with an eighteen yard toss to Pinckert, putting the ball on the Bears' 21 yard line. His third consecutive completion netted six yards, R. Smith taking the ball on the 15 yard line. Baugh got three yards inside Right Tackle Bjork and Battles made the third first down in the march with a two yard plunge to the 10 yard line. Battles added three more on a smash, then Manders knocked down Baugh's flat pass to him. On third down Battles took the ball from Baugh on a weak side reverse and as Wilson smashed in from his right end position, Battles slipped outside him for seven yards and the touchdown. R. Smith kicked the ball into Waveland avenue, adding the extra point.

Bears Tie Score.

Nolting brought the kickoff back eighteen yards to the Bears' 28 yard line and got two yards on a wide end run to the left. With a lead, the Redskins substituted Justice for Pinckert to strengthen their pass defense, but on the first play, Masterson dropped back from under the center and tossed straight up the field to Manske, who cut over to the right and ran 15 yards to the Washington 18 yard line. It was a gain of fifty-two yards and only Battles' great speed prevented the play from going for a touchdown.

Nagurski then went outside Right Tackle Barber and ran over Baugh for eight yards. Manders then popped inside Left Tackle Edwards on a quick opening play from a man in motion formation, ran right at Battles and charged over the half back for the touchdown. His successful placekick for the extra point tied the score at 7 to 7.

Washington advanced twenty-nine yards in five plays after Manders had kicked off over the goal line for a touchback. Baugh broke off tackle twelve yards, passed to Malone for three and lobbed a shovel pass to Millner for thirteen yards on an end around on consecutive plays before Wilson intercepted his pass on the Redskins' 49 yard line.

Manders made four, then five yards on quick opening plays from a man in motion and Nolting added three on a similar attack to make it first down on the 37 yard line. Manders broke into the clear past Battles on the next play and took a pass from Masterson. Wilson took Battles out of the play with a perfect block just as the Redskin lunged for Manders and Manders went twenty yards to a touchdown. Manders added the extra point to put the Bears ahead for the first time, 14 to 7.

Millner Scores on Pass.

Washington tied the score on the first five plays of the third period, starting from the 32 yard line where Irwin had been brought down with the kickoff. Irwin got two yards. Baugh passed seven to Millner and Irwin made it first down on the Redskins' 45 yard line with a six yard smash off the weak side. Baugh rushed up to the line and threw a short jump pass to Millner in the flat at the left, but Millner dropped the ball.

On the next play Millner cut across through the secondary from his left end position and eluded Manders to take Baugh's bullet pass for twenty yards. Millner beat Manders in a thirty-five yard race for the goal line, going over just as Masterson got up to tackle him. R Smith added the extra point and the score was tied, 14 to 14.

Bear power then unleashed itself for its one devastating demonstration of the day and blasted all before it, as the Chicagoans marched back into the lead. Manders ran over two tacklers to bring the kickoff back twenty-three yards to the 28 yard line. Nagurski drove outside tackle for six yards, and Manders bowled Baugh out of the way to go twenty-three yards on a quick opening play.

Nolting jammed into the line for eight yards. After Manske just missed reaching Masterson's long pass over the secondary, Nolting added two more yards on a quick opening play inside tackle, making it first down on the Redskin 35 yard line. Nagurski charged into Edwards, blew him back on his bloomers, and bullied his way nineteen yards to the 14 yard line, on a man in motion play. Manders added four, then repeated inside tackle for five. Nagurski's two yard plunge produced the fourth first down in the drive and put the ball on the 3 yard line.

Bear Pass Scores.

He attempted to go outside Edwards on the next play, but when trapped he lateraled to Masterson, who fumbled. Masterson recovered the ball and fired a forward pass to Manske, but it was incomplete. Another pass failed, but on third down, with the Redskins massing an eight man line to stop Nagurski and Manders, Masterson passed over center to Manske for the touchdown, completing an unbroken march of seventy-two yards. Manders added the extra point.

The lead endured for less than a minute. R. Smith returned the kickoff fourteen yards to the 23 yard line. On first down Baugh faded back and passed twenty-nine yards to Millner, who started up the field with Nagurski and Manders in pursuit. Nagurski was no match for the fleeing end, but Manders was able to get his hands on him as he went across the goal line. It was a gain of seventy-seven yards, and when R. Smith added the extra point the score was tied for the third time.

The Bears received the ensuing kickoff and Manders made thirteen yards on second down to reach midfield before the Redskin line braced and forced Nolting to punt over the goal line for a touchback. From this point the Redskins again started goalward.

Start Winning March.

Irwin made nine yards through center from a modified spread formation to get the winning march under way. The same play was good for seven yards, and a first down. Irwin added two off tackle and Baugh's pass was knocked down. The drive appeared to have spent itself. A ten yard pass, Baugh to Malone, on third down, kept it alive, however. Baugh passed eight yards to Millner and Irwin made a yard on successive drives.

It was first down on the Bears' 42 yard line. Baugh flipped a snap pass to Irwin for seven yards. On second down Riley Smith, calling the play that baffled the Giants so repeatedly last week, sent Baugh back to pass. The elongated Texan calmly faked to Malone, then faded back five more yards and threw a long pass to Justice, who had slipped away from Masterson. Justice ran eleven yards to the goal line, completing a thirty-five yard gain. R. Smith brought the score up to its final status of 28 to 21 by making his eleventh consecutive point after touchdown in two games and his twenty-sixth of the season.

Bears Know Now Just How Good Baugh Is

Jack Manders also scored three points and that all seven points after touchdowns were made.

Yesterday's championship battle was a passing contest. Because of the frozen ground, neither team could gain consistently except by air. Jack Manders was the best of the ground rushers. Bronko Nagurski broke away on occasion, but the touchdowns were made through the air.

In this Baugh had the better of Masterson and Ray Buivid, despite the Bears' success in midfield, and in giving credit to Baugh no one can forget Wayne Millner, one time All-American from Notre Dame, who made two of Baugh's throws equal touchdowns and was in every play on defense.

The Bears used five men on the line of scrimmage, but in the disposition of the secondary they did a far better job than the Giants did a week ago.

They Figured, but Not Enough.

The Bears had every play figured, except that when Baugh threw—and Sammy can hit a bull's eye—the defender frequently couldn't be in the exact position.

The Bears, however, have several opportunities to question the outcome of the game. When the Chicagoans swept down to Washington's 24 yard line in the fourth period, trailing, 28 to 21, one might question the four passes the Bears attempted which lost possession of the ball.

Immediately afterward the Redskins came to the Bears' 19 yard line, but here a fumble and Bill Conkright's recovery of a fumble erased the threat. The Bears had one more oportunity to tie the score, but, despite the wide open game, Chicago could not capitalize.

You can forget all details of this game, however, except that Baugh played for Washington. And Washington, with Baugh, is the champion of the professional league.

Here's Record of Baugh's Passes That Beat Bears

Sammy Baugh, captain of THE TRIBUNE'S All-Star team last summer, threw thirty-three passes and completed eighteen for a total gain of 335 yards yesterday as the Washington Redskins defeated the Bears for the professional championship. Baugh's passing record for the game follows:

FIRST HALF.

Receiver.	Gain.	Receiver.	Gain.
*Battles	43	R. Smith	6
*R. Smith	14	Malone	3
*Pinckert	18	†Millner	13

Threw fifteen, completed six for ninety-seven yards; one intercepted.

SECOND HALF.

Receiver.	Gain.	Receiver.	Gain.
Millner	7	‡Justice	35
‡Millner	35	Justice	22
‡Millner	77	*Millner	9
*Malone	10	†Millner	—2
Millner	8	*Battles	21
Irwin	7	†Millner	9

Threw eighteen, completed twelve for 238 yards; none intercepted.

Millner, also a former All-Star, caught eight of Baugh's eighteen completions for two touchdowns and 158 yards.

Baugh carried the ball three times from scrimmage, making advances of three, twelve, and seventeen yards, but was credited with only six yards gain because of a twenty-six yard loss in the first quarter when he was trapped attempting to pass.

Including yesterday's contest, Baugh, playing his first year in professional football, completed 99 of 304 passes for a total gain of 1,462 in twelve National league games, an average of 14.7 yards per completion. Only fifteen of his passes were intercepted.

George Veenker Denies Getting Michigan Offer

Ames, Ia., Dec. 12.—(AP)—George Veenker, athletic director at Iowa State college, denied here today that he had been approached by University of Michigan officials regarding the post of Harry Kipke, whose contract as football coach was terminated last week.

"If Michigan is considering me among others for the football coaching job, I do not know about it, for I have not been contacted. However, if my name is on the list of those eligible for the position, I am deeply honored. Please bear in mind that I am satisfied here at Iowa State college and am not looking for a change."

I'M GLAD I TRIED BUSHMILLS

● I owe a debt of gratitude to the good friend who introduced me to Bushmills. For never before have I tasted whiskey so distinctive. It has such a full body, such rugged character. They tell me that's because it's pot-stilled entirely from barley malt and every drop is 9 years old. Ever since I first tried it I've always kept a bottle on hand to help me play the perfect host—and I always ask for Bushmills at my favorite bar.

NEWS OF FINANCIAL AND GRAIN MARKETS

TRADERS SCAN MARKET IN VAIN FOR FUTURE TIP

Stocks Mill About Aimlessly.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Last week's stock market in the opinion of observers gave no indication of the future, either favorable or unfavorable. Stocks milled about in apparently aimless fashion, ending the week at irregularly lower levels. Losses in the leaders ran to two points.

Trading was the slowest in more than two months. Total volume for the six trading days totaled 5,869,888 shares, against 6,054,910 shares the preceding week

At no time did concentrated selling appear, while on occasion volume tended to increase as prices advanced. This was interpreted as a good sign by brokers.

The slight change that took place in the financial picture is attested by the Dow-Jones averages. As measured by this barometer, thirty representative industrial stocks declined .96 point, twenty railroad issues lost .26, and twenty utilities lost .44.

Action Is Disappointing.

The action of the market was disappointing to tape watchers if for no other reason than because so much had been expected of it at the start of the week. It was held that if the industrial averages went through last week's high the way would be paved for a good upturn. The level was penetrated, but prices failed to follow through.

Stocks started off the week in listless fashion, but rallied strongly on Tuesday when the aviation section provided a feature. On Wednesday the list was active and higher, but Thursday and Friday witnessed a lapse in prices.

On Saturday quotations barely held their own, an exception being aviation stocks, as dullness became acute and the volume dropped to the smallest for a Saturday since Oct. 4. Aviation issues were about the only group to finish higher on the week. Boeing scored a gain of more than 3 points and United Aircraft hiked forward 2 points in an active market.

Steel Issues Mixed.

Steel issues were mixed at the close of the week. United States Steel piled up the most volume, but sustained a loss of 1 point, while Bethlehem was bid up more than 2 points.

Shares of tobacco and glass companies were among the weakest groups. Reynolds and American Tobacco B hit new lows. Libby-Owens and Owens-Illinois were down 3¾ and 3¼ points, respectively.

Motors, merchandising shares, and mining issues were lower. Chemicals and farm implements were mixed. Oil shares were weak.

COST OF LIVING DROPS SLIGHTLY IN NOVEMBER

New York, Dec. 10.—[Special.]—Living costs of American workers were 0.6 per cent lower in November than in October, the National Industrial Conference board reported yesterday. For the first time since January, 1934, rents showed a decline from the preceding month.

November food prices were 1.5 per cent lower than in October, 1937, but 1.3 per cent higher than in November, 1936. Rents receded 0.1 per cent from October to November, but still were 9.5 per cent above November, 1936. Clothing prices in November were 0.5 per cent lower than in October and 5.8 per cent higher than a year ago. Coal, however, advanced seasonally 0.6 per cent from October to November, but coal prices in November were 0.6 per cent below prices in the same 1936 month.

STEAM ENGINE CROSSES NATION IN RECORD RUN

Establishing what is said to be a new record in American railroad history, a giant steam passenger locomotive of the Santa Fe railroad arrived in Chicago at 6:20 a. m. yesterday after having pulled the eastbound fast mail the entire 2,227.3 miles from Los Angeles. Never before has one steam locomotive pulled a train across the continent, officials of the Santa Fe said. Ordinarily the Santa Fe's high speed steam powered trains to and from Los Angeles are handled by four steam locomotives. The Diesel-electric, which hauls the Super Chief, makes the entire run, however.

American Sales to Japan Advance 65.3 Per Cent

TOKIO, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Japan's imports from the United States were 65.3 per cent greater during the first 10 months of 1937 than for the same period in 1936, figures of the commerce ministry showed today. Japanese exports to America rose 20.6 per cent. Imports from the United States totaled $308,575,000 for a $123,838,000 gain; exports rose $27,550,000 to $165,300,000, leaving Japan with an unfavorable trade balance of $143,275,000. Larger purchases of raw cotton during the early part of 1937 were the chief reason for the trade gain.

New York Central Income Shows Sharp Decline

New York, Dec. 12.—(AP)—New York Central Railroad company today reported October net income after fixed charges of $168,650, equal to 3 cents a share on capital stock, against $2,616,357 in October, 1936, or 52 cents a share.

A. O. Smith Corporation.

Investors' Guide: Please send me available information on the A. O. Smith corporation.—J. P. N.

Answer: The manufacture of automobile frames normally provides about three-fourths of the revenues of this company. It has equipment for turning out 15,000 frames a day, two-thirds with nearly automatic equipment, in the highly mechanized plant in Milwaukee.

Other important lines include welded line pipe for the natural gas and oil industries, with annual capacity of about 8,000 miles of pipe of 8½ to 26 inches in diameter. Petroleum cracking stills and other large pressure and heat resistant metal vessels for the chemical and other industries form the third most important phase of business. The company also makes steel beer kegs and glass lined beer storage tanks.

Seeking to obtain greater diversification of revenues, the company bought a gold mining property in 1936. Operations turned out to be unprofitable, however, and were abandoned early in 1937 after a charge of more than $900,000 for exploration and development expenses practically wiped out profits in the fiscal year ended July 31, 1937. The company, however, still retains substantial mining interests.

Net income increased sharply to $877,000, or $1.76 a share, for the twelve months ended Oct. 31, however, compared with $438,000, or 88 cents a share, in the twelve months ended Oct. 31, 1936. The sudden sharp gain reflected not only discontinuance of gold mining but the minimum of delay and small expense involved for dies and retooling in changing over production from 1937 to 1938 automobile models.

	Sales.	Net income.	Inc. per shr.
1937	$31,958,000	$ 17,000	$ .03
1936	26,795,000	863,000	1.75
1935	18,725,000	*621,000	*1.33
1934	Not	*250,000	* .59
1933	Reported	*1,931,000	*3.96

*Loss.

Current assets were $9,026,000 and current liabilities were $3,466,000 on July 31, 1937.

Capitalization consists solely of 498,800 shares of $10 par common stock.

The common stock must be rated speculative, pending resumption of dividends on a sound earnings basis. No dividends have been paid on it since 1931, when $1.50 a share was disbursed. Payments amounted to $2 in 1930, $1.40 in 1929, and $1.20 in 1928.

EXPECT CORLEY TO BE CHOSEN HEAD OF FIELD'S

Directors of Marshall Field & Co. will meet this morning to select a successor to Chairman James O. McKinsey, who died suddenly on Nov. 30 from pneumonia. Frederick D. Corley, president of the company, is expected to be made chief executive officer, retaining his present title. It is understood that the post of chairman will be abolished.

Two changes in executive personnel were announced by the company last week. Hughston M. McBain, vice president, was placed in charge of all manufacturing operations, with headquarters in the corporate offices in the Merchandise Mart. Since July last year he had been assistant general manager of the retail store. C. C. Bunker, who had been vice president in charge of retail operations in the east, was named general merchandise manager, with headquarters here.

Half of Banks Lost by 21 States in 16 Year Period

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Twenty-one states lost half or more of their banks between 1920 and 1936, the federal reserve board said today in a 45 year history of American bank suspensions. Heaviest mortality occurred in the agricultural states of the north central and south Atlantic areas.

Reserve Finds Industry at 20 Months' Low

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Industrial production declined in November to the lowest point in twenty months, the federal reserve board announced today.

The board made a preliminary estimate that production last month fell to 95 per cent of the 1923-'25 average. This compared with 103 in October, 111 in September and an average of 116 for the first eight months of the year.

The board's monthly bulletin traced the course of this recession, which it attributed to maladjustments in costs, prices and speculative buying. Early this year, the board related, business men thought the trend of rising costs and prices then in sharp evidence would continue. They themselves accentuated abnormal increases by stocking up beyond immediate needs in the hope of avoiding higher prices later.

By April, the board continued, it became clear the rise had been overdone, whereupon speculative buying stopped. Production leveled off and when the possibility of price decreases appeared, business men delayed purchases in the expectation of saving. Just as advance buying against prospective price rises accentuated the rises and stimulated production, so the new movement to curtail inventories in preparation for lower prices aggravated price declines and slowed production.

Throughout the summer the immediate future of business depended on a race to dispose of surplus inventories before factories exhausted unfilled orders on hand. But the factories lost, and finally in September they had to curtail production. About the same time the stock market suffered its first serious sinking spell and called general attention to the situation.

The board made no predictions, but noted that the supply of bank credit is ample to finance a new recovery.

Waste Paper.

Some individuals and companies find a profitable business in collecting the large amount of waste paper which accumulates each day in office buildings. This they sell to manufacturers who put the paper to new use.

The waste paper is taken to sorting plants, where bottles, metal scraps, and many miscellaneous items are removed. It is then put into a water solution for softening, later being run through screens that remove any foreign substances not found in the sorting plants.

After this process is completed the paper, which has been converted into a pulplike substance, is rolled into strips for use in the next manufacturing process. Among the more common uses for such reclaimed paper is its manufacture into coarse wrapping paper and into boxes and containers.

STEEL INDUSTRY EXPECTS GAINS IN NEAR FUTURE

Developments last week brought signs of improvement for the steel industry despite a 3.5 point decline in operations to 27 per cent of ingot capacity, says the current issue of the magazine Steel. Sentiment changed distinctly and a small increase in the volume of orders from miscellaneous sources brought encouragement in both the eastern and western centers, the magazine adds.

Some sellers were reported to have booked the best tonnage in six to eight weeks.

Schedules for this week were said to call for larger open harth operations. The production rate may recover a few points, says Steel.

Pittsburgh ingot production last week declined 5 points to 19 per cent, Chicago, 6 points to 24; eastern Pennsylvania, 2 points to 29; Youngstown, 11 points to 24, and Birmingham, 9 points to 45 per cent. In New England the rate was up 4 points to 36 per cent, and in Detroit it rose 2 points to 52 per cent of capacity.

U. S. MAY RAISE LARGE CROP OF WINTER WHEAT

Acreage Is Largest on Record.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

On the basis of acreage sown the United States has the prospect of another big winter wheat crop in 1938. Farmers sowed 57,530,000 acres to winter wheat last fall. This is the largest winter wheat acreage on record.

The trend of wheat prices in the last few weeks has been influenced by the prospect that the big acreage may produce a large crop. Wheat for delivery next July, by which time new crop wheat will be ready for market, is now quoted at a discount of 9 cents a bushel under wheat for current delivery.

Condition Above Year Ago.

The condition of the crop on Dec. 1 was rated higher on the average than on the same day last year, but is below the average condition prevailing over a ten year period. The Dec. 1 rating was 77.8 per cent of normal, compared with 75.8 per cent last year and an average of 82.4 per cent on Dec. 1 for the period 1923-'32.

The condition of the crop suggests a final harvest in the neighborhood of 697 million bushels, according to Nat C. Murray, one of the leading crop statisticians. The Dec. 1 estimates of production have varied widely compared with actual harvest returns, although in instances they have been remarkably close. The average difference between the Dec. 1 prospects and the final return for the years 1923-'35 was 50 million bushels, Murray found.

Export Demand Improves.

The improved export demand for American wheat brought a moderate upturn in the Chicago market last week. Closing quotations for the week were slightly above the preceding week's prices. The range of prices for the week in wheat and other grain futures follow:

HOLIDAY BUYING AIDS CHICAGO RETAIL VOLUME

Business in Chicago was "fairly good" last week, according to the Chicago Association of Commerce. Christmas gift buying aided the retail trade, and wholesalers were receiving last-minute rush orders for gift goods.

Christmas buying thus far has been mostly in the non-luxury lines, according to the report of the association.

Sloan Gives Ten Millions for Research

New York, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Alfred P. Sloan Jr., chairman of the General Motors corporation, announced today the donation of $10,000,000 in securities as an endowment to an economics research foundation bearing his name.

The foundation was organized in the summer of 1936, but labor troubles in the automotive industry delayed plans for its operation and financing.

Sloan said more than 10,000 shares of General Motors common stock were involved, but the transaction was entirely a personal matter, having "nothing whatsoever to do with General Motors corporation or my official relationship with same."

"Due to government regulations," he said, "changes in my General Motors holdings are a matter of public record on account of my official relationship with that organization, hence it is important, especially in the period of uncertainty now existing, that no prejudice should develop as to the reasons for the action that I am taking."

He said the foundation proposed to concentrate on the "promotion of a wider knowledge of basic economic truths generally accepted as such by authorities of recognized standing and as demonstrated by experience, as well as a better understanding of economic problems in which we are today so greatly involved and as to which we are so importantly concerned."

SIXTY-NINE YEARS AGO, The Live Stock National Bank was organized to give close co-operation and needed financial assistance chiefly to Chicago's great packing and agricultural industries—then in the early stages of development and expansion.

TODAY, Live Stock National serves great corporations throughout the entire middle west, representing practically every kind of business. But the same friendly service and conservative policies, the same individual helpfulness, that contributed so greatly to our customers' early growth (and resultantly to our own) is still here.
